Media Information

CREDENTIALS: Working press credentials for Carolina home games in Chapel Hill and Greensboro can be obtained by writing Sports Information Director Rick Brewer. His mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, NC 27515-2126. Requests are screened to insure a working press box. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association. Please submit credential requests in writing to Brewer no less than two weeks prior to game day.

FILING COPY: The Department of Athletics furnishes a number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy. Anyone desiring a private phone should contact Southern Bell Telephone in Chapel Hill. The Sports Information Office has one fax machine which is available on a first-come, first-served basis after each game.

PRESS BOX SERVICES: Programs, statistics and game notes will be distributed before each game. A play-by-play, final box scores and coaches quotes will be provided at the end of each game and an abbreviated halftime box will be distributed at the half. Coaches of both teams will be brought to the first floor of Smith Center for post-game press conferences and the first floor will also function as the press work room. Refreshments and soft drinks will be served there before the game and at halftime.

INTERVIEWS: Player interviews should be arranged through the sports information office. Generally, these interviews are conducted before or after practice sessions.

RADIO NETWORK & TELEVISION SHOW: The Tar Heel Sports Network is one of the largest and best-run radio networks in the nation. The network is operated by the Village Companies of Chapel Hill with Jim Heavner as producer and Dianne Smith as manager. Woody Durham handles play-by-play duties. The Dean Smith Show is televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. John Kilgo serves as host for the program which features Smith, game highlights and player features.

1988-89 Carolina Basketball Outlook

An experienced North Carolina basketball team heads into the 1988-89 season with high hopes for an outstanding year.

But, improvement must be made in several areas if the Tar Heels are to again challenge for Atlantic Coast Conference and national honors.

This team shapes up as a direct contrast to last year's squad which began the season as the most inexperienced of Coach Dean Smith's 27-year coaching career. Still, that team made fine improvement during the course of the season and finished strongly for a 27-7 record.

The only players missing from that team are guard Ranzino Smith and forward Joe Jenkins. Carolina returns all five of last year's late-season starters.

Smith, however, will be difficult to replace. A starter most of the season, he averaged 11.7 points a game. His outside shooting was an important aspect of the Tar Heel attack. For example, Carolina could not have won games against top-ranked Syracuse or at UCLA without his play.

Although the Tar Heels do return 12 lettermen from a year ago, they will be hard-pressed to match the accomplishments of Smith's recent teams. Carolina has now finished in the top 10 of both national wire service polls for eight consecutive seasons, reaching at least the Final 16 of the NCAA Tournament each year. No other school in the country has accomplished either of those feats. The Tar Heels were eliminated from NCAA play in the West Regional finals last March.

Heading the cast of returning players for Carolina are All-America forward J.R. Reid and guard Jeff Lebo, a second-team All-ACC selection last season. The rest of the starting lineup in the latter part of 1988 included center Scott Williams, forward Steve Bucknall and guard Kevin Madden.

"We will miss Ranzino," says Coach Smith. "His outside scoring was an important part of our offense last year.

"To be a better team than last year, all of our players must show improvement. We need better ballhandling than we had last year and more offensive proficiency. We do not have great team quickness, but our experience and fundamentals should make us a strong defensive team."—Dean Smith

But, outside of his loss, we will basically have the same team as we did last season. Thus, we do have an experienced squad.

"However, to be a better team than last year, all of our other players must show improvement. We need better ballhandling than we had last year and more offensive proficiency.

"We do not have great team quickness, but our experience and fundamentals should make us a strong defensive team."

Depth is a concern of Smith's.

"We are not a deep team with only two quarterbacks and three big people," he says. "We will again play eight or nine people, but we can't afford an injury to Lebo, Reid, Williams, Bucknall, Pete Chilcutt or King Rice."

The first eight players appear solid.

Center Scott Williams, ripping down a rebound against Wake Forest last year, showed tremendous improvement in his sophomore year, finishing second on the team in scoring and rebounding and leading in blocked shots and steals. (Photo by Jim Hawkins)

Reid ranks as one of the top players in the country after winning consensus All-America honors last year and then making the U.S. Olympic Team. The 6-9, 256-pound junior from Virginia Beach, Va., averaged 18.0 points and 8.9 rebounds a game, shooting 60.7 percent from the field. He finished sixth in the ACC in scoring, second in rebounding, second in field goal percentage and fifth in blocked shots.

An excellent inside scorer, Reid has developed into a good defender, too. Smith is hoping he will become an even better offensive rebounder in his junior season.

"It appears the strong competition in Olympic practice and in their exhibitions against NBA players has helped J.R.'s concentration on rebounding," says the Tar Heel coach.

"I'm also confident he will not lose the ball as frequently this year due to a better understanding of the difference between a marginal play and an easy play. Certainly, his threat to score should help us offensively as teams must key on him and Jeff Lebo."

Lebo, a 6-4, 189-pound senior from Carlisle, Pa., did an outstanding job last season at the point guard position after playing the big guard spot for most of his first two years here. He handed out 159 assists and scored 12.2 points a game while directing the offense and defense. He led the ACC in free throw shooting at 87.8 percent and was second in three-point percentage at 46.4. He figures to again challenge for all-star honors this season.

"It's a pleasure, as a coach, to have a guard who thinks and understands the game as well as Jeff," says Smith. "Plus, he is an outstanding player.

"In our tests on the first day of practice, he tied King Rice as our fastest player. In the vertical jump, he finished one-half inch behind Rodney Hyatt and Kevin Madden as our best jumper. He has obviously worked hard over the summer and appears to have no ill effects from the stress fracture that hampered him in the NCAA Tournament. We look to Jeff to have an outstanding year, doing what it takes, game to game, for us to have a winning team."

Williams got better and better throughout the 1988 season, turning in some of his best performances down the stretch. He was named to the All-ACC Tournament team and then played very well in the NCAA Tournament, including a 19-point, seven-rebound effort against Michigan. For the year, he averaged 12.8 points and 6.4 rebounds, shot 57.2 percent from the floor and led the team in both blocked shots and steals. He has become a very good inside defender. Williams is a 6-10, 235-pound junior from Hacienda Heights, Calif.

"Scott has always had good work habits," points out Smith. "With his attitude toward practice and games, he has shown immense improvement each year he's been in Chapel Hill.

"We think he'll be difficult for opposing teams to box out and should get more offensive rebounds. In addition, he and J.R. both run the court very well and we will take advantage of that ability within the framework of our offense."

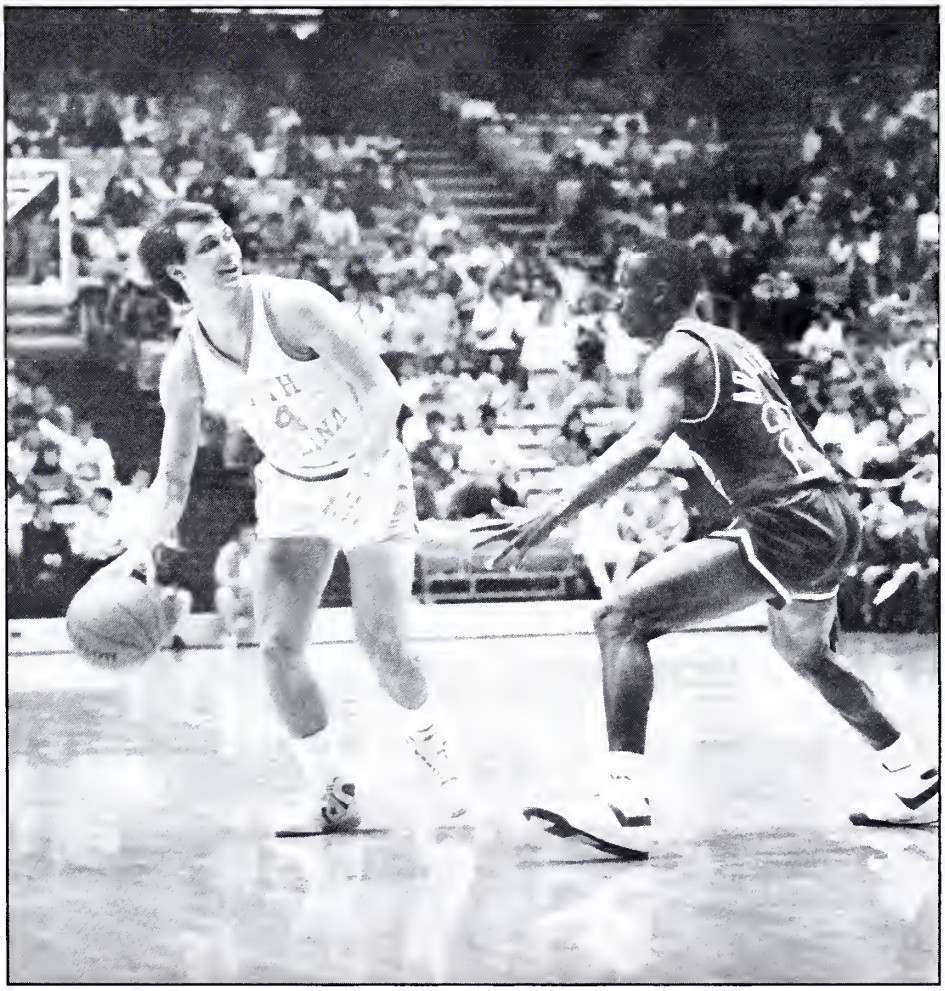
Bucknall, a 6-6, 217-pound senior from London, England, is an outstanding defensive player who usually drew the opposition's top frontcourt scoring threat last season. He also averaged 9.1 points and 4.2 rebounds.

"In pre-season practices, Buck has taken on a very positive leadership role," says Smith. "His enthusiasm for the game is contagious with his teammates. Although he is a very unselfish player, Buck will be counted on more at the offensive end of the court where he has made good improvement."

Madden was a part-time starter early last year and then started the last nine games of the season. The 6-4, 230-pound junior from Staunton, Va. averaged 8.6 points, shooting 57.5 percent from the floor. He is a smart and very unselfish player.

"Kevin is in the best physical shape of his career at Carolina," says Smith. "Hopefully, that will help him defensively. Once again, we will call on him to play a number of positions. His basketball intelligence and savvy allows us that luxury."

Top reserves from a year ago are Chilcutt, a 6-9, 223-pound sophomore from Eutaw, Ala.; Rice, a 6-1, 191-pound sophomore from Binghamton, N.Y.; and Rick Fox, a 6-7, 231-pound sophomore from Nassau, Bahamas. Other returning lettermen are Jeff Denny, a 6-4, 193-pound junior from Rural Hall, N.C.; Rodney Hyatt, a 5-8, 145-pound junior from Wadesboro, N.C.; David May, a 6-7, 208-pound senior from Greensboro, N.C.; and



Jeff Lebo made a smooth transition from shooting guard to point guard last season and he led the Atlantic Coast Conference in free throw shooting and was second in three-point field goal percentage. (Photo by Robert Crawford)

"Last year's team really played some of its best basketball in the NCAA Tournament. One of our goals will be to again be playing at our best at the end of the 1988-89 season."—Dean Smith

Doug Elstun, a 6-2, 173-pound sophomore from Overland Park, Kan.

"Chilcutt, Fox and Rice have probably shown the most improvement of all our players," says Smith. "We need that in order to have an outstanding team."

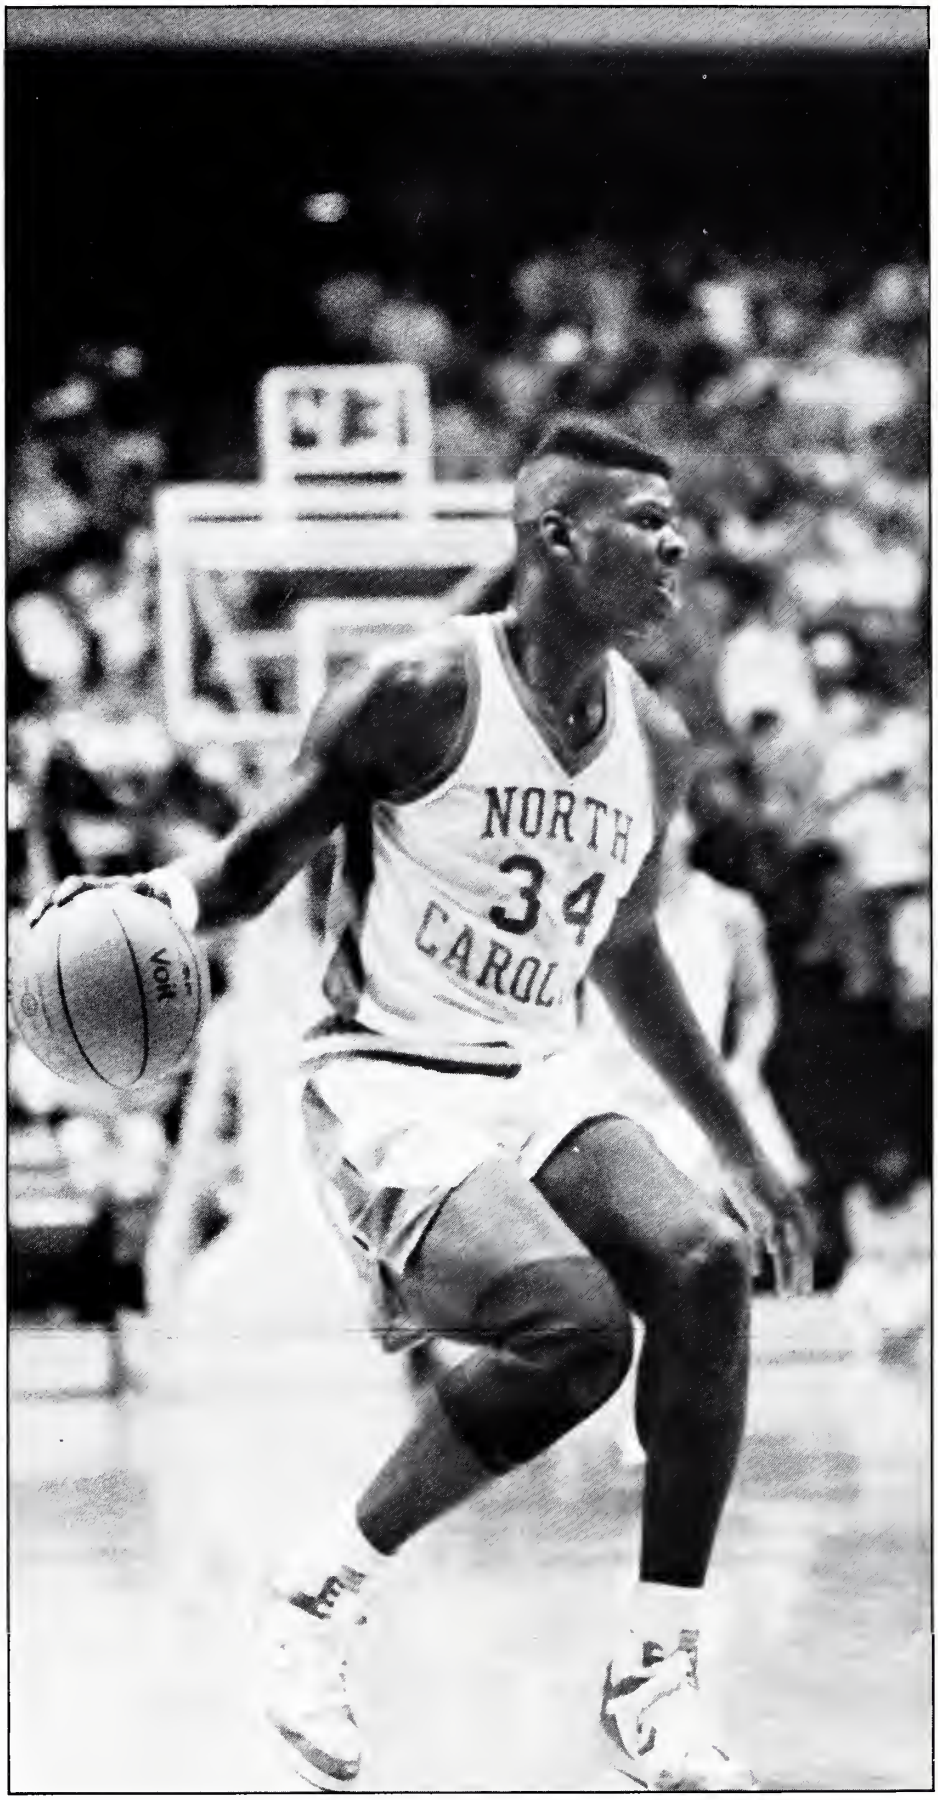
Also joining the squad is one freshman—6-4½, 177-pound Hubert Davis of Burke, Va. Denny and Davis appear to be the leading candidates to fill in at Ranzino Smith's old position.

This group will be shooting for Carolina's seventh ACC regular-season title in the last eight years. The Tar Heels finished atop the league standings last year with an 11-3 mark in ACC play.

"Offensively, we will depend on the fast break as we always have," says Coach Smith. "In fact, we plan to move our break up a notch to a style similar to the one we used in 1987 when we averaged 91.3 points a game.

"We again play a most difficult schedule. In games which were undecided with three minutes to play, we were 17-4 last year. Our record would have been very average except for that. We will need to have similar success in close games this season because we should again be in a lot of them.

"Last year's team really played some of its best basketball in the NCAA Tournament. One of our goals will be to again be playing at our best at the end of the 1988-89 season."



After earning consensus All-America honors as a sophomore and making the 1988 U.S. Olympic Team, junior forward J.R. Reid will be looking to improve his offensive rebounding and cut down on turnovers during the coming season. (Photo by Jim Hawkins)

Played in 33 of 34 games a year ago after appearing in all 36 games of his sophomore season... An experienced player who helps the Tar Heels in a number of different ways... Won the coveted Carmichael Cobb Award as the team's top defensive player last year... Also selected as the best screener on the squad... A very good offensive rebounder... Started 27 times last season... Averaged 9.1 points and 4.2 rebounds... Shot 49.3 percent from the floor and 79.8 from the line... Second on the team in assists with 124... Started an 11-0 run in a game at Illinois with two baskets to tie the game at 58... Carolina went on to an 85-74 victory... It was his great pass to Scott Williams for a stuff with 1:41 left in overtime which put the Tar Heels ahead to stay in a 75-73 win over N.C. State... Had a game-tying layup and a key pass to Williams for a dunk in the closing moments as Carolina roared from behind to win at Virginia, 64-58... Turned in a double double with 15 points and 10 assists in a homecourt victory over Wake Forest... Scored a career-high 22 points in a loss at Duke... However, some of his best performances actually came in games in which he scored very few points... He contributed that much defensively... Usually drew the top offensive threat on the opposing team... His inability to play much due to a sore toe hurt the Tar Heels badly in an NCAA loss to Arizona... Averaged 3.7 points as a sophomore, shooting 49.5 percent from the field and 71.2 from the free throw line... Pulled down a career-high 10 rebounds in a home-court win over Maryland... Also had nine points and five assists in that game... Played in 24 of 34 games as a freshman... Doesn't have an extensive basketball background... A native of London, he first began playing the sport as a teenager... Like most Europeans, he had grown up playing soccer... Decided to come to the United States for high school to improve his basketball skills... Attended Dave Cowen's basketball camp and then played at Governor Dummer Academy in Massachusetts for two years... Led his high school team to the New England Class C championship as a senior... Coached there by Steve Metz... Played on the British National Junior Team earlier in his career, on the British National Team in 1987 and on the British Olympic Team last summer... That team did not make the Olympics, although it got through one round of qualifying to the European Qualifying Finals... A key player on that team because of his experience and skills... Got a thrill last year when he played in front of family and friends for the first time as a collegian as the Tar Heels competed in a Christmas tournament in London... Expected to be one of the team leaders this year.

Here's one of the premier guards in the college game... Rates as a leading all-star candidate in his senior season... A very smart player who is a good ball handler and passer... Has improved steadily on defense throughout his career... Had an outstanding junior year in his first season at point guard... Shooting percentage (43.6) wasn't as high as in his first two seasons (51.4 and 53.2), but he was a better player... Averaged 12.2 points and 2.6 rebounds and had 159 assists... Made 78 of 168 three-point attempts for a percentaqge of 46.4... Broke Steve Hale's school record by shooting 87.8 percent at the foul line... That led the Atlantic Coast Conference and ranked him 11th in the country... Second team All-ACC and All-ACC Tournament selection... Named to the U.S. Basketball Writers' District All-America Team... Started 33 times, missing the Fordham game with a finger injury... Opened the season in sensational fashion with 20 points against top-ranked Syracuse, including three of four three-point attempts... Had two big free throws with 21 seconds left in overtime of that game for a 94-91 lead in a 96-93 victory... Named MVP in the Central Fidelity Classic at Richmond... Scored a career-high 28 points in the championship game against Richmond with all seven of his field goals coming from three-point range... The seven treys set a school single-game record... Also had five rebounds and five assists in that game... Scored 15 points and had six assists in the tourney opener against Southern California... However, his most memorable performance probably came in a home-court win over Georgia Tech... Hit five straight three-pointers in the last 4:08 of play for Carolina's last 15 points in a 73-71 come-from-behind victory... Made the game-winner with 48 seconds on the clock and then had a big defensive play on the other end to help prevent Tech from getting off a last shot... Put the Tar Heels ahead for good, 58-56, with 1:33 left at Virginia and then hit four straight free throws in the last 11 seconds after the lead was sliced to 60-58... That preserved a 64-58 victory... Grabbed a career-high eight rebounds in that game... Hit seven of 11 shots from the field and scored 23 points in a homecourt win over the same Cavaliers... Handed out nine assists against North Texas State in Carolina's NCAA Tournament opener.... Then contributed 19 points, five rebounds and seven assists in the following game against Loyola Marymount... In ACC Tournament and NCAA competition, made 12 of 12 free throws and 16 of 33 three-pointers... Also had 36 assists in those seven post-season games... Finished his junior year with 440 assists, the sixth-highest total in school history... Matt Doherty is fifth with 446... Holds Tar Heel career records for three-pointers (145) and three-point percentage (45.7)... His career free throw percentage of 82.95 is the fifth best among all Carolina players.

Averaged 13.5 points and had 144 assists as a sophomore while playing at the big guard spot opposite Kenny Smith... His free throw percentage of 84.9 would have led the ACC, but his 93 attempts weren't enough to qualify... Came to Carolina without a scholarship, but won one in his freshman year by making the varsity... Has been a member of the team for the past two seasons... Made his biggest contributions with his practice work... Has played hard in those workouts against the regular Carolina point guards... Has seen limited playing time in game competition, but has become a crowd favorite... Possesses fine quickness... Good with the basketball... Lack of height is a problem, but makes up for that with his quickness and speed... Played in 13 games last year... Finished with 10 points and four assists... Season scoring high was three at Nevada-Reno and at home against Clemson... It was his jumper which broke the NCAA Tournament single-game scoring record as Carolina got 123 points against Loyola Marymount... Scored 20 points in 15 games as a freshman... Had a career-high five points against Hawaii Loa... Played at Anson County High School for Coach Manzell Spencer... Once scored a school-record 50 points in a game there.

A major contributor as both a starter and a reserve last year... A very smart and strong basketball player... Unselfish and a good rebounder... Has made strides defensively and needs to continue improvement there... Played in 32 of 34 games last season, starting 19 times... Missed two games after spraining an ankle in practice... Started the last nine games of the year at the big guard position... Also saw action at small forward... Averaged 8.6 points and 2.8 rebounds per game... Shot 57.5 percent from the field and 68.3 from the foul line... Made 19 of 41 three-pointers (46.3 percent)... Handed out 51 assists and had 25 steals... Made a couple of key plays in Carolina's season-opening 96-93 overtime win over top-ranked Syracuse... After the Tar Heels had trailed from the early moments, it was his fast break basket which tied the game, 81-81, with 1:18 left in regulation... He then put Carolina in front to stay, 92-91, with a pair of free throws with 37 seconds remaining in overtime... Scored 10 second-half points and 16 overall as Carolina battled back from a six-point halftime deficit to defeat SMU, 90-74... Scored a career-high 19 points at Duke in the last regular-season game of the year, hitting seven of 10 from the field and five of six from the free throw line... Hit all six of his field goal attempts, including three three-pointers, for 15 points in a homecourt win over Wake Forest... Scored 16 points in a win at N.C. State, going seven of eight from the floor... Grabbed nine rebounds, a career high, at Nevada-Reno... Handed out a career-high nine assists against Loyola Marymount in the NCAA Tournament... Also was seven of nine from the field that day, scoring 16 points... Had his solid sophomore year after sitting out the 1986-87 season... Although eligible under NCAA rules, was held out of competition by Coach Dean Smith... Used the year to improve himself academically... Had been an important reserve as a freshman in the 1985-86 season... Appeared in all 34 games, averaging 4.9 points and 1.8 rebounds... Shot 59.1 percent from the floor and 69.6 percent at the free throw line... Season scoring high was 18 against Rutgers... Heads into his junior year with the eighth-best career field goal percentage in school history... Has made 175 of 301 shots for a mark of 58.14... Played on a state championship team at Robert E. Lee High School... His teams compiled a 52-1 record in his last two seasons there... Coached in high school by Paul Hatcher... His brother, Mitch, played basketball at Western Carolina and has transferred to George Mason... An older brother, Jerry, played at Kansas State.

One of the keys to Carolina's season... Played a great deal last year as the top frontcourt reserve... Will man that same role again... Being counted for improved play and as a major contributor to the Tar Heel team... Should be improved defensively and as a rebounder... Has worked hard in the off-season... Has continued to progress and develop... A good passer who has a nice shooting touch for a big man... Played in all 34 games a year ago... Scored 168 points for a 4.9 average and grabbed 110 rebounds (3.2 per game)... Shot 56.4 percent from the field and 70.6 from the free throw line... Turned in a clutch performance in his first college game... With the Tar Heels playing short-handed, scored 14 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in the Tip-Off Classic season opener against Syracuse... Got one of his two starts in that game... Made six of eight field goal attempts and both his free throws that day... It was his jumper at the buzzer that tied the game and forced overtime... Carolina went on to a 96-93 victory... Scored a season-high 18 points at Nevada-Reno, hitting seven of 10 shots from the field... Also had 10 rebounds in that game for his second double double of the year... Other top scoring game was 16 against The Citadel... Highest assist total was four against Syracuse... Actually in his third year at Carolina... Missed most of the 1986-87 pre-season practices with an injury... After discussions with the coaching staff, he decided to sit out the year because he was so far behind the other players... Did practice with the team until breaking a finger in January... That sidelined him the rest of the season... Competed in the U.S. Olympic Festival here two summers ago... Has a good sense of humor... Played at Tuscaloosa Academy... Coached there by Scott Brenizer.

Carolina Athletic Administration

Chancellor Paul Hardin

North Carolina native Paul Hardin is the newly elected seventh chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. When he took office July 1, he brought to Carolina a reputation as a national spokesman for higher education and a record as an administrator of integrity, dedication and commitment. He comes to Chapel Hill as the University prepares to observe its 200th anniversary.

"I have a passion for higher education," Hardin said after being elected unanimously by the UNC Board of Governors in April.

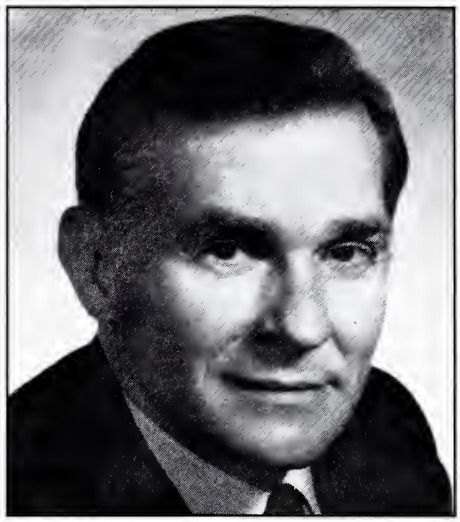
"I have a deep respect for those who advance knowledge by their scholarship and share it with tomorrow's leaders by their effective teaching," he said. "I have high hopes and great affection for students of all ages, origins and opinions. I also know a good university when I see one, and I am committed to protecting and enlarging the excellence which I find in Chapel Hill."

Hardin has been a fixture on college and university campuses ever since he enrolled at Duke University at the age of 17. He came to the University after serving as president of Drew University in Madison, N.J., since 1975. The Methodist school has 2,475 students, and Hardin left after steering the school toward a sound academic standing and financial stability when many small colleges were faced with declining enrollment.

He also was president of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, from 1972 to 1974, president of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C., from 1968 to 1972 and a member of the Duke law school faculty for 10 years. He has been a visiting professor at the law schools of the universities of Texas, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Hardin was named one of the 100 most effective university leaders in the nation in a 1987 study conducted by researchers at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. The study found that the best presidents are "strong risk-taking leaders with a dream" who rely on respect rather than popularity and work long hours.

Although he has been associated with private schools, Hardin knows about public institutions. He has been a member of the Board of Higher Education in New Jersey since 1983.



New chancellor Paul Hardin came to Carolina after being president of Drew University in New Jersey for 13 years.

At Drew, Hardin was active with fund raising, increasing its endowment from $22 million to about $70 million. He helped bring in capital funds as well as two endowed chairs—the William R. Kenan professorship in history and the Baldwin professorship in humanities.

New programs started at Drew during Hardin's tenure include a freshman seminar series to promote critical thinking and writing skills; the Charles A. Dana Research Institute for Scientists Emeriti, which brings retired corporate scientists to campus to continue their research and to interact with students; and College Connection, an educational, cultural and self-enrichment program for minority high school students. He also believes in the value of computers in the educational process. Drew was the first liberal arts institution to issue a personal computer to all entering freshmen, which they take with them after graduation.

In other educational activities, Hardin is the co-chairman of the Japan-U.S. Conference of University Presidents, was a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, has served twice as president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the United Methodist Church and was chairman of the National Commission on United Methodist Higher Education.

While teaching at Duke University, he won a four-year Ford Foundation grant for summer study in comparative law. He traveled to universities in Canada, Jamaica, Nigeria and Scotland. He published numerous articles on legal topics and is the co-author of two books—Cases and Materials on the Administration of Criminal Justice and Evidence: Cases and Materials. His other writings have addressed civil and criminal trial procedures in Scotland, executive privilege in the federal courts and college campus unrest.

He has been involved in politics as well, running for mayor of Durham in 1967 and serving as the second chairman of Durham's Human Relations Council.

Hardin, 57, was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in English at Duke in 1952 and a member of the varsity golf team. He graduated from Duke's law school in 1954, first in his class, and edited the law review. Hardin practiced law briefly in Alabama before returning to Duke in 1958 to teach law. A former member of Duke's Board of Trustees, he holds five honorary degrees.

Born in Charlotte, Hardin and his wife, Barbara, call several places in North Carolina home because they were both the children of Methodist ministers. During his youth, he lived in Concord, Waynesville, Wadesboro, Asheboro, Shelby and High Point. She is from the eastern part of the state. They have three children: Paul Russell, an attorney with the Woodruff Foundations in Atlanta; Sandra Mikush, associate director of the annual fund at Duke; and Dorothy Holmes, a third-grade teacher in Birmingham, Mich. His parents, Dorothy and the Rev. Paul Hardin, Jr., live in Asheville.

The University of North Carolina

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was the first state university to open its doors and the only public university in the nation to award degrees in the 18th century.

The cornerstone for Old East, the nation's first state university building, was laid on October 12, 1793. Fifteen months later UNC opened and, by 1860, only Yale University had more students.

From those beginnings, the growth and development of North Carolina always has been influenced by the University. It has trained many of the state's leaders, including nearly half of its governors, and a U.S. president, James K. Polk, is among its graduates.

Now the flagship of the 16-campus University of North Carolina system, the University at Chapel Hill is ranked among the great institutions of higher education in the nation and the world.

The University, which is preparing to observe its 200th anniversary, has earned that reputation because of its achievements in teaching, research and public service.

UNC is the largest, most comprehensive institution in North Carolina and a member of the select group of major universities that form the American Association of Universities. Its 14 colleges and schools provide instruction in more than 100 fields, offering 67 bachelor's, 88 master's, 61 doctoral and four professional degrees. Carolina has 22,000 students, more than 1,900 full-time faculty members and more than 5,400 staff members. Its living alumni total about 169,000, more than 60,000 of whom have graduated since 1973.

The quality of the education the University offers continues to receive national acclaim. U.S. News and World Report magazine ranked Carolina as one of the nation's top major universities in a 1987 survey of college presidents. UNC was ranked 11th among major research universities that are the leading granters of doctoral degrees and was one of only three public schools at the top of the list. The same survey ranked the Graduate School of Business Administration 17th in the nation. This marked the second time that UNC had appeared in the magazine's rankings—it came in ninth in 1985.

The same year, Richard Moll, author of "The Public Ivys: A Guide to America's Best Colleges and Universities," picked UNC as one of eight public institutions in the nation equivalent to a traditional Ivy League school. He also called Chapel Hill "the perfect college town."

The Old Well

Education writers at The New York Times also have praised UNC, including it on the list of 221 schools they call "The Best Buys in College Education." Carolina also made the Times' "1984-85 Guide To Selective Colleges," placing in the top six percent of the 275 colleges rated.

Those honors are just the latest indications that the University is gaining momentum as it continues to be one of the nation's most prestigious research institutions.

Carolina received a record $105.2 million in research funding during the 1986-87 fiscal year. The total, an 11 percent increase over the previous year, marked the first time the campus had topped the $100 million mark. In addition, funding from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) rose 10 percent in 1986—the largest increase for any school on the agency's top 20 list. In its best showing ever, UNC moved to 16th in the latest NIH list of grantees, making the campus the top-ranking institution in the Southeast. A 1987 NIH publication called the UNC performance "remarkable." These gains have come at a time when federal research funding has seen only modest increases. They also have enabled the University to make an even larger contribution to the economic growth of the Triangle area and the state.

A comprehensive evaluation published by the National Academy Press also ranked Carolina as one of the nation's best graduate and research institutions. The faculty was rated tops in the Southeast and one of the best in the nation. Other studies have ranked numerous schools and departments among the best, and the University's three-million volume library system consistently is listed among the country's top research libraries.

University faculty members are considered leaders in American higher education. More than 60 of them have served as presidents of national organizations in recent years. UNC has 11 members of the National Academy of Sciences, 16 in the Academy's Institute of Medicine and 18 in the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. The Pulitzer Prize has been awarded to faculty members, alumni and to books published by the UNC Press, the oldest academic press in the South.

Students have made their mark. Five have been chosen as Rhodes Scholars in the 1980's alone, and 28 winners of that honor have come from the Chapel Hill campus since 1904. The Morehead Scholarship Program, patterned after the Rhodes and considered the best of its kind, annually brings about 65 outstanding freshmen to Chapel Hill.

The 729-acre campus, once called "The Noble Grove," is among the most beautiful in the nation. The 190 permanent buildings include the nation's two oldest state university buildings, Old East and Person Hall. Old East, still used as a dormitory, and Playmakers Theatre, an 1852 Greek-revival building, are registered as National Historic Landmarks. In the 1980's, two of the largest public buildings in the state—the Walter Royal Davis Library and the Dean E. Smith Center—have opened. Other buildings recently completed include the Morehead Chemistry Teaching Laboratory, the Sitterson Computer Science Building and the Kenan Center of North Carolina. Construction continues on the Public Health and Environmental Sciences Center. When built, the Continuing Education and Conference Center also is expected to usher in a new era of nontraditional and continuing education.

In its third century, the University will continue to examine and champion the achievements and promise of public higher education in the United States. Carolina was the nation's first venture in this cause, and it will strive even harder to fulfill its duties to the state, the nation and the world as discoverer and transmitter of knowledge and understanding of ourselves and our universe.

Director of Athletics John Swofford

The director of athletics at the University of North Carolina is John Swofford, nationally recognized as one of the best administrators in intercollegiate sports.

Swofford, a 1971 Carolina graduate, is in his ninth year as head of his alma mater's athletic department. The Tar Heel program is one of the biggest in the South, fielding 26 varsity teams, and one of the finest in the nation in terms of success both on and off the playing field.

In his short time as athletic director, Swofford has already seen Carolina teams win 46 Atlantic Coast Conference championships and 10 national collegiate titles. In addition, he has guided the department through a period of tremendous change which has left it both vastly different and vastly better than it was when he took its top job in 1980.

With Swofford in the lead, Carolina successfully completed a $34 million fund-raising drive to construct the Smith Center, a complex which includes a 21,444-seat basketball arena and an Olympic-size swimming pool. He was also the driving force behind the expansion of Kenan Stadium which took place last summer and the building of a new press box there. He has a special love for the stadium and made sure its natural beauty would not be damaged before going ahead with the greatly needed alterations.

Swofford planned the construction of the Student-Athlete Development Center as an addition to Kenan Fieldhouse. That building, a one-of-a-kind facility, includes the most modern equipment to aid student-athletes in their studies and physical development.

A Morehead Scholar himself, Swofford has a special interest in the academic side of intercollegiate athletics. The new academic center at Kenan is a prototype in its field. Swofford has also established a special award to annually honor the top student in each of the Tar Heels' 26 sports. In addition, he has expanded the academic support staff to better serve the student-athletes who use its services.

Since Swofford became athletic director, a new tennis stadium and clubhouse have been built; Boshamer Stadium has been expanded and dressing rooms renovated for the Tar Heel baseball team; three new holes have been completed at Finley Golf Course; the football practice fields have been rebuilt and lighted; a new Astroturf playing field installed; the Fetzer Field track has been resurfaced; and the department has been computerized.

Nationally, Swofford was appointed to the NCAA Football Television Committee in 1982 and was named its chairman in 1984. He handled the committee during the stormy dispute over football television rights. He is currently chairman of the NCAA Communications Committee. Swofford also is a member of the NCAA Football Post-Season Bowl Committee and served on a subcommittee last year which investigated a possible national championship playoff. He served as chairman of the ACC Television Committee when the current basketball contract was signed. This is generally considered to be the most lucrative regional television agreement in college sports.

These accomplishments are a good indication Swofford is well aware of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics and how to cope with them. But, then Chancellor Christopher Fordham knew that when he named him to replace Bill Cobey as athletic director on May 1, 1980.

"My single greatest desire is for our program to be a shining example that you can be nationally competitive at the major-college level without breaking the rules or prostituting academic integrity," says Swofford.

"Our approach is not complicated. I tell our coaches three things: we want to be competitive for ACC championships, we expect our student-athletes to graduate and cheating will not be tolerated. If we accomplish those things, we can be termed successful.

"Our basic philosophy is not complex. It is a commitment to excellence and integrity; to represent our University in a positive way and reflect her character and values; and to care about our athletes as people, constantly keeping in mind that their positive development as human beings is paramount."

A native of North Wilkesboro, N.C., Swofford was a two-time all-state football player and a three-sport MVP at Wilkes Central High School. An honor student in high school, he majored in psychology and industrial relations at Carolina.

Swofford played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Those last two teams went to bowl games. He tied a then-school record against Vanderbilt in 1969 by throwing three touchdown passes in one game.

He was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus.

In 1973, he earned a master's in athletic administration at Ohio University. In his time there, Swofford served as a graduate assistant to the assistant business manager of athletics.

From 1973 to 1976, he was athletic ticket manager and assistant to the director of athletic facilities and finance at the University of Virginia. He returned to Carolina in May 1976 as assistant athletic director and business manager, handling all the athletic department's business affairs. Among his many other responsibilities were handling fund-raising affairs, team travel and the athletic dining hall. He also coordinated sports camps.

Although he remained assistant athletic director, Swofford dropped the business manager title and was named assistant executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation in January 1979. In that job, he was in charge of the overall financial structure of the athletic department. His position with the Educational Foundation involved general office procedures, membership services and fund-raising.

Swofford is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics and is on the alumni advisory board for the Ohio University Sports Administration program. He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Ohio University in 1984. He has been inducted into the Order of the Golden Fleece, Carolina's highest honorary society.

Swofford serves on the board of directors of the Chapel Hill Ronald McDonald House and North Carolina National Bank in Chapel Hill. He also was on the board of directors for North Carolina Amateur Sports which brought the U.S. Olympic Festival-'87 to this area.

A regular jogger, Swofford enjoys reading and tennis. He is married to the former Becky Owens of North Wilkesboro. They have two children, Autumn and Chad.

Head Coach Dean Smith

Entering his 28th season as head basketball coach at the University of North Carolina, Dean Smith heads up one of the most respected programs in college basketball history. Regarded as one of the nation's finest coaches, Smith has led the Tar Heel program to the top of the game in both on-court success and off-the-court respect.

In Smith's 27 seasons as head of Carolina hoop fortunes, the Tar Heels have established a record that is unmatched in the game today. His teams have won 638 and lost just 182, an amazing 77.8 percent success story.

Numbers fail to fully tell the extent of Smith's respect in the coaching fraternity, but the results of a 1986 Dallas Morning News poll of head coaches reveal such admiration. In a survey of head coaches at the NCAA Final Four, Smith received 49 votes to 33 for Indiana's Bobby Knight. No other coach had more than 20 votes.

Smith's teams are annually among the best in college basketball. Carolina has finished in the Top 10 of both major wire service polls each of the last eight seasons and has won at least 27 games each of those years. No other team has left such a mark on the polls over that same time span.

In addition, Smith has led the Tar Heels to at least the NCAA Final 16 for eight consecutive seasons. Carolina teams have also recorded the most victories in the NCAA Tournament in the decade of the 1980's. Smith's teams have also received bids to the NCAA's a record 14 straight times, bettering UCLA's run of 13 years from 1967-79.

Coach Dean Smith

Smith's consistency is the one facet of the Carolina mystique which repeatedly draws plaudits from his coaching peers.

After the Tar Heels had knocked Michigan from the NCAA's in 1987, Wolverine head coach Bill Frieder said of Smith, "I think he is the number one guy in America. He's always there. It isn't like Louisville or Villanova, where they win it one year and they're way down the next. Even Indiana finished way down in our league a couple of years ago. But with Dean and Carolina, year after year, they're there."

In February of 1987, Smith became only the 10th coach in history to reach the 600-win plateau with a win over Wake Forest in the structure which bears his name—the Dean E. Smith Center.

Smith's 638 wins entering the 1988-89 season leave him in eighth place on the list of all-time Division I victories for coaches with at least 10 seasons in the profession. The list of coaches who Smith trails in lifetime wins reads like a roundtable of great basketball minds—Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, Phog Allen of Kansas, Henry Iba of Oklahoma State, Ed Diddle of Western Kentucky, Ray Meyer of DePaul, John Wooden of UCLA and Marv Harshman of Washington.

Percentage-wise, Smith is fifth all-time among coaches with at least 10 seasons in Division I and second among active coaches. He trails only the legendary Clair Bee of Long Island, Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas, Rupp and Wooden.

Smith-directed teams have won championships at every level, including an NCAA championship in 1982, a National Invitation Tournament title in 1971 and a gold medal at the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal. Only two other coaches in history have duplicated that feat—Pete Newell of California and Knight.

Smith, who played for the legendary coach Allen at Kansas in the early 1950's, is also one of only two men, along with Knight, to both play on and coach an NCAA championship team. Smith was a member of the KU squad that won college basketball's top prize in 1952.

Smith and his teams are no strangers to the NCAA tournament or to the NCAA Final Four, as late winter and early spring in the Smith household have for 22 straight years meant but one thing—"Tournament Time."

Under Smith's guidance, the Tar Heels have made seven trips to the Final Four, second only to UCLA's Wooden, who took the Bruins of the '60s and '70s to 12 Final Fours. Wooden and Smith are also the winningest coaches in NCAA post-season history. Wooden had 47 tournament victories, while Smith ranks second with 39. Kentucky's Rupp is third with 30.

During the past 22 seasons, Smith's Tar

Now entering his 28th year as head man at North Carolina, Coach Dean Smith has always surrounded himself with some of the top assistants in the college game. Chief assistant Bill Guthridge (left) is now in his 22nd season at UNC, while Roy Williams (to Smith's immediate right) left last summer to take the head job at Kansas, Smith's alma mater. At the far right is Dick Harp, administrative assistant at Carolina, who was an assistant at Kansas when Coach Smith played there in the early 1950's. (Photo by Robert Crawford)

Heels have been among the most dominant teams in the game. Carolina has a record of 572-135 in that span, winning 80.9 percent of its games—an average record of 26-6 per year. No school has won more games in that time.

Incredibly, Smith's teams are the only ones to have finished in the Top 10 of both final wire service polls each of the last eight seasons. In fact, no other school has even been in the Top 10 of either poll for the last five years in succession while Carolina has been in the Top 10 14 of the last 15 years.

The Tar Heels have won at least 20 games for 18 consecutive years, the longest such streak in college basketball history. Smith has also had 16 seasons in which his teams have won at least 25 games, more than any other college coach. By comparison, Wooden had 11 seasons of at least 25 victories.

The highlight of Smith's coaching career at Carolina came in the form of the NCAA championship in 1982. Smith's Tar Heels, who ended the year with a 32-2 record, defeated Georgetown 63-62 in one of the most exciting and well-played championship games of all time.

Perhaps the most amazing accomplishment of all, however, has been the way Smith's teams have dominated Atlantic Coast Conference play. The Tar Heels have finished at least third in the ACC standings for 24 successive years. That includes a 19-year stretch in which Carolina finished first or second in the league standings each season. In fact, Carolina has finished in the top two of the league 21 of the last 22 years, with the only exception being in 1986 when the Tar Heels were third in the ACC, but eighth in the nation.

In the last 22 seasons, UNC has won nine ACC Tournament titles and has won either the league's regular-season title or the tournament crown in 17 of those years. In addition, the Tar Heels have made 22 consecutive post-season national tournament appearances, 18 of those in the NCAA Tournament.

Success like that was one of the reasons Smith was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in 1983. He had been so honored in the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame two years earlier. Such tributes are nothing new to Smith, as is the praise he receives from his peers. Former Marquette coach Rick Majerus commented on Smith when one of Majerus' recruits, Joe Wolf, announced his intentions to come to Chapel Hill. "Joe made a good choice. North Carolina may very well be the best program in the country and Dean Smith may very well be the best coach of all time."

Coaches have made similar comments in the past about the Tar Heels' consistency, the integrity of the program and the academic competence of Smith's players.

"When you play against North Carolina and Dean Smith, that's the best," said California coach Lou Campanelli after his James Madison team faced UNC in the 1983 NCAA's. "That's the epitome of college basketball.

"They represent everything you want—dedication, class, attitude. As we built our program at James Madison, we've paid a lot of attention to that. If that reflects in our style of play, that we resemble North Carolina, then I consider that a compliment."

A few years ago, Virginia coach Terry

Holland spoke about Carolina's consistency in the ACC. "Because of the league we're in, it's difficult to stay at the top every year," said Holland. "Only one team, North Carolina, has been able to do that. The rest of us have a couple of good years, then we have to fight to put it back together."

Nevada-Reno coach Len Stevens praised Smith before the Wolf Pack's game with the Tar Heels last year. "They're not a team of basketball players," said Stevens. "They're a team of true student-athletes. That's why they have always been so successful. They have quality people not just quality athletes. Some people have had cycles of success that have lasted three, four, five years. Their cycle has lasted from the beginning of time."

One of Smith's best-known accomplishments actually came somewhere other than at Carolina. In 1976, Smith guided the U.S. Olympic Team to the gold medal at the Montreal Summer Olympics, sweeping though the tournament undefeated. The '76 team, in which Smith molded a group of college all-stars into a team in a few weeks, faced the pressure of regaining the gold medal the Americans lost controversially in 1972 in Munich. Emphasizing a tough pressure defense and a fast-breaking style of attack, the Americans returned the U.S. to the top of the international game. Four of Smith's Tar Heels played key roles in the Olympic triumph—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. Smith has now had players on the last seven Olympic teams, dating back to the 1964 Tokyo Games. In addition to the 1976 quartet, there were Larry Brown in 1964, Charlie Scott in 1968, Bobby Jones in 1972, Al Wood in 1980, Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins in 1984 and J.R. Reid in 1988.

Smith has accomplished all his success by utilizing a tremendous rapport he has with his players, a masterful teaching ability and a style of play which produces victories.

Former Marquette coach Al McGuire may have put it best when he said, "If anyone was ever born to be a coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong-type person."

Smith's teams in Chapel Hill have been characterized by their unselfish play, great teamwork and tenacious man-to-man defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, they also add a disciplined attack, ranking high annually among national field goal percentage leaders.

Among Smith's many innovations are the run-and-jump defense, the mixing of pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, the free-lance passing game, the four corners offense and the scramble defense.

"Dean is one of the most organized and brilliant minds that I've ever met in basketball," says Georgetown coach John Thompson, coach of the 1988 U.S. Olympians. "He shared ideas and thoughts and philosophies with me that people just don't share with people, and I will always be grateful and respect him for that. He did me a tremendous favor. One of the greatest gifts you can share with somebody is the knowledge that you have."

Smith has shared his secrets of the game with a talented group of assistants, as well. Former Tar Heel player and assistant Larry Brown led the Kansas Jayhawks to the NCAA championship last spring and currently is head coach of the San Antonio Spurs in the NBA. One of UNC's assistants last year, Roy Williams, took over at Kansas after Brown's departure. Two of Smith's former assistants, John Lotz and Kenny Rosemond, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Eddie Fogler, another player and coach under

Smith at Carolina, has rebuilt Wichita State's program into a national contender since taking over the Shockers' top spot in 1986.

Smith's talents do not lie solely in producing quality college coaches, as evidenced by the number of outstanding players who have gone on to professional careers. In the last 22 years, 31 of Smith's players have gone on to play pro basketball in this country and many more have played in European professional leagues.

Seven of Smith's players have won rookie-of-the-year honors—Billy Cunningham, Charlie Scott, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Walter Davis, Phil Ford and Michael Jordan. In 1988, Jordan swept the NBA's top awards, being named the NBA Most Valuable Player and the Defensive Player-of-the-Year in the same season. Jordan also won MVP honors at the mid-season All-Star Game. Carolina grads thrived all season long in 1988 as James Worthy won his third NBA title with the Los Angeles Lakers and was named the Most Valuable Player of the 1988 NBA Finals and Doug Moe of the Denver Nuggets was named NBA Coach-of-the-Year.

Former Chicago Bulls coach Kevin Loughery credits Smith with the manner in which Jordan had handled his incredible popularity. "Michael has had the most media hype I've ever seen in professional basketball and I was around Dr. J for three years," said Loughery. "He has handled it all extremely well. It is a tremendous tribute to the way Dean Smith, who is one of the greatest coaches of all time, handled this guy. You can see his training. We are very fortunate that he has had that coaching background."

Pat Riley, coach of the world champion Lakers, paid Smith a similar compliment referring to Worthy. "I think James' success is based directly on how he was coached in college," said Riley. "We always look for players from North Carolina. If we could draft players from North Carolina every year, we'd do it. You know they know how to play. The players are so full of character like James and Michael Jordan. I have a lot of respect for Coach Smith. I'm the beneficiary of a man who has taught all these guys how to play the game. When they come to the pros, they're refined. They're ready to step right in."

Worthy, for one, disagrees with a sometimes-voiced opinion that Smith does not allow his star players to show all they have. "People say players like myself, Walter Davis, Bob McAdoo and Michael Jordan were held back at Carolina because of the Dean Smith system," says Worthy. "But actually, that kind of basketball—basic fundamentals and discipline—was taught at Carolina is what the good teams in the NBA have."

Bobby Jones once gave Smith credit for his professional career in an interview with the New York Times.

"If I had gone to any other school I would probably not have been in pro basketball," said Jones. "I was a shy and gangly kid, not very well coordinated when I started playing basketball in junior high school. At North Carolina, they gave me the tools to play in the pros and I don't want to forget it."

While many of Smith's players have gone on to great pro careers, it is in college under Smith where may have shone brightest. He has coached more All-Americas than any other active coach. Smith has had four players win National Player-of-the-Year honors—Ford in 1978, Worthy in 1982, Jordan in 1983 and 1984 (unanimous selection) and Kenny Smith in 1987.

A native of Emporia, Kan., and a graduate of Topeka High School, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of Jayhawk basketball teams which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.

Smith was an assistant basketball coach and golf coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when Frank McGuire brought Smith to Carolina as an assistant coach. He served as an assistant until 1961 when McGuire left to coach in the NBA.

After taking Carolina to the NCAA championship game in 1977, Smith was named the National Coach-of-the-Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. He received the same honor from the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and Basketball Weekly in 1979 and from Medalist in 1982. Smith has been named the ACC Coach-of-the-Year seven times.

Smith is a great goodwill ambassador for the University. He is called upon to give lectures at basketball clinics all over the world. Smith is past president of the NABC and was the only basketball coach among a group of college presidents who recently served on the NCAA Select Committee. The committee was called upon to study many of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics today.

Smith has won the prestigious Golden Plate Award from the American Academy of Achievement which honors people from all fields. The only other coaches to win the award have been Wooden, Bud Wilkinson, Bear Bryant, Joe Paterno and Tom Landry.

In addition, Smith has received honorary doctorates from Eastern College in Pennsylvania and Catawba College and in 1984 was cited by his alma mater, Kansas, receiving the Distinguished Service Citation. This honor is the highest KU can bestow upon an individual to acknowledge outstanding achievements for the betterment of society and in behalf of mankind.

In his spare time, Smith enjoys golf, tennis, music and reading. He has a special interest in theology.

Smith has five children. Daughters Sandy and Mrs. Sharon Kepley are Carolina graduates, as is son Scott. Smith also has two younger daughters, Kristen Caroline and Kelly Marie. In addition, he has two grandchildren, Drew and Megan Kepley. Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician.

Coach Smith's former players and coaches have gone on to great success in all forms of endeavors. Here Smith chats with former player John Kuester (1973-77), now the head coach at George Washington University. Twenty-five former players under Coach Smith are currently coaches and teachers in the prep, college and professional ranks.

Chief Assistant Coach Bill Guthridge

Bill Guthridge, undoubtedly one of the premier coaches in college basketball, is the chief assistant on Dean Smith's staff at the University of North Carolina.

Now in his 22nd season in Chapel Hill, Guthridge is involved in every aspect of the Tar Heel program. He has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of his profession—teaching, organizing, motivating and recruiting.

When a major college has a head coaching vacancy, Guthridge's name is usually mentioned even though he has indicated he does not want to leave Carolina. He has turned down several offers and has had his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

"Bill has made a decision to stay in Chapel Hill and not seek other head coaching positions," says Smith. "I personally feel he should have taken several of the excellent opportunities he has had, but he's decided that's not what he wants.

"By staying here, he has certainly given great stability to our program. He's one of the top coaches in America and I'm including head coaches as well as assistants. His record as an assistant, first at Kansas State, and then here, has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge graduated from Kansas State in 1960, and has been involved with great teams ever since. He played on three Wildcat teams which won Big Eight championships and has been a part of some of the greatest seasons in Tar Heel history.

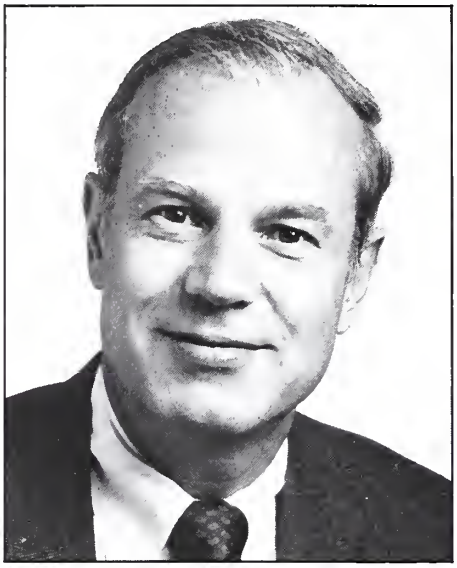
In fact, Guthridge has been to the NCAA's Final Four a total of eight times—six as a Carolina assistant, once as an assistant at Kansas State and once as a player at KSU.

The Tar Heels have been in a national post-season tournament every season since Guthridge first came to Chapel Hill in 1967. During the course of those 21 years, Carolina has finished as low as third in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings only once, has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament title 16 times, won the 1971 NIT and captured the NCAA championship in 1982.

Bill was also a key factor when the United States basketball team brought home the gold medal from the 1976 Summer Olympic Games. He and Georgetown's John Thompson, who coached the likes of J.R. Reid in this year's Olympics, served as assistants to Smith and also scouted the Americans' opponents.

In his time at Carolina, Guthridge has worked with both the team's offensive and defensive schemes. He currently is the Tar Heel shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina annually shoots better than 50 percent from the field. In fact, the Tar Heels have the best field goal percentage of any team in the country over the past two decades. And in the past five years, Carolina has been in the top four nationally in field goal percentage every year, including a school-record 55.9 percent in 1986.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who innovated the zone press in the 1930's.



Assistant Coach Bill Guthridge

At Kansas State, he helped the Wildcats win the Big Eight championship in 1958, 1959 and 1960. Based on his leadership, academic record and athletic accomplishments, he was chosen one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Guthridge coached at Scott City High School in Kansas for two years following his graduation, and then he returned to his alma mater as an assistant to Tex Winter. During his time on the KSU staff, the Wildcats posted a 93-43 record, swept two Big Eight titles and once advanced to the Final Four.

In his first six years at Carolina, Guthridge coached Tar Heel freshman and junior varsity teams. He had a 72-25 record and won the Big Four championship four times, an outstanding feat in those days.

Besides working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rican summer leagues twice. He once earned Coach-of-the-Year honors, and was invited to coach the 1968 Puerto Rican Olympic team.

Of course, Guthridge's greatest notoriety has come from his work at Carolina. And Smith gives him much of the credit for helping to develop the players who have kept Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation.

"Bill is highly respected by the players who have been through our program," says Smith. "He is sincere in his recruiting and I think that has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable, that it's the worst part of being a college coach," he says. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has had a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

Considered an excellent judge of talent at the high school level, Bill knows exactly whom to choose. Former Tar Heel star Bobby Jones is a prime example. He was a good high school player who developed into an outstanding collegian.

Guthridge, who got his B.S. in mathematics, has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at Carolina toward his Ph.D.

His excellent sense of humor also makes him one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie and Stuart, and a daughter, Megan.

Assistant Coach Phil Ford

Phil Ford, a three-time All-America point guard and 1978 National Player-of-the-Year at the University of North Carolina, joins the Tar Heel staff this season as an assistant coach.

Ford takes over the position left vacant by Roy Williams, who resigned last July to replace another former Carolina player, Larry Brown, as head coach at the University of Kansas.

Head Coach Dean Smith realigned his staff, allowing Ford and Randy Wiel to share the duties that Williams had handled. Ford, a native of Rocky Mount, N.C., has been designated as one of the three Tar Heel coaches who can go on the road recruiting. Wiel has teaching responsibilities at the University.

"We had a great number of our former players presently in basketball to consider for this position," Smith said at the time of Ford's appointment. "However, I had no idea Phil would be interested. But I am extremely excited he does want to be a college coach. His loyalty to the University, ability to meet people and intelligence make him a valuable addition to the staff."

Athletic Director John Swofford seconded Smith's comments. "Phil is a tremendous addition to our athletic program," he said.

Ford said he was looking forward to his new position.

"I've talked with the staff here in the past about coaching," he said. "But it's a dream come true to coach at my alma mater and a great thrill to work with Coach Smith. He has played a very important role in my life and there is no one better with whom I could begin my career.

Ford will always be known as one of the greatest basketball players in Carolina history. Recruited by all the ACC schools, Ford narrowed his choices to N.C. State and Carolina because they were near his home. He eventually chose Carolina because of his new boss, Coach Smith.

The 6-2 backcourt star played on Carolina teams which won 99 of 124 games and went to four NCAA basketball tournaments. He won the coveted John Wooden award as a senior and was also named National Player-of-the-Year in 1978 by the U.S. Basketball Writers, the National Association of Basketball Coaches and The Sporting News.

During his senior season, he became the leading scorer in Tar Heel history with 2,290 points, a record he still holds today. He perhaps saved the greatest performance of his career for his final game in Carmichael Auditorium, scoring a career-high 34 points against Duke in a game that gave Carolina the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship.

He also held the school's single-game, single-season and career assist records for close to a decade until Kenny Smith came to Chapel Hill. Smith broke Ford's season and career marks, but Phil's 14 in a game still stand as a Carolina record.

Assistant Coach Phil Ford

After freshmen became eligible to play varsity basketball in the 1972-73 season, Ford was the first freshman to start in his first game at Carolina under Smith. He capped that outstanding season by leading the Tar Heels to the ACC Tournament championship, while winning tournament MVP honors, He was the first freshman in ACC history to be so honored.

Ford won All-America honors at Carolina in 1976, 1977 and 1978. He was ACC Player-of-the-Year in 1978 and the ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1977 and 1978. Elected as co-captain, Ford started on the 1976 United States Olympic team which won the basketball gold medal in Montreal, playing on a team coached by present-day colleagues Dean Smith and Bill Guthridge.

Despite all his shooting and playmaking heroics, Ford was probably best known for his running of Carolina's famed four-corners offense. Time and again he ran that offense to perfection in the closing moments of a crucial game to lead Carolina to victory. His enthusiasm on and off the court for his teammates and the fans made him one of the most popular players in Carolina history, a fact not lost on Smith.

"People ask me why I play Phil so much," said Smith during Ford's senior season. "Well, all his cheering and jumping get in the way on the bench."

Ford was voted the National Basketball Association Rookie-of-the-Year in 1979 while playing for the Kansas City Kings. He spent four seasons with the Kings, one each with New Jersey and Milwaukee and two with Houston. In addition to gaining Rookie-of-the-Year honors with the Kings in 1979, Ford was also second team All-Pro that season.

Since leaving professional basketball, Ford has worked for North Carolina National Bank and for Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions. He had been named as color commentator for the new Charlotte Hornets NBA franchise, but resigned in order to accept the post at Carolina.

Ford has come a long way from his backyard basketball court in Rocky Mount, where he learned to play the game. The middle child of school teachers, Ford has a brother who is a doctor in Greensboro and a sister who teaches in Durham.

And his lamily has always been important to Phil. During his senior season, a reporter from the Washington Post asked him what he considered his greatest thrill.

"When someone tells my parents I'm a nice guy," he responded.

Ford added a new member to his immediate family this past July, when he married the former Traci Vample, a Salem College graduate and Durham, N.C. native.

One of the great collegiate players of all-time, Phil Ford quarterbacked the 1976 U.S. Olympic team which won back the gold medal in Montreal.

Head Junior Varsity Coach Randy Wiel

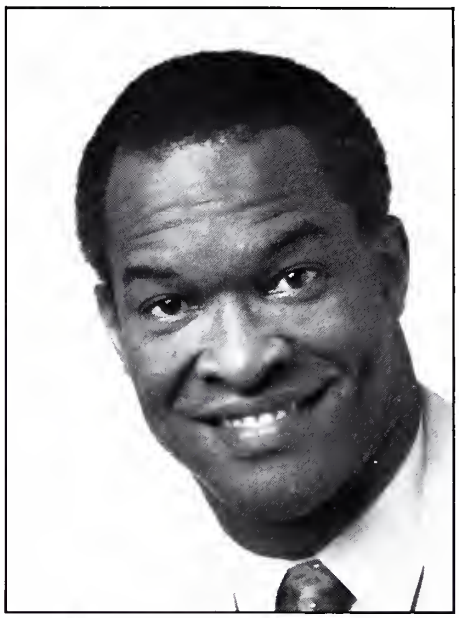
Randy Wiel, a former Tar Heel player and 1979 alumnus of the University, is an integral part of Coach Dean Smith's staff at the University of North Carolina.

Formerly a graduate assistant coach here, Wiel is in his third season as head junior varsity coach and varsity assistant. He and his former teammate Phil Ford have combined to handle many of Eddie Fogler's and Roy Williams' old responsibilities. Fogler left in 1986 to become the head coach at Wichita State and Williams resigned this past July to take the position left vacant by Larry Brown as the head coach at the University of Kansas.

A native of Curacao in the Netherlands Antilles, Wiel played on Carolina teams from 1975 to 1979, earning four letters.

He received his master's degree in education from North Carolina in 1986.

Wiel played professional basketball for six years in Europe after leaving Chapel Hill. In Holland, he was his league's Rookie-of-the-Year in 1980 and its Most Valuable Player in both 1981 and 1984. He twice led his league in scoring.



Assistant Coach Randy Wiel

Randy was also a member of the Dutch National Team for six years. An accomplished all-around athlete, he participated in the sprint events in track and swam competitively. He represented the Netherlands Antilles in the Pan American Games as a swimmer and in the Olympic Games as a track and field sprinter.

Wiel is also an accomplished linguist. He speaks six languages—his native Papiamentoe, English, Dutch, Spanish, French and Portuguese.

"As a player at Carolina, Randy always represented the University well," says Coach Dean Smith. "He's respected by everyone in our program and does a fine job with his new duties."

Wiel married the former Connie Hicks, a Carolina graduate in her own right, in the summer of 1986.

Administrative Assistant Dick Harp

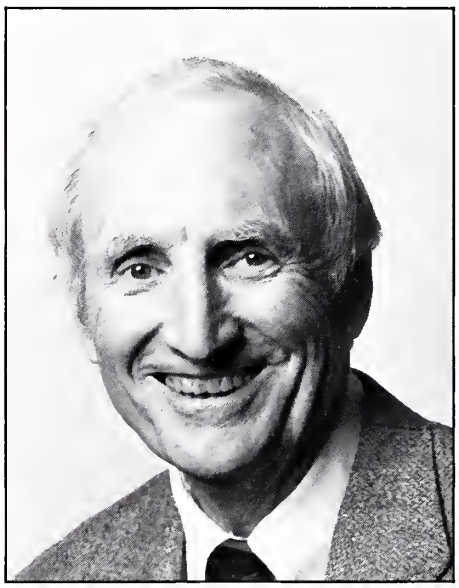
Dick Harp, former head coach at the University of Kansas, came to Chapel Hill in the summer of 1986 as an administrative assistant to Dean Smith.

The addition of Harp gave Smith a five-man staff for the first time in his nearly three decades at Carolina.

A Kansas graduate, Harp captained the 1940 Jayhawk team which lost to Indiana in the NCAA finals. He joined Phog Allen's coaching staff there in 1948 and was an assistant in 1952 when Kansas won the national championship and in 1953 when the Jayhawks were the NCAA runnerups. One of his players on both of those teams was Dean Smith.

Harp took over the head job at KU when Allen retired following the 1956 season. His first team was 24-3, losing the NCAA championship game to Carolina in triple overtime.

Harp resigned as head coach in 1964 to become the managing director of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. During his eight years at Kansas, he compiled a 121-82 record. He retired from the FCA as senior vice-president in 1983 and had been living in Kansas City when Smith coaxed him back into college athletics.



Administrative Assistant Dick Harp

"I'm delighted we've been able to attract Dick back to college basketball," says Smith. "He has one of the best basketball minds of anyone I've ever known. He certainly means a lot to our program as a teacher on the playing floor and as an administrator because of his experience running the FCA offices.

"When I played at Kansas, I know our entire squad held him in the highest regard. I'm sure the players on our teams here will gain a great deal from their relationship with him."

Harp and his wife, Martha Sue, have a son and three grandchildren.

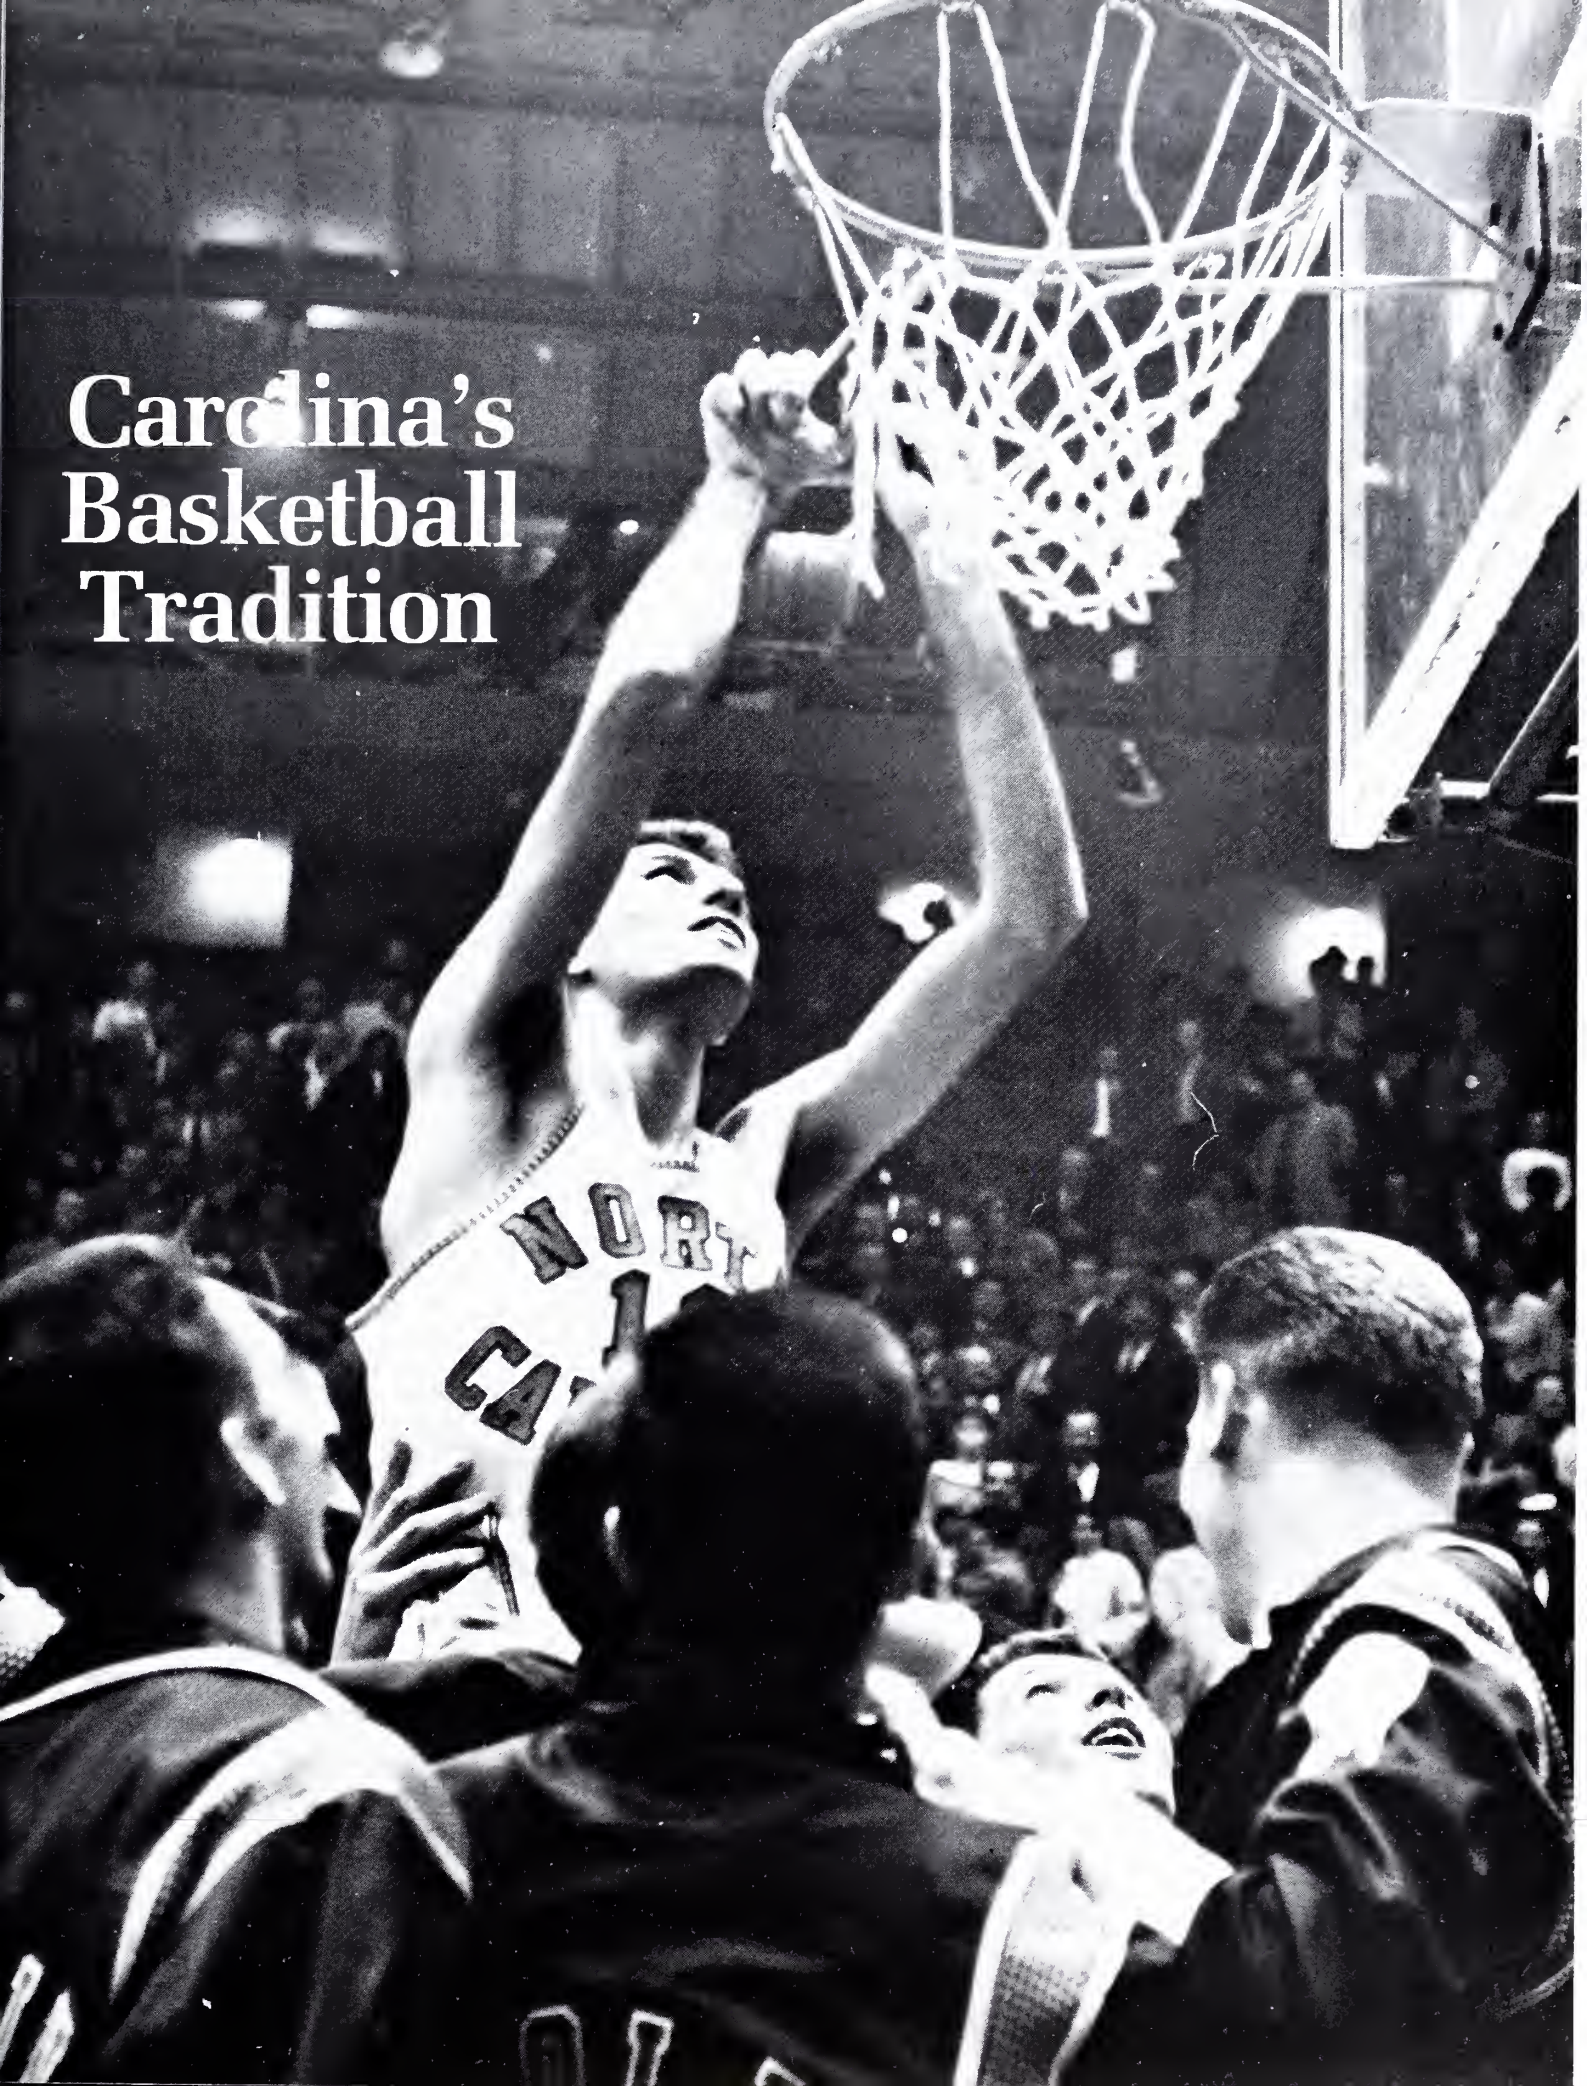
Carolina's Basketball Tradition



The History of Carolina Basketball

By Dave Lohse
Assistant Sports Information Director

The University of North Carolina has an illustrious and storied past which has helped make it one of the premier college basketball programs in the nation. From the marginal hoop fan to the basketball connoisseur, the name Tar Heels evokes memories of classic performances, stunning comebacks and thrilling victories.

Carolina's 78 seasons in the intercollegiate ranks have produced an overall record of 1,429-523, making the Tar Heels second only to Kentucky in number of victories. The Wildcats have won 1,453 games over an 85-season span to put them 24 games ahead of Carolina in the "W" column, but the Tar Heels have played seven less seasons than Kentucky. UNC and its bluegrass counterpart also sit atop the all-time winning percentage charts, with the Tar Heels having posted a sparkling .732 mark during the program's fabled past.

Only nine of the 77 Tar Heel teams have suffered through losing seasons and no Carolina coach has ever retired with a cumulative losing mark. The closest was Nat Cartmell who went 25-24 in 1911-14. From 1911 through 1952, the UNC program had 13 different head coaches. None stayed for more than six years. Since then, the program has had only two coaches—Frank McGuire for nine years and Dean Smith for 27. Each led Carolina to an NCAA championship.

The first UNC team played in 1911. It was part of physical education classes at the University, but student Marvin Ritch led the drive for an organized team. Nathaniel Cartmell, then UNC's track and field coach who was internationally known in his own right as a sprinter, coached that first team.

Carolina played its first game February 3, 1911, beating Virginia Christian 42-21. The team played its games in Bynum Gymnasium, now the site of the University cashier's office. Carolina went 7-4 that first season, playing the likes of Tennessee, the Woodberry Forest School of Virginia and the Durham and Charlotte YMCA's. At the time, a crowd of 50 spectators for a game was considered enormous.

Cartmell was to coach the Tar Heel cagers to a 25-24 record over his four seasons. His 1912 team was only 4-5, but several thousand fans came to see the Heels play Virginia A&M in the Raleigh Auditorium, a sign that interest in and support of the sport was growing.

In 1915, Charles Doak became the coach of the Tar Heels. His 1916 squad went 12-6, the best record in the first decade of the sport in Chapel Hill. Doak had been the baseball coach for Carolina before taking over the basketball duties.

In 1917, Carolina scored its first victory over then arch-rival Virginia in 13 tries, 35-24. That Tar Heel team was led by George Tennent, captain of both the 1917 and '18 Carolina squads. Luther Hodges, later to be governor of North Carolina, was a substitute on the 1917 team. Howell Peacock coached the Tar Heels for three seasons beginning in 1917 and racked up a 23-14 mark in that time.

In 1920, Fred Boye took over as head coach at Carolina. He stayed two years and compiled an 18-17 ledger.

The 1922 squad played without an official coach and went 14-6. Carolina went to Atlanta and swept the Southern Conference tournament, winning five games in five days. The Heels captured the final over Mercer, 40-25.

The basket proved to be the game-winner as Hoya guard Fred Brown threw an errant pass just seconds later to preserve the Tar Heels' second NCAA title, 63-62. (Photo by Al Steele)

The '22 squad was led by Cartwright "Cart" Carmichael, who was then a sophomore. He went on to be one of Carolina's all-time great players. He became UNC's first All-America in any sport in 1923 and '24 and he was an All-Southern Conference pick from '22 through '24.

The five-year period beginning in 1922 was actually a glorious one for Carolina despite the fact the Tar Heels played with no coach in 1922 and '23 and with three different coaches the following three years. Carolina went 93-14 in the five-year span and won four of five Southern Conference titles and the national championship in 1924.

The 1923 team set the stage for that magnificent '24 squad by going 15-1, losing a 34-32 thriller to Ole Miss in the Southern Conference tourney final.

The '24 team proved to be something else. Led by Jack "Spratt" Cobb, Carmichael and Bill Dodderer, it rolled to a 26-0 record and was named national champion by the Helms Foundation. Carolina's eight-man squad played for the first time in 1924 in the Indoor Athletic Center, better known as "The Tin Can." It stood on the site of what is now Fetzer Gymnasium.

Norman Shepard coached the Tar Heels in '24. It was his only season as Tar Heel mentor. He left the next year to pursue business ventures abroad. Carolina students waited at the telegraph office to hear the score of the Southern Conference championship game and when it was heard that UNC had beaten Alabama, 26-18, the celebration began with bells ringing at the Old South Building for an hour.

In 1925, Monk McDonald coached a Cobb-led Tar Heel squad to another Southern Conference,title and an 18-5 record. Harlan Sanborn coached the '26 squad to a 20-5 mark. That team was led by National Player-of-the-Year Cobb and Dodderer, an All-Southern choice from '24 through '26. Cobb, who averaged 15 points a game, unheard of in that day, was named an All-America for the third straight year. Thousands gathered in Memorial Hall to hear a telegraphic play-by-play of the Southern Conference championship game as Carolina downed Mississippi State, 37-23.

James Ashmore began an impressive five-year coaching stint with the Tar Heels in 1927. His teams were led by players like Billy Morris, Puny Harper and Bunn and Rufus Hackney. Ashmore's teams compiled a 79-37 mark in his tenure, but they never won a Southern Conference title, in fact never even reached the finals.

Norman Shepard's brother, George "Bo" Shepard, took over as coach in 1932. He brought Carolina back to national acclaim quickly. The "Charlotte Connection" provided many of the best players for UNC at that time because of the strong high school and YMCA programs in that part of the state.

Guard Tom Alexander and forward Virgil Weathers, both All-Southern choices, led the '32 team to a 16-5 mark, losing 26-24 in the Southern Conference final to Georgia.

After that '32 season, the Southern Conference lost 13 schools which went on to form what is now the Southeastern Conference.

There now were 10 schools remaining in the Southern Conference and the site of competition was changed to Raleigh.

In 1933, Shepard needed a big man for rebounding purposes and to control the jump after each score which was a part of the game at that time. He found his man in Jack Glace, who hadn't even made his high school squad. The Heels went 12-5 that season and lost a double overtime thriller to powerhouse South Carolina, 34-32, in the semifinals of the Southern Conference tourney. Late in the game as the Gamecocks were attempting a free throw, the officials called a technical foul on the "home" crowd for its behavior even though the game was being played 30 miles from Chapel Hill. The call is still questioned today but it helped the Gamecocks tie the score and send the game into overtime where they eventually won.

The 1934 Carolina team finished 18-4, losing to Duke in the Southern Conference tourney. Dave McCachren was the captain of that Carolina squad and was the first of four McCachren brothers to play at UNC from 1931 to '43. Each brother captained the Tar Heel team his senior year and each was elected president of the UNC athletic association. Besides Dave, there was Jim, who was probably the best of the four, being named All-Southern three times, as well as Bill and George, who was known by the nickname "Toad."

The 1935 team won the conference championship and compiled a gaudy 23-2 mark in Shepard's last year as head coach. After that season, Shepard stepped down because of health reasons and Walter Skidmore became head coach. Skidmore continued the winning ways in Chapel Hill, leading the 1936 team to a 21-4 record and the Southern Conference title. That 1936 unit was led by Pete Mullis and Andy Bershak, who was also an All-America end in football.

Carolina had good years in 1937 and '38, but failed to win the Southern Conference title either time. Then, in 1939, Carolina suffered its first losing campaign in 19 years and Skidmore stepped down as coach. He was replaced for the 1940 season by Bill Lange, then an assistant football coach under Ray Wolf.

The 1940 Carolina team proved to be a very good one. Led by George Glamack, who was nicknamed the "Blind Bomber," UNC went 23-3. The 6-6 junior from Johnstown, Pa., could barely see the basket because of impaired vision, but his foul line hook shot was lethal. Glamack became only the third player ever designated as National Player-of-the-Year by the Helms Foundation twice, both in 1940 and in '41. Glamack was also a two-time All-America for the Heels.

Other stars on those teams of the early 1940's were Paul Severin, a two-time All-America end in football, and Bob Rose, an All-Southern Conference player in 1941. Glamack averaged 20.6 points a game for the Tar Heels, an amazing statistic given the fact teams only scored in the 40's and 50's during that era.

As in other sports, the World War II years in basketball were crazy ones. The Carolina team lost many players to service obligations during this time—in fact, only one letterman was available for the 1943 team. In 1944, the Tar Heels played 11 contests against service teams. Lange stepped down as coach after the 1944 season and his five-year record was an impressive 85-41.

Ben Carnevale took over as head coach in 1945 and the Tar Heels motored to an outstanding 22-6 ledger and the Southern Conference championship. The star of that team was Jim Jordan, who was named an All-America that season.

The 1946 team was an outstanding one. Led by All-America John "Hook" Dillon, Jordan and 6-6 Horace "Bones" McKinney, it made it all the way to the NCAA championship game before losing to Oklahoma A&M 43-40. McKinney had left N.C. State to resume his post-World War II career at Carolina and he helped lead the Heels to a 30-5 mark. Carnevale left after the season was over to take the coaching job at the Naval Academy. He was replaced by Tom Scott.

At this time, basketball in the South was booming. North Carolina State was becoming a formidable rival and the Southern Conference Tournament was moved to Duke Indoor Stadium for additional seating.

Scott's first team, in 1947, was led by Jim Hamilton and Bob Paxton. It posted a 19-8 record and lost in the conference finals to N.C. State. Unfortunately, that would be the first of 15 successive losses to the Wolfpack.

Scott produced 20-win seasons in both '48 and '49, but lost thrice to N.C. State each year, including heartbreakers in the tournament. Coy Carson and Hugo Kappler both made All-Southern Conference in 1949.

The next three campaigns produced a trio of mediocre records and Scott resigned following the '52 season. He was replaced by Frank McGuire, a 38-year-old native of Greenwich Village in New York City. Formerly the coach at St. John's in Jamaica, N.Y., McGuire was successful at luring many outstanding New York basketball stars to Chapel Hill through his connections to the area, the first of whom was Jerry Vayda.

McGuire's first team, in 1953, proved to be a scrappy unit. It didn't have great talent, but it ended up 17-10 and beat N.C. State in Raleigh, breaking a six-year losing streak to the Pack. The next two years produced average records, 11-10 in 1954 and 10-11 a year later, but McGuire was building a foundation for future greatness. Lennie Rosenbluth, from New York City, debuted for the Tar Heels in 1955 as a sophomore and averaged 25.5 points per game.

In 1956, a great new class joined holdovers Rosenbluth, Vayda, Tony Radovich and Bob Young. The new sophomore class included Pete Brennan, Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg, Bob Cunningham and Roy Searcy. That '56 team went 18-5 setting the stage for what happened a year later.

In 1957, McGuire had a lineup that consisted of the 6-6 Brennan, 6-5 Rosenbluth and 6-9 Quigg on the front line with Cunningham and Kearns in the backcourt. En route to its 32-0 record, Carolina had to avoid a couple of close calls in the regular season against Duke and a double overtime contest versus Maryland. The closest call of all may have come in the ACC Tournament semifinals when the Heels edged Wake Forest 61-59. Once in the NCAA's, Carolina swept past three opponents to set up a meeting with Michigan State in the semifinals.

It took three overtimes, but Carolina finally vanquished the Spartans, 74-70. That set the stage for a showdown with Dick Harp's Kansas Jayhawks, led by the great Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlain. At Kansas City's old Municipal Auditorium, UNC needed another three overtimes to subdue KU, 54-53, on Quigg's two free throws with six seconds to play. Thousands turned out at the airport to welcome their conquering heroes home. Rosenbluth concluded his brilliant career by being named an All-America, All-ACC for the third straight year and the Helms National Player-of-the-Year.

In 1958, a Carolina team led by All-America and ACC Player-of-the-Year Brennan finished 19-7. Lee Shaffer and Dick Kepley, soon to be Carolina stars in their own right, joined the squad as sophomores. The 1959 team may have been McGuire's second best among his nine teams at UNC. Doug Moe, York Larese and Lou

Brown joined the team and Carolina finished 20-5, losing in the finals of the ACC Tournament and in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to Navy.

A year later, Carolina had another outstanding season under McGuire. The Heels finished 18-6 overall, losing to Duke in the ACC tourney. Shaffer was named a first team All-America that year.

The 1961 season produced a good team and a 19-4 record. It was the senior year for Moe, Larese and Kepley. Moe was an All-America that season and together with Larese, they were called the L&M twins. McGuire chose to accept an offer from the Philadelphia Warriors of the NBA at this time. His nine-season record at Carolina was a brilliant 164-58.

The man who stepped into the void was a native Kansan by the name of Dean Edwards Smith. He had been lured to Carolina a few years earlier from the Air Force Academy to be McGuire's assistant. He assumed the head coaching duties at age 30 and since has built a program that is a model for integrity and success in college athletics.

Coach Smith's first team in 1962 compiled an 8-9 record, his only losing season as a head coach. But his players did give him a victory in his first coaching outing, 80-46 over Virginia. It would prove to be a harbinger of things to come. After that victory, Smith said, "I've never been as scared in my life."

In 1963, Billy Cunningham, affectionately known as "The Kangaroo Kid," joined the varsity and became an immediate star. Averaging 22.7 points and 16 rebounds, he helped lead the Tar Heels to a 15-6 record. A year later, Cunningham was still awesome, but the Tar Heels' record dipped to 12-12. Help for the future arrived in highly-touted frosh Bob Lewis.

Lewis moved up to the varsity in '65 and with All-America Cunningham, the two combined for 46.4 points per game as Carolina went 15-9. Cunningham left Carolina as its all-time leader in rebounds and one of the most prolific rebounders in conference history. A two-time All-America and three-time All-ACC selection, he went on to a great professional playing and coaching career, mainly with the Philadelphia 76ers.

For 1966, Cunningham was gone, but Lewis was now joined by soon-to-be superstar Larry Miller. The Tar Heels moved out of Woollen Gymnasium and into 8,800-seat Carmichael Auditorium which would evolve into one of the most famous arenas in college basketball history. The '66 squad finished only 16-11, but it was obvious greatness was just around the corner.

The 1967 team proved to be Coach Smith's first truly great squad at Carolina. Lewis and Miller were joined on the varsity by sophomores like 6-11 Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Joe Brown. The season resulted in a 26-6 ledger and the Tar Heels finished third in the final Associated Press poll and fourth in United Press International. The '67 campaign marked the beginning of a string of three successive first-place finishes in the ACC regular-season standings, three straight ACC tourney titles and three consecutive NCAA East Regional championships for Smith and his troops. The '67 squad was characterized by an enthusiastic, gambling defense that has become a trademark of Smith teams.

Lewis graduated after '67, but the great Charlie Scott arrived to take his place in the Carolina lineup as the Heels prepared for the 1968 season. Scott was the first black player on the Carolina varsity and he started from the beginning of his sophomore year. The '68 team was an outstanding one and made it all the way to the NCAA finals before losing to UCLA and Lew Alcindor. The Heels' final record that year was 28-4, best yet under Smith's tutelage. Miller was All-America and All-ACC for the second straight year.

Heading into 1969, Miller was gone, but the remaining core of those great teams returned. Carolina went 27-5, won the ACC's for the third straight year and was again in the Final Four. Scott, Bunting, Clark and Grubar led that team as well as junior guard Eddie Fogler.

The 1970 squad entered that season decimated by graduation. The tremendous seniors of the year before—Bunting, Clark and Grubar—had graduated. Carolina finished 18-9 but was buoyed by the addition of sophomores Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain and Steve Previs, all solid players. Scott made All-ACC for the third consecutive year and first team All-America for the second. In his final home game, Scott left to a thunderous standing ovation when Smith took him out. The crowd chanted "We want Scott!" and Smith reinserted him in the lineup and of course, Scott responded with a basket. Carolina lost in the first round of the ACC Tournament that year and accepted an NIT bid. It would be the last time UNC failed to win 20 games in a season.

The 1971 team was not expected to do much in the pre-season ratings. But it rolled up a 26-6 record and won the ACC regular-season title and the NIT championship. Sophomore George Karl moved up to the varsity and formed a great backcourt with Previs. Wuycik was a first team All-ACC choice and Chamberlain the Most Valuable Player of the NIT.

Carolina returned to the Final Four in 1972 with a 26-5 record. Robert McAdoo, a junior college transfer, was outstanding for the Heels that year along with returnees Wuycik, Chamberlain, Karl and Previs. Sixth-man Bobby Jones, a 6-8 sophomore, showed great promise for the future. Carolina won the ACC regular-season and tournament titles before losing to Florida State in the NCAA Final Four. After the season, McAdoo declared himself eligible for the NBA draft.

Carolina returned to the NIT in 1973 and reached the semifinals after losing in the first round of the ACC Tournament. The 25-8 squad was led by the play of Karl and, in the first year freshmen were again eligible to play under NCAA rules, Mitch Kupchak showed signs of greatness inside.

The 1974 team was led by All-America and All-ACC player Jones. It compiled a 22-6 record and made a return trip to the NIT after losing to Maryland in the ACC semifinals. That team featured a freshman class of Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester, which would lead Carolina back to the Final Four three years later. The season will also be remembered for the memorable comeback the Tar Heels made against Duke in Carmichael Auditorium. Trailing by eight points with 17 seconds to play, the Heels rallied to tie the contest on a half-court shot by Davis as time expired. UNC went on to win in overtime, 96-92.

In 1975, the wonderous Phil Ford arrived on campus as a freshman and he had an immediate impact on Carolina basketball fortunes. He became the first freshman under Smith to start the first game of his freshman year, a feat since matched by Mike O'Koren, James Worthy, Michael Jordan, Kenny Smith, J.R. Reid, Pete Chilcutt and Rick Fox. As a frosh, Ford won the Everett Case Award as MVP of the ACC tourney as Carolina beat defending national champion N.C. State in the finals, 70-66. The Tar Heels had to survive overtime games with Wake Forest and Clemson in the first two rounds of the tourney just to get to the title game. Overall, that Carolina team finished 23-8 and was eliminated in the NCAA East Regional by Syracuse.

A year later, in Kupchak's senior year, the Tar Heels had one of their best teams ever under Smith, but it was undone by injuries and bad luck at season's end. First team All-Americas Kupchak and Ford led UNC to a 25-4 mark and a 13-1 ACC slate. But Carolina was upset in the ACC finals by Virginia and then lost to Alabama in the first round of the NCAA's with Ford hurt.

That summer, however, Carolina would mine Olympic gold in Montreal in a big way as Kupchak, LaGarde, Ford and Davis would all play on the victorious U.S. squad which was coached by Smith and his Carolina assistant, Bill Guthridge.

The 1977 campaign marked a return to the Final Four for the first time in five years as UNC posted a 28-5 mark. A mid-season knee injury to LaGarde ended his career early and then Davis broke his thumb in the ACC tourney semifinals. Led by Kuester, the Tar Heels persevered and beat Virginia in the tournament finals. Carolina used its up-tempo style to perfection in conjunction with the four corners offense in scoring NCAA wins over Purdue, Notre Dame, Kentucky and UNLV. All were of the comeback variety save the win over the Wildcats. Ford was hurt in the Notre Dame game and played the remainder of the tourney at less than 100 percent. After freshman O'Koren helped the Heels into the finals with 31 against Vegas, the Tar Heels fell to Marquette, 67-59, in the championship contest.

In what is now regarded as one of the greatest comebacks in college basketball history, Walter Davis nails a 35-foot bomb to send the 1974 Duke game into overtime. The miracle shot culminated a Tar Heel eight-point barrage in the final 17 seconds of regulation, and the inspired Carolina crew marched on to a 96-92 victory.

The 1978 team had to play minus LaGarde, Davis and Kuester—no easy task. It was Ford's senior year and the Rocky Mount, N.C., native would be tapped for National Player-of-the-Year honors as UNC went 23-8. In an emotional Carmichael farewell, Ford scored a career-high 34 as UNC beat Duke 87-83 to clinch first place in the regular-season standings over the Blue Devils. Losses to Wake Forest in the ACC Tournament and San Francisco in the NCAA Tournament would dampen Tar Heel spirits, but couldn't diminish the greatness of Ford, a three-time All-America and Carolina's all-time leading scorer.

The 1979 squad was not picked highly in the pre-season but won Smith ACC and National Coach-of-the-Year honors after finishing 23-6. O'Koren, senior defensive wizard Dudley Bradley and sophomore sharpshooter Al Wood led this squad. During the regular season, UNC beat eventual national champion Michigan State and scored an infamous 70-69 win at N.C. State on Bradley's last-second steal and dunk.

Carolina tied for the regular-season championship with Duke and beat the Blue Devils 71-63 in the ACC tourney finals. The season ended in frustration with an upset loss to Penn in the NCAA's, and Bradley went on to the pros.

The 1980 squad was led by a senior class which featured O'Koren, a first team All-America in 1979 and 1980. The Heels finished 21-8, losing to Duke in the ACC semifinals and to Texas A&M in the NCAA's.

The 1981 team would start a string of eight straight Carolina teams that have won a minimum of 27 games. Led by Wood and Worthy, UNC finished 29-8 in 1981 and won the ACC Tournament and reached the Final Four where it beat conference foe Virginia in the semifinals behind Wood's 39 points. Two days later, Indiana beat the Tar Heels for the national championship.

But that only set the stage for a 1982 squad which won it all. Pre-season rated #1, the Tar Heels finished the regular season that way and went on to win the NCAA championship. The squad's 32-2 record equalled the school record for victories in a season as the Tar Heels swept through the ACC Tournament and the East Regional. There were countless heroes on the '82 team. Worthy was co-National Player-of-the-Year and he scored a career-high 28 points in Carolina's 63-62 win over Georgetown in the finals. Sam Perkins was a first team All-America and was joined in the lineup by point guard Jimmy Black, forward Matt Doherty and freshman Michael Jordan. Jordan hit the 17-foot jump shot with 17 seconds left to give the Heels the winning points against the Hoyas.

Worthy was drafted after his junior year by the Los Angeles Lakers, but the 1983 squad returned a strong nucleus led by Perkins and Jordan, both of whom were first team All-Americas that year with Jordan earning some National Player-of-the-Year recognition. The Heels finished 28-8 after an 0-2 start and were ranked #1 in the nation during several weeks in January and February. After tying for the ACC regular-season title, the Heels made it to the finals of the East Regional before being upset by Georgia. Possibly the highlight of that season was a 16-point comeback victory over Virginia in Carmichael in February in a battle of the nation's two top-ranked teams.

In 1984, Smith had one of his best teams before it fell victim to the injury bug. At 28-3, the Heels became only the sixth team in ACC history to go through the conference round-robin undefeated at 14-0. Jordan was a consensus National Player-of-the-Year and Perkins was All-ACC and first team All-America for the third straight year. Point guard Kenny Smith had his wrist broken in the LSU game and he never fully recovered, hurting Carolina in the post-season.

The 1985 team was another one of Smith's overachieving squads. Ignored in the pre-season Top 20's for the first time in memory, UNC went 27-9 minus Perkins and Jordan and finished tied for first in the ACC regular season. Junior Brad Daugherty and Smith spearheaded that team to the finals of the NCAA Southeast Regional before losing to eventual national champion Villanova.

The 1986 unit, led by first team All-America Daugherty, produced another outstanding campaign. The Tar Heels finished 28-6, but were decimated in the post-season by injuries to Steve Hale, Warren Martin and Joe Wolf. For the second straight year, Carolina was ousted from the NCAA Tournament by the eventual national champion, Louisville.

The 1987 squad proved to be another one of Smith's best. Led by a strong senior nucleus which featured All-ACC players Smith and Wolf, UNC tied the school record for victories in a season with 32 in a 32-4 campaign. For the second time in four years, UNC finished the ACC regular season undefeated at 14-0. Ranked second and third in the final wire service polls, UNC advanced to the NCAA East Regional finals before falling to Syracuse, 79-75. Smith capped a brilliant career as UNC's all-time leader in assists by being named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times.

Going into the 1988 season, many experts saw the Tar Heels as an inexperienced bunch that might struggle a little bit more than previous UNC squads. But yet again, Smith assembled a fine Carolina team and coached it to a 27-7 record and a berth in the NCAA Tournament, where the Tar Heels fought their way to the West Regional finals in Seattle behind the play of All-America sophomore forward J.R. Reid. En route to the post-season appearance, the young Carolina team opened the season with a thrilling come-from-behind victory over top-ranked Syracuse in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic in Springfield, Mass., setting the tone for another great season in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels captured the regular-season ACC crown for a second consecutive year and went on to defeat North Texas, Loyola Marymount and Michigan in the NCAA's before succumbing to a loaded Arizona squad, 70-52, in a battle for a spot in the Final Four.

Carolina players raise their arms in jubilation as the Tar Heels celebrate a 90-79 win over N.C. State in January of 1986. The game marked the end of the Carmichael Auditorium era, during which UNC teams posted a 169-20 home record in 21 years. (Photo by Larry Childress)

Carolina's Greatest Players

There's a saying that a team is only as good as its players, and in the University of North Carolina's glorious basketball history, that adage could not be more true.

From National Players-of-the-Year and Olympians to scoring champions and defensive standouts, Carolina's teams have been laced with many heroes of the hardwood. A complete list of all the Tar Heel heroes and their exploits would fill up books and, in fact, has done so. But for the purpose of this guide, a briefer history is necessary.

Carolina's basketball history dates back to 1911 when the sport was first played in Chapel Hill. Since that time, Carolina has won 1,429 basketball games. Only the University of Kentucky, which has played seven more seasons than the Tar Heels, has won more than that. The Wildcat total is 1,453 wins or, just 24 more victories in seven more seasons.

The key link to all this success over the years has been the players. Carolina has always had its fair share of outstanding players.

The Tar Heels' first great success in basketball came in the 1920's. The 1922 team won the Southern Conference championship and the 1923 squad captured the South Atlantic title. Those teams had no regular coaches, but were simply taken to the games by Coaches Bob and Bill Fetzer, experts in almost every sport but basketball.

Norman Shepard was then hired to handle the basketball program in 1924 and promptly led the Tar Heels to a 26-0 record. Carolina won the Southern Conference championship and was declared national champion by the Helms Foundation.

That team featured three truly outstanding players—Cartwright Carmichael, Jack Cobb and Monk McDonald. While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars ever.

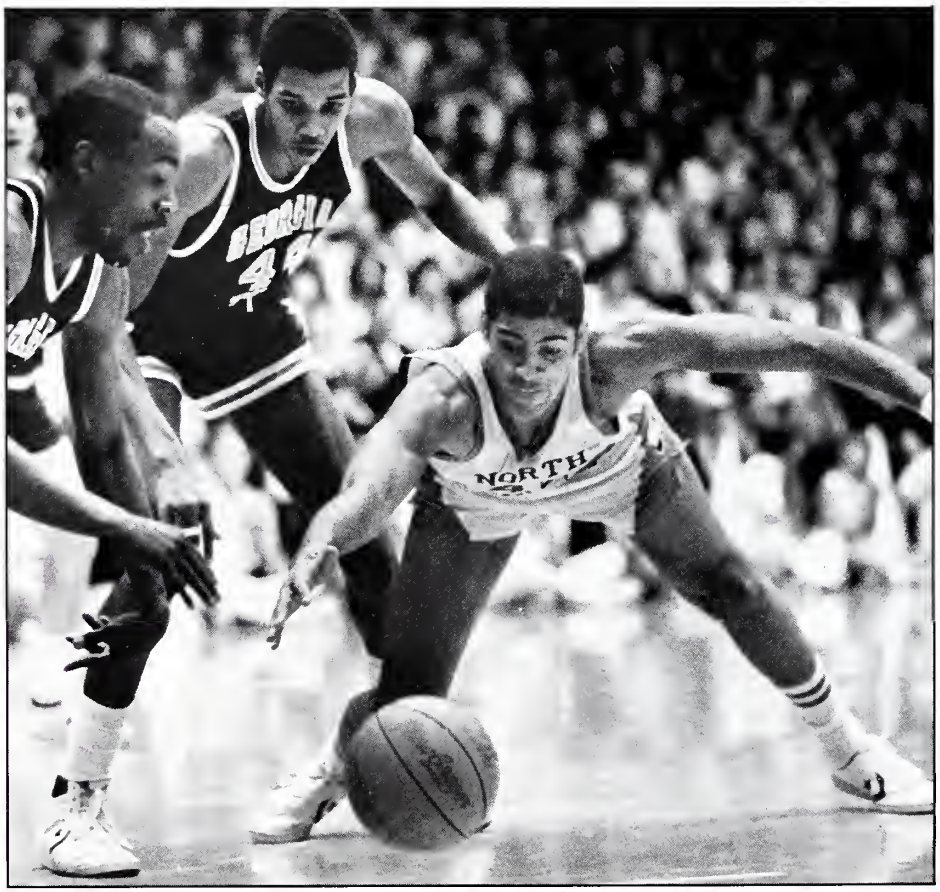
Cobb is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. He was a three-time All-America and the Helms National Player-of-the-Year in 1926. At a time when most teams were barely scoring 30 points a game, he averaged 15 as a senior. Carmichael was twice named All-America and McDonald was an all-conference performer.

Although the Tar Heels did not have an All-America like Cobb or Carmichael in the 1930's, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the All-Southern Conference team during that decade.

The big star of the early 1940's was George Glamack—"the Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing right under it. However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which he shot with either hand and with great accuracy. He was a two-time All-America and Helms National Player-of-the-Year in 1940 and 1941. He's now in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the key figure on the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A&M and big Bob Kurland in the NCAA finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan, in fact, had been an All-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Nicknamed "The Kangaroo Kid" for his incredible leaping ability, Billy Cunningham was a two-time All-America and three-time All-ACC choice as well as being UNC's second all-time leading rebounder.



Center Brad Daugherty was an outstanding inside force for Carolina, establishing a school record for career field goal accuracy and being chosen as the first player in the 1986 NBA draft.

An outstanding professional player with the Phoenix Suns and now the Denver Nuggets, Walter Davis, nicknamed "Sweet D," was an instrumental part of the Tar Heels' drive to the NCAA Final Four in 1977.

Eleven years later, the Tar Heels again reached the national championship game. This time they won the NCAA title, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas, 54-53, in a triple-overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever played.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He averaged a school-record 28.0 points a game and was named National Player-of-the-Year. Other starters on that unforgettable team were Pete Brennan (an All-America the following season), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham. It was Quigg who hit two free throws with six seconds on the clock in the third overtime to win the final game in that 32-0 season.

The stars were many during the 1960's. Big Lee Shaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player-of-the-Year in 1960. Shaffer was a great scorer and later was an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals.

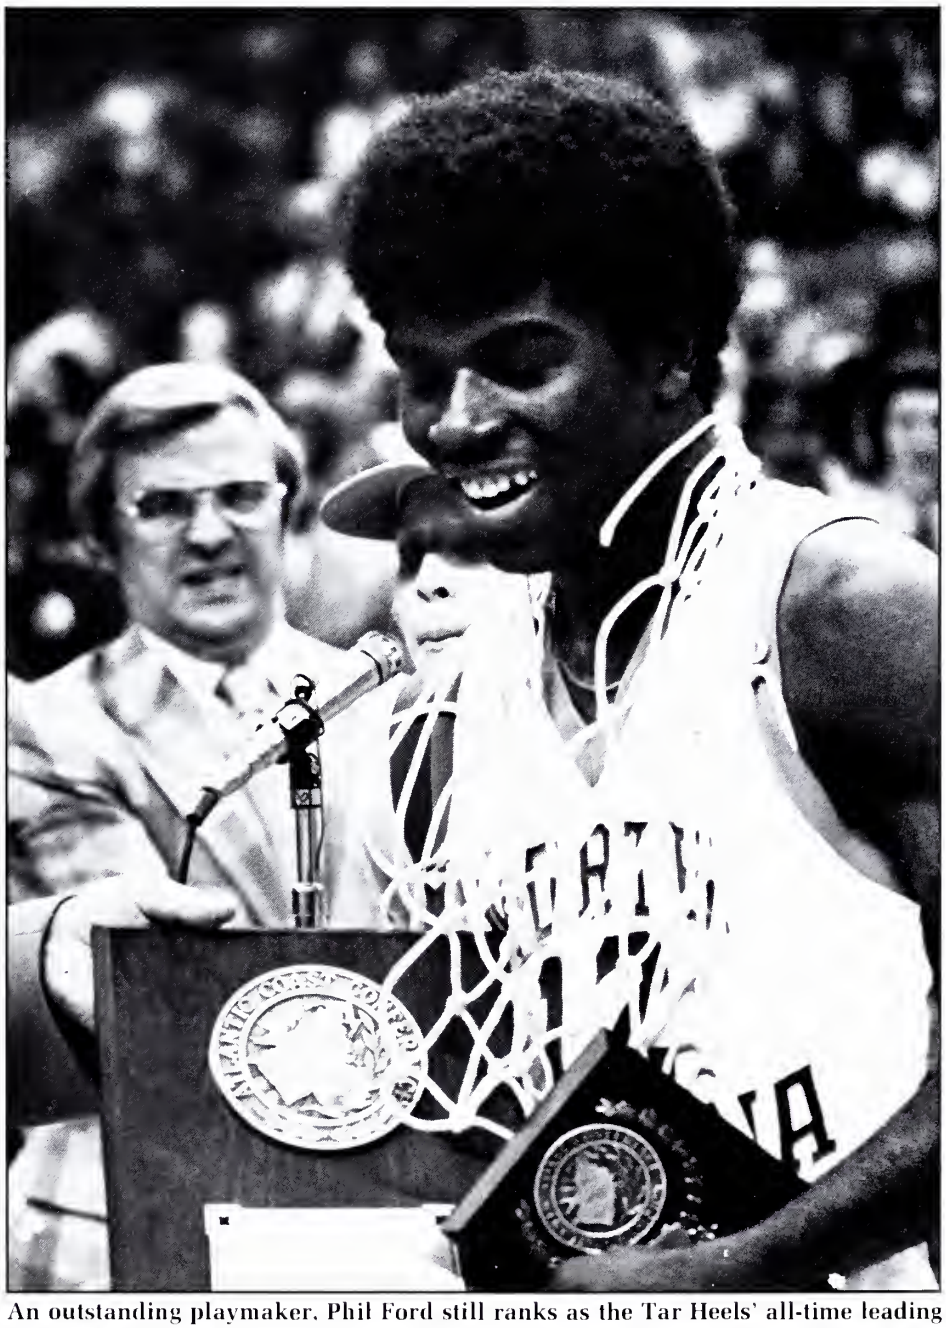
York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of that decade. Larese ranks as one of the greatest free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now coaches in the NBA.

A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a diminutive guard who rates as one of Carolina's finest playmakers. Brown played on the 1964 U.S. Olympic team that won the gold medal.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time All-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina scene. He made All-America in 1964 and '65. Only 6-5½, he led the conference in rebounding three times and in scoring twice. The "Kangaroo Kid" went on to have a great professional career with the Philadelphia 76ers and he later coached that team.

Bobby Lewis, a slender sharpshooter from Washington, D.C., followed Cunningham into the Tar Heel spotlight. He still holds the Carolina single-game scoring record with 49 points against Florida State in 1965.

Next came Larry Miller, an All-America in 1967 and '68. He led his team to the national finals where the Tar Heels lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA in 1968.



An outstanding playmaker, Phil Ford still ranks as the Tar Heels' all-time leading scorer. In 1975, he became the first freshman in ACC history to be named the Most Valuable Player of the ACC Tournament. (Photo by Garren Lobraico)

Miller twice was named the ACC Player-of-the-Year. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving layups and a great variety of shots.

Bill Bunting, Rusty Clark and Dick Grubar were starters on Carolina teams which won three straight ACC regular-season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals in a row and went to the Final Four in 1967, 1968 and 1969.

Bunting had a great senior season and made All-ACC. Grubar was one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina Blue and was an outstanding playmaker and defender. Clark was a tough defensive player and a great rebounder.

Then there was Charlie Scott, who excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his junior and senior seasons and was voted ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1970. In 1968, he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games, leading the U.S. to the gold medal.

Three fine frontcourt players—Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the 1971 National Invitation Tournament as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and an aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. That trio led the Tar Heels to the NCAA's Final Four in 1972.

Another All-ACC performer in that period was George Karl, a three-year starter and a highly popular player. He amazed fans with his daring plays and his propensity for diving on the court after loose balls.

One of the most complete players in the college game was Bobby Jones. Jones had great quickness and was a superb defender. He retired from the NBA three years ago after an outstanding career.

Another great all-around player was Mitch Kupchak, the 1976 ACC Player-of-the-Year. Kupchak led the Tar Heels to a 25-4 record in his senior season and later played a key role in the Washington Bullets' 1978 NBA championship sweep and the Los Angeles Lakers' 1985 NBA title drive.

Then came Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester. They played on Carolina teams which won 98 games and lost only 23. All three were excellent defensive players and good shooters.

Davis, in fact, is regarded as one of the greatest clutch players in Tar Heel history. He's a former NBA Rookie-of-the-Year and an all-pro performer. Kuester was the Most Valuable Player in both the ACC Tournament and the Eastern Regionals as a senior. LaGarde was an All-America whose mid-season knee injury may have cost the Tar Heels the national championship in 1977.

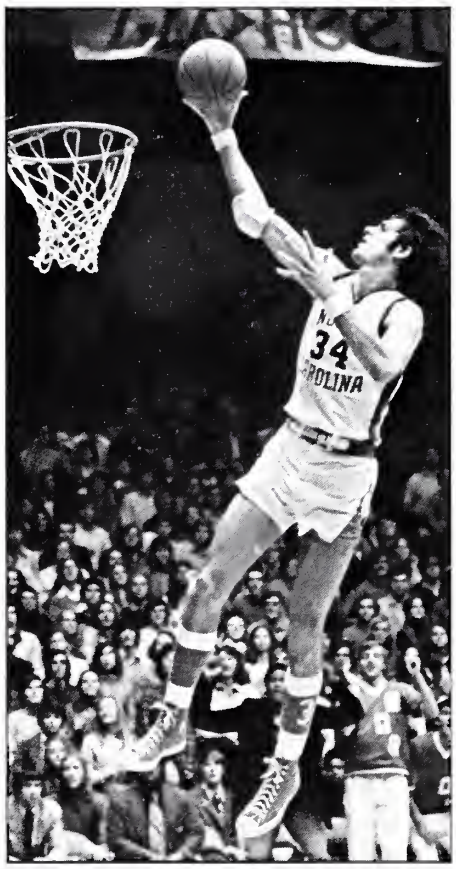
And, of course, there was Phil Ford. He was National Player-of-the-Year in 1978 and is the all-time Carolina leader in scoring and second in assists. He has been called the greatest guard ever to play the college game. Phil also won NBA Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1979.

One of the best defensive players at Carolina, or anywhere else for that matter, was Dudley Bradley. A first-round pro draft choice, Bradley was the MVP of the 1979 ACC Tournament.

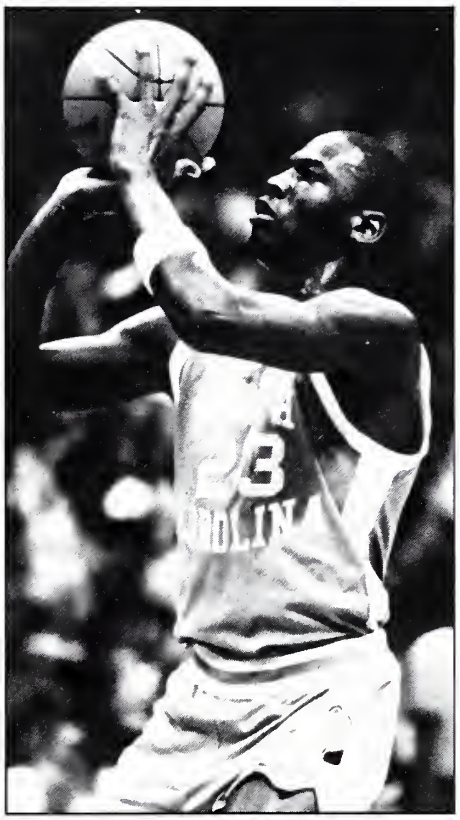
The next big stars were a trio of dynamic forwards—Mike O'Koren, Al Wood and James Worthy. O'Koren was the sixth player chosen in the 1980 NBA draft after putting together a brilliant Carolina career. He ranks among the school's all-time leaders in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Wood capped a sensational four years by leading the Tar Heels to the 1981 NCAA championship game. He set an NCAA semifinal-round record with 39 points against Virginia in the national semifinals. Always a great shooter, Wood developed into a complete player at Carolina. He was the first senior selected in the NBA draft in 1981.

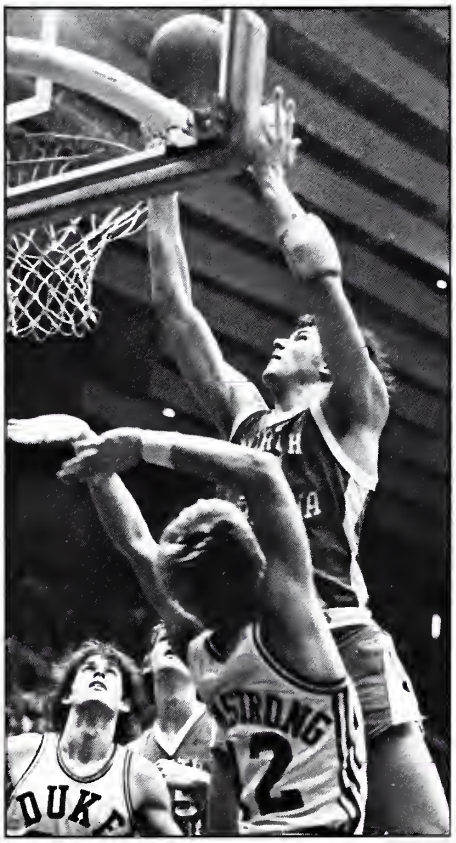
Worthy was named Co-National



One of the greatest defenders ever at Carolina and in the history of the NBA, Bobby Jones was also a deadly accurate shooter who ranks second at UNC in career field goal accuracy.

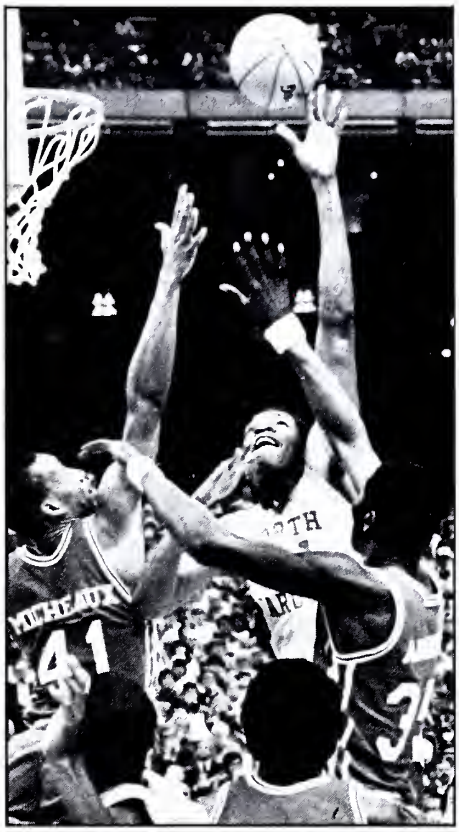


The most dynamic player currently in the NBA, Michael Jordan earned National Player-of-the-Year honors at Carolina twice. His jump shot late in the 1982 NCAA championship game lifted UNC to a one-point win over Georgetown.



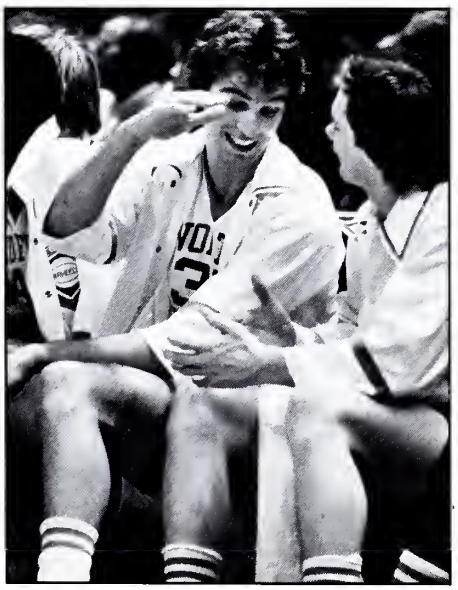
Now the assistant general manager of the Los Angeles Lakers, Mitch Kupchak, played on two NBA championship teams after a stellar career with Carolina. In 1976, he was named the ACC Player-of-the-Year. (Photo by Lurlene Sather)

Larry Miller led the Tar Heels to a pair of NCAA Final Fours in the 1960's. He was twice named ACC Player-of-the-Year and is one of only two players in league history to win the MVP award at the ACC tourney twice.



Carolina's all-time leading rebounder and its second leading scorer, Sam Perkins was a three-time first team All-America selection, a 1984 Olympian and MVP of the ACC Tournament as a freshman. He helped lead UNC to the national championship in 1982. (Photo by Al Steele)

Player-of-the-Year with Ralph Sampson in 1982 after leading the Tar Heels to a 32-2 record and the NCAA championship. Worthy saved perhaps the greatest performance of his career for the stretch drive that year, being named MVP in the ACC Tournament, the Eastern Regionals and the Final Four. He had a career-high 28 points against Georgetown in the NCAA Finals and was the first player selected in the 1982 NBA draft by the Los Angeles Lakers.



The sixth player chosen in the 1980 NBA draft, Mike O'Koren was a versatile, all-around forward who still ranks highly on Tar Heel career scoring, rebounding and assists lists.

Another key player on that 1982 team was Jimmy Black. As the senior point guard, Black quarterbacked the Tar Heels through one of the school's greatest seasons. He has the third-highest all-time assist total at the school and ended his career as an outstanding defensive player.

Other starters on that national championship team were Matt Doherty, Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan. Doherty was a perfect role player for the Tar Heels. Whatever needed to be done, he was capable of doing it—whether that meant a big defensive play, an important basket or a perfectly executed pass. He and Davis are two of just three ACC players who finished their careers with 1,000 points, 400 rebounds and 400 assists.

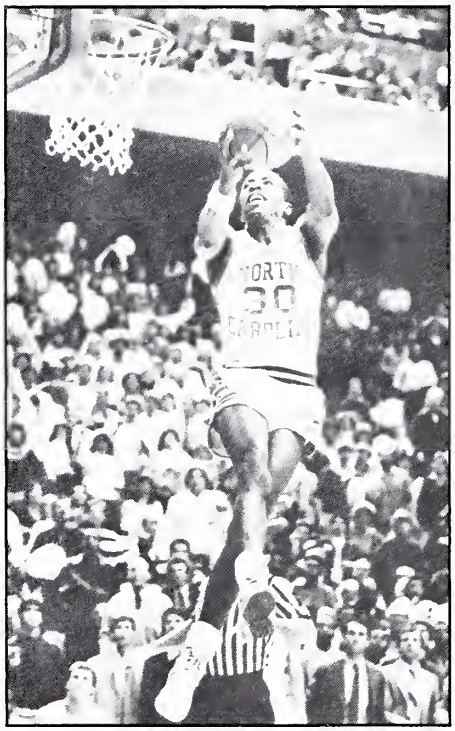
Perkins ranks as Carolina's second-leading all-time scorer and is the top rebounder in school history. A brilliant defensive player, he was one of the biggest stars on the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team in Los Angeles. But, that was to be expected. Perkins always seemed to be at his best in the biggest games. Some of his top performances at Carolina came against opponents with names like Sampson, Tisdale, Olajuwon and Ewing.

Jordan was the unanimous 1984 National Player-of-the-Year after being named the country's top player in 1983

The National Player-of-the-Year in 1957, Lennie Rosenbluth was a three-time All-ACC selection and he still possesses the highest per game scoring average in Tar Heel history. He was the leader of the unbeaten 1957 NCAA championship team.

A remarkable athlete who was both a great scorer and defender, Charlie Scott was on the 1968 U.S. Olympic team as well as being a two-time first-team All-America at Carolina and ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1970.

The man who keyed Carolina's run to the 1982 NCAA title, forward James Worthy was named Most Valuable Player in the '82 ACC Tournament, Eastern Regionals and Final Four. He had a career high 28 points versus Georgetown in the 1982 NCAA title game.



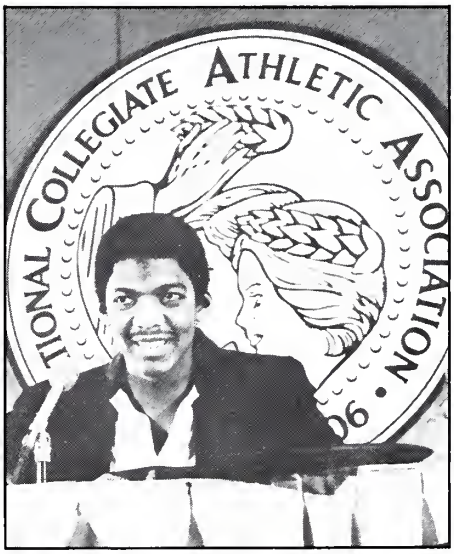
Carolina's Kenny Smith was the playmaking point guard who led Carolina to a 32-4 record in 1987. He quarterbacked three ACC regular-season championship teams at UNC and is the Tar Heels' career leader in assists.

by The Sporting News. A 6-6 guard, Jordan was capable of dominating a game both offensively and defensively. It was his jump shot with 17 seconds to play which gave the Tar Heels the winning points in the 1982 NCAA Finals. He followed that up with more last-minute heroics during his next two seasons, and was the leading scorer on the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team. He then won NBA Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1985, leading the league in total points scored.

The number one pick in 1986's NBA draft was Brad Daugherty, who had an outstanding four-year career in Chapel Hill. Daugherty left Carolina as the school's fourth-leading all-time rebounder and seventh-leading scorer. A great inside scoring threat, he broke Bobby Jones' career field goal accuracy mark with a percentage of 61.99.

The 1987 Carolina squad tied a school record for victories in a season while going 32-4. The leaders of that squad were a pair of seniors who were both selected in the first round of 1987's NBA draft. Kenny Smith was named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times that year, capping a brilliant Tar Heel career that saw him finish as UNC's career leader in assists. Joe Wolf was the consummate role player—a great shooter and passer and one of Carolina's best defensive players ever.

Smith and Wolf are just the latest in a long line of outstanding athletes who have helped make the Carolina basketball program what it is today—the best in the college game.



A brilliant shooter and strong defender, Al Wood registered one of the greatest NCAA Tournament performances ever when he pumped in a semifinal-record 39 points to oust Virginia in the 1981 NCAA Final Four.

The Facts & Figures of Carolina Basketball

Consistency. It's the mark of true excellence in any sport.

However, the game of college basketball is so balanced and so competitive today that it's virtually impossible to maintain any level of consistency, let alone a high level of excellence. The expanded NCAA tournament allows for so many teams to be invited to post-season play, success can almost be determined by the flip of a coin.

Yet, the University of North Carolina has defied the odds. The Tar Heels have maintained one of the strongest programs in the nation, year in and year out. And that is not mere conjecture. The numbers support it. When assessing NCAA Tournament victories, final poll finishes and strength of schedule, UNC's program ranks at the very top.

And that's not just athletically, but academically also. One of the best universities in the nation, Carolina has a tradition of academic excellence. The University was ranked 11th nationally (tied with Rice and MIT) in a 1987 U.S. News and World Report survey.

And, at a time when college athletics is continually bombarded with scandals and probations, the Tar Heel basketball program serves as an excellent example of how a major athletic program in an academic environment should be run. The Tar Heels have proven that athletic success does not have to come at the sacrifice of academic excellence, and that integrity and honesty will always be the best policy.

Adhering to that credo from their first basketball game in 1911 to the present day, the Tar Heels have maintained a tradition of excellence which is virtually unparalleled in any sport.

And here are the numbers to prove it.

1,429—Number of all-time wins for the UNC basketball team (553 losses). Second only to Kentucky's 1,453, even though the Wildcats have played for seven more years.

518—How many games UNC has won in the past 20 seasons (versus 121 losses)—most in the country.

81.7%—Winning percentage of UNC over those same 20 seasons. Also the highest in the country.

252—How many games the Tar Heels have won in this decade (55 losses). Once again, best in the land. Also, UNC's 23 NCAA wins in the 1980's rank as the top figure in the country.

82.1—Carolina's winning percentage in the 1980's. Yes, best in the nation.

8—Number of times UNC has appeared in the final Top 10 of both the AP and UPI polls in the last eight years. The Tar Heels have been in the Top 10 of one of the polls in 14 of the last 15 years.

14—Consecutive appearances in the NCAA tournament for the Tar Heels (an NCAA record and still counting).

22—Post-season tournament appearances by the Tar Heels in the past 22 years.

8—(again)—Number of successive times UNC has made it to the Sweet 16 in the NCAA Tournament in the last eight years. Out of 65 different teams to make it to the Sweet 16 during that time, Kentucky and Louisville are second, having made five trips each.

23—Number of NCAA Tournament games the Tar Heels have won in the 1980's—more than any other team in the nation during that time. Georgetown is second with 22 wins.

20—Refers to victories—magic number for measuring success in a college basketball season.

18—Number of consecutive times Dean Smith's teams have equaled or bettered that aforementioned mark, an NCAA record for successive 20-win campaigns.

8—(yet again)—Number of consecutive years Dean Smith's teams have won 27 or more games (still active).

16—Number of times Dean Smith's teams have won 25 games or more, a feat accomplished by no other coach in history.

11—Number of times John Wooden's UCLA teams won 25 games or more.

32—The most games a Dean Smith team has won. It's been done twice, in 1982 and 1987.

9—Number of times UNC has made it to the Final Four. Second only to UCLA's 13 trips.

21—Number of times UNC has finished first or second in the ACC in the last 22 years. In 1986, Carolina was third in the ACC, but eighth in the country.

9-5—UNC's worst conference record in the past eight years—still, it tied the Tar Heels for the regular-season title in 1985. In fact, 9-5 is the worst conference record Carolina has compiled in the last 22 seasons.

6—In the past six years, UNC is the only team in the ACC not to have a losing season in conference play. In fact, the last time Carolina had a losing ACC season was 24 years ago.

82-16—UNC's ACC record over the past seven years.

53-45—The second-best ACC record over the past seven years, by Virginia.

0—The number of non-winning seasons Carolina has had in ACC play in the 1980's. Maryland is second with four.

26—Number of different UNC players who have been first team All-Americas. (Latest - J.R. Reid, 1988).

7—Number of National Players-of-the-Year who have attended UNC.

26—Number of consecutive years that UNC has had at least one player be named first team All-ACC.

97.6—Really the most important, and also the most impressive of all of these statistics—percentage of UNC basketball lettermen under Dean Smith who have earned their college degree (164 of 168).

Despite all those numbers, all those accomplishments, all that tradition, perhaps Carolina's most amazing feats have come in the ACC, continually one of the most powerful leagues in the country.

"Carolina is always there," said former Duke All-America guard Johnny Dawkins in 1986. "State had it's run, but Carolina was right there. Maryland did the same thing. Duke, Virginia, Tech—they all had their moments, but Carolina was always there. They've been great every year. They cast a shadow over the league."

The numbers support Dawkins' assertion.

Over the past 22 seasons, Carolina has virtually owned the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Tar Heels have finished first in the regular-season standings 15 times in that time span, including 11 outright championships and four shared titles.

The Tar Heels have won 78.4% of their league games in the past 22 years for a total of 229 victories. That's more than 60 wins ahead of second place N.C. State's 158.

In just the past seven years, the Tar Heels have gone 82-16 in the ACC, almost 30 games ahead of Virginia's second-best 53-45 record. That's an average of more than four conference games a year ahead of the rest of the pack.

When Carolina went 14-0 in ACC regular-season play in 1987, it was the second time in four years that the Tar Heels had gone undefeated in league play. It was only the seventh time that had happened in ACC history. Dean Smith is also the only coach to have more than one team go unbeaten in ACC play.

Carolina has finished first in the ACC race a total of 20 times, 12 times more than any other school in the league. The Tar Heels have also won 10 ACC Tournament championships, tied for the most in conference history. Smith has won nine of those, five more than any other ACC coach in history.

Since the inception of the conference in 1953, ACC teams have made 19 trips to the Final Four. UNC has been responsible for eight of those national showcase appearances.

And of course, all of this success helps fuel the enthusiasm for any opponent, making it even more determined in its efforts. Carolina is always the biggest game on a team's schedule, making UNC's accomplishments even more amazing.

But Carolina's conference success is just the beginning. Carolina's tradition of excellence has led to its development as a national powerhouse, becoming the standard by which other programs are compared.

While Kentucky enters the 1988-89 season with 24 more victories than the Tar Heels on the all-time winning list, the Wildcats have been playing for seven more seasons than Carolina. The two teams are also first and second in winning percentage in college basketball history.

Carolina's national prominence is reflected best in the fact that it has finished in the Top 10 of at least one of the major wire service polls in 18 of the last 22 seasons. Other fans would be ecstatic if their team finished in the Top 10. In Chapel Hill, the fans expect nothing less.

Carolina is also one of only six schools to have won both an NCAA championship and the National Invitation Tournament title. The Tar Heels won the NCAA championship in 1957 and 1982, and swept to the NIT title in 1971 when that tournament annually included some of the nation's best teams, long before the days of the expanded NCAA Tournament. UNC was also voted national champion in 1924 with an unblemished 26-0 record. UNC also finished atop both wire service polls at season's end in 1957, 1982 and 1984.

Carolina has won 46 NCAA tournament games in 22 post-season appearances, third only behind UCLA (56 wins, 23 appearances) and Kentucky (54 wins, 33 appearances), and has won eight regional titles, seven of them in the Eastern Regional.

Coach Smith's 39 NCAA tournament wins is second only to UCLA's John Wooden (47) in all-time triumphs. Kentucky's Adolph Rupp ranks third with 30.

Just last season, Carolina made an NCAA record 14th consecutive appearance in the NCAA tournament, breaking the record of 13 it had shared with UCLA. UNC's streak would be longer except that for many years (through 1974) only one team from every conference was invited to the NCAA tournament. During the early 1970's, UNC's only post-season invitation possibility some years was to the NIT, which it went to in 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974. In between, an outstanding 1972 UNC team won the ACC regular season and tournament titles and went on to the Final Four.

No freshman class since 1963 has missed a post-season tournament at Carolina, and only five classes have failed to go to the Final Four since then.

Even though the class of 1988 was one of those to miss a Final Four appearance, what it accomplished elsewhere was still quite noteworthy. In four seasons, that group played on Tar Heel teams which went 114-26, including 44-12 in the ACC, for an overall winning percentage of .814.

The 1988 squad also set NCAA tournament records with 123 points and a shooting percentage of 79.0 in a sizzling performance against a 26-3 Loyola Marymount team in the second round of the West Regional.

And, the Tar Heels shot 53.5% for the year, marking the 18th consecutive time that UNC has shot at least 51 percent from the floor for the season.

Although the Tar Heels have gained a lot of notoriety for the four corners offense they have used late in some games, they actually rank as one of the nation's highest-scoring teams in recent years. Carolina runs one of the best fast breaks in college basketball and has averaged 81.9 points a game since 1967.

However, the key to Carolina's success may be its changing man-to-man defenses. The Tar Heels mix their innovative and gambling scramble defense with their more conservative pressure man-to-man. Well, that's conservative for the Tar Heels. Those who have played against it certainly would not call it that.

In fact, Carolina's defense is so effective it actually helps the offense. Steals and easy layups have accounted for many Tar Heel points over the years. That's one of the reasons why Carolina has the best shooting percentage in the nation over the last 21 years, and holds the ACC season record for shooting percentage, with a 55.9 percent in 1986.

Of course, part of the Tar Heel shooting success is simply the discipline, maturity and unselfishness of the Carolina players in selecting only the best shots. In fact, Carolina is often criticized for passing too much in an attempt to find a good shot.

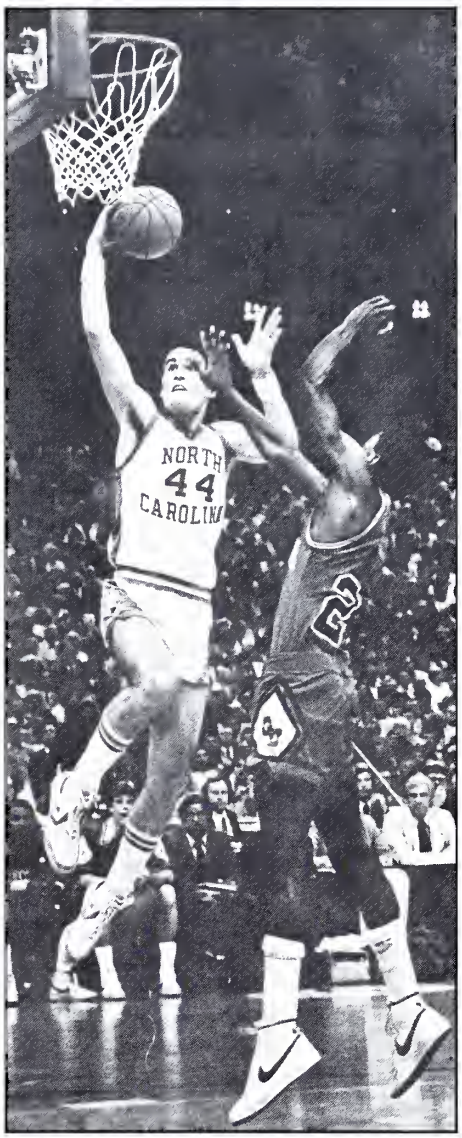
Many people refer to basketball as a "tournament sport," and the Tar Heels have excelled in that department. Including the NCAA and NIT tournaments, the Tar Heels have won no less than 58 tournament championships. Carolina has played in such prestigious regular-season tournaments as the Holiday Festival in New York City, the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu, the Sugar Bowl Classic in New Orleans, the Great Alaska Shootout in Anchorage and the Far West Classic in Portland.

Carolina has had at least one player on each of the last seven U.S. Olympic basketball teams—Larry Brown in 1964; Charlie Scott in 1968; Bobby Jones in 1972; Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Walter Davis and Phil Ford in 1976; Al Wood in 1980; Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan in 1984; and J.R. Reid in 1988.

There have been dozens of All-Americas at Carolina. Nineteen of them have played in the Dean Smith Era alone—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford, Mike O'Koren, Al Wood, James Worthy, Sam Perkins, Michael Jordan, Brad Daugherty, Kenny Smith and J.R. Reid.

In the past 12 years, Carolina players have been named consensus first team All-Americas nine times. No other school in the nation has had that many first team selections in that period.

And, when Kenny Smith was named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times in 1987, it marked the ninth time a Tar Heel player has been so honored. Earlier in this decade, James Worthy won the honor in 1982 and Michael Jordan did the same in both 1983 and 1984. Other Tar Heels who have been chosen the best player in the country were Jack Cobb in 1926, George Glamack in 1940 and '41, Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957 and Phil Ford in 1978.



Carolina's incredible basketball success is supported by the numbers. Whether it's the program's 58 tournament championships or the 164 (of 168) lettermen who have graduated under Coach Dean Smith's guidance, Carolina basketball projects the best in college athletics. Matt Doherty (1981-84) is the perfect manifestation of that success. Now a broker on Wall Street, Doherty was a starter on UNC's 1982 NCAA championship team which beat Georgetown in the finals. In 1986, Carolina moved into the new 21,444-seat Smith Center to play its games. The construction of the building was necessary because it was impossible to handle ticket demands in 10,000-seat Carmichael Auditorium. The new arena, already being called the best in college basketball, allows over twice as many students to get into games. Members of the Educational Foundation, who had contributed large amounts of money to the University for several years but still could not get a seat in Carmichael, now have an opportunity to watch the Tar Heels play. The new building cost $34 million and was constructed entirely through private donations.

Most regular-season Tar Heel games are televised. At least five Carolina games will be broadcast nationally on network television this year, with many more being transmitted across the country by ESPN and the USA Network. In fact, only five of a possible 40 games Carolina could play in 1988-89 will not be televised.

Carolina is also legendary in its production of successful professional basketball players. Thirty-three players have gone on to the professional ranks since Dean Smith became head coach, including such NBA luminaries as Michael Jordan, James Worthy and Brad Daugherty.

However, equipped with college degrees, many other Smith graduates have gone on to become doctors, lawyers, coaches, military officers and businessmen.

Perhaps Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino summed up the Carolina basketball program as succinctly as possible during the 1985 NCAA Southeast Regionals in Birmingham, Ala.

"North Carolina has a great team and a great tradition," commented the coach. "North Carolina is what college basketball is all about, academically and athletically."

And if you don't believe him, then judge for yourself.

It's all in the numbers.

The figures don't lie.

Tar Heels in International Competition

From Moscow to Mexico City, from London to Seoul, University of North Carolina basketball players have traveled to the four corners of the globe over the past three decades showcasing their talents and, in many instances, leading the United States to unforgettable wins in international competition.

Tar Heels stars, while household names in American sports circles, have also gained fame abroad entertaining millions of fans worldwide with their sparkling brand of play.

It has practically become a summertime tradition.

Carolina players seem to adjust with relative ease to the slightly different rules and more physical play of the international game. The playmaking wizadry of a Phil Ford, for example, or the eye-popping dunks of a Michael Jordan, were just as amazing to Brazilians and Spaniards as they were to Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.

The most recent foray by a Tar Heel player into the international game came this past summer when J.R. Reid played on the U.S. team which won the bronze medal in the Olympic Games at Seoul, Korea.

Just the summer before, in 1987, Jeff Lebo earned a spot on the U.S. roster playing in the Pan American Games in Indianapolis, where he and his teammates earned a silver medal. Scott Williams also got a taste of international play that year as a member of the U.S. squad which played in the Junior World Cup in Italy.

However, it has been in the Olympic Games, the world's most prestigious athletic gathering, where Carolina's basketball program has received the most international acclaim.

In fact, the last seven U.S. Olympic teams have included at least one Tar Heel each. Beginning with Larry Brown, who played on the 1964 gold medal-winning team in Tokyo, a total of 11 Carolina players have been honored as Olympians. Even coach Dean Smith and his assistant Bill Guthridge have been involved, guiding the 1976 U.S. squad to the gold medal in Montreal. That championship team included four Tar Heels—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. Smith has remained an important figure in international play, serving on numerous Olympic-related committees. Those have included selection committees for both players and coaches for various international events.

Jordan strung together two incredible weeks at the 1984 Summer Games held in Los Angeles. A two-time National Player-of-the-Year, he led the U.S. in scoring (17.1 ppg)—and in rave reviews.

Jordan, of course, wasn't the only Tar Heel to win critical acclaim in Los Angeles. Sam Perkins may not have been as spectacular as Jordan, but his play was nonetheless brilliant and his consistency unmatched.

Before the Games began, Jordan and Perkins were named U.S. co-captains. Their accomplishments in leading the U.S. to an eight-game sweep of the gold medal proved them more than worthy of that honor. Despite the high scoring average, it was Jordan's mid-air magic that so often left opponents standing flat-footed, staring at him in disbelief.

His long jumpers and acrobatic moves thrilled the fans, delighted the news media and awed opposing coaches.

"Today he showed me nothing incredible," Spanish coach Antonio Diaz-Miguel said after his team fell to the U.S. "He is always the same. He comes in there like an airplane. I don't know how he remains in the air while everyone else is going down. He is elastic."

But Jordan's own teammates and coaches were probably more impressed with him than anyone.

"I'm not sure anyone who watches the Olympics will be able to appreciate Jordan as much as our coaches and players do in practice," said George Raveling, a U.S. assistant coach in the '84 games. "One day, here in L.A., he made a move to the basket that just stunned the players. (Patrick) Ewing looked at (Wayman) Tisdale and just shook his head. He couldn't believe it."

Jordan was at his best in the first of two games versus Spain. He scored 24 points, sinking the last nine shots from the floor to finish 12 of 14. His steal and 35-foot jumper at the halftime buzzer game the Americans a 46-41 lead. The U.S. blitzed the Spaniards in the second half to win, 101-68.

Perkins scored more than eight points a game and was America's third-leading rebounder during the Los Angeles fortnight. His inside defense was also outstanding.

Perhaps no one appreciated Perkins' talent more than U.S. head coach Bobby Knight, who repeatedly praised the three-time All-America. "Give me players like Sam Perkins," Knight said, "and I'll coach forever."

To no one's surprise, Jordan and Perkins were the American heroes in the gold medal game. Facing Spain for the second time, the U.S. romped, 96-65. Jordan scored 20 points on nine of 15 shooting, while Perkins had 12 points and seven rebounds.

Carolina's tradition of Olympic excellence, of course, had begun 20 years earlier with backcourt star Larry Brown. Charlie Scott represented the Tar Heels in 1968, when the U.S. swept to the title in Mexico City, and Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team, which settled for the silver medal amidst great controversy in Munich.

As a result of that disputed loss to the Soviet Union, there was tremendous pressure on the U.S. to recapture the gold in the 1976 games. The Americans desperately needed the title to reestablish this nation's international basketball superiority.

That task fell upon the shoulders of Coach Dean Smith and his top aide at Carolina, Bill Guthridge. The four Tar Heels featured on the roster each played key roles in leading the Americans to a six-game sweep of the coveted gold.

With Coach Smith stressing aggressive defense and an unselfish offense, the U.S. routed Italy in the opening game. The Americans next encountered a fired-up Puerto Rican team, but managed to avoid an upset thanks to Ford's clutch free-throw shooting in the final moments. The U.S. rolled into the finals by beating Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Canada. In the championship, the U.S. defeated the Yugoslavs to reclaim the gold medal.

Because of the Olympic boycott, the U.S. did not compete in the 1980 Games in Moscow. Still, Carolina's Al Wood starred on the American squad which compiled a 5-1 record against professional teams in a series of exhibition games held across the country.

When the world again gathered in Seoul this past summer for the 1988 Olympic games, J.R. Reid played an important reserve role for Coach John Thompson's squad. His best performance by far came against the Brazilians in the United States' third game.

With starting big men Danny Manning and David Robinson in early foul trouble, Reid came off the bench to dominate the Americans' offensive effort. During one stretch, he scored six points in a row and eight of his team's 10. Reid finished with 16 points, hitting seven of 11 shots on the way to a convincing 102-87 win over the Brazilian squad which had beaten the U.S. in the 1987 Pan American Games finals.

But the 1988 squad was not fortunate enough to win the gold medal in Seoul. After losing to the Soviets in a semifinal game, the U.S. came back to beat Australia for the bronze.

But Olympic achievements alone do not fully explain why Carolina has had such a strong impact on international basketball. There have been plenty of other outstanding performances.

The Tar Heels have been represented in the last five Pan American Games. Robert McAdoo played on the 1971 U.S. team, while Tommy LaGarde starred for the 1975 squad. Mike O'Koren co-captained the 1979 team that won the gold medal in Puerto Rico.

Perkins and Jordan teamed up in 1983, leading the U.S. to the title in Caracas, Venezuela. Perkins was regarded as the most consistent American player in that tournament. Jordan keyed a couple of comeback victories with last-second heroics that Tar Heel fans became so accustomed to during his three years in Chapel Hill. Lebo made it five Pan Ams in a row for Carolina players with his selection in 1987.

One year before his Pan American performances, O'Koren was a starting forward for the U.S. in Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow. LaGarde journeyed into the Soviet Union as well as a member of the Continental Cup team in 1975. That team also played games in Greece, Yugoslavia and other areas of Europe.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971. In the summer of 1973, a Soviet national team came to America to meet a U.S. all-star team. Carolina's George Karl and Bobby Jones both played instrumental roles in that series. Later that summer, Karl became one of the first Americans in decades to visit Mainland China. He was on a U.S. team that played there and, again, he was outstanding.

Three Tar Heels have won gold medals at the World University Games—Billy Cunningham at Budapest in 1965, Larry Miller at Tokyo in 1967 and Kupchak at Moscow in 1973.

The summer after he helped Carolina win the 1982 NCAA championship, Jordan toured Europe on a U.S. all-star team. In 1983, Matt Doherty played on the U.S. Select Team in Southeast Asia. During that same summer, Steve Hale played in Europe with a team sponsored by Athletes in Action. Two Tar Heels, Brad Daugherty in 1984, and Joe Wolf in 1985, have represented the U.S. in the William Jones Cup Tournament in Taiwan. Both played on teams which went 9-0 and won the championship there.

Carolina's success across the seas, though, is more than a collection of fine individual efforts. On five occasions, the entire Tar Heel team has ventured to Europe for tournament competition.

In 1971, Carolina visited Madrid, Spain, for the International Christmas Tournament. In claiming the championship, the Tar Heels swept past Brazil, Spain and Real Madrid, the European champion. The game was televised across Europe, and Carolina responded with a brilliant all-around performance.

Smith took his team back to Madrid for the same tournament in 1974, but this time the Tar Heels were not as fortunate, falling to a veteran Real Madrid club in the championship. Carolina did spring a major surprise, however, defeating the powerful Cuban National team on a remarkable half-court shot at the buzzer by Walter Davis.

London was the destination in 1979, as the Tar Heels entered their third international Christmas tournament of the decade. Prior to the 1984 season, Carolina visited Greece and won four games against teams from Italy and the host nation. A Perkins steal that led to a final-second shot by Jordan clinched one win. Perkins, Jordan and Buzz Peterson were named to the all-tournament team.

The Tar Heels returned to England last season for the World Invitation Club Tournament, beating the Great Britain national team in the championship round. Reid led the way for Coach Smith's squad with 24 points. The hometown hero, however, didn't play for the home team. Carolina's Steve Bucknall, a London native, scored 18 points in the Tar Heels' 87-79 victory.

Many Carolina players have gone on to successful pro basketball careers in Europe. Doug Moe accomplished the most, three times earning European Player-of-the-Year accolades. Other Tar Heels who have played professionally in Europe inclue Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, John O'Donnell, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley, Tom Zaliagiris, Geff Crompton, Randy Wiel, Jeff Wolf, Rich Yonakor, Pete Budko, Tommy LaGarde, John Virgil, Chris Brust, Jeb Barlow, Steve Hale, Warren Martin, Robert McAdoo and Dave Popson.

It seems that Carolina's outstanding basketball tradition, so well-documented in the U.S., has virtually become a global affair.

The Carolina bench explodes as Charlie Scott's long jumper at the buzzer goes through the net to give Carolina an 87-85 victory over Davidson in the finals of the 1969 East Regional at College Park, Md. The win sent the Tar Heels to their third consecutive NCAA Final Four.

The Dean E. Smith Center

The Dean E. Smith Center

By Deana Nail

The Dean E. Smith Center is the showplace of stars.

A first-class concert facility with tremendous acoustics, Smith Center has attracted top musical entertainment such as Bruce Springsteen, Whitney Houston, Lionel Richie, James Taylor and Genesis.

But, the biggest stars to play in Smith Center are those who wear Carolina Blue and White. Since playing its first game on the Smith Center court—a January 18, 1986, 95-92 win over Duke—the University of North Carolina has a home court record of 28-3 heading into the 1988-89 campaign.

While playing in the 21,444-seat basketball palace, Carolina has outscored opponents 2,708 to 2,224, a margin of almost 500 points. No opponent has ever scored more than 92 points in a game at Smith Center, while the Tar Heels have scored more than 100 points on three occasions. In December 1986, Carolina poured in 122 points against Miami (Fla.) to set the mark for most points scored in Smith Center. In February 1987, the Tar Heels pounded East Tennessee State, 118-65, a 53-point win which is the largest margin of victory at Smith Center.

A 300,000-square-foot arena, Smith Center itself is as impressive as those numerous Carolina wins. Financed entirely through private donations and built at a cost of $33.8 million, Smith Center is a tribute to a nationally-acclaimed basketball program and to the man who has guided it since 1961, Dean Edwards Smith.

In 1980, the University, Carolina Athletic Department and Educational Foundation, UNC's athletic fund-raising organization, embarked on the greatest fund-raising campaign in the history of intercollegiate athletics. Six years later, 2,362 people had donated anything from $1 to $1 million each. As a result, Smith Center and Koury Natatorium, one of the nation's finest and fastest swimming facilities, stood on a 7½-acre tract behind Hinton James Dormitory on Carolina's South campus.

Construction actually began August 1, 1982, when the first of 20,000 cubic yards of rock were removed to make room for Smith Center's foundation. Workers then poured more than 18,500 cubic yards of concrete into the massive hole and began the meticulous process of building the octagon-shaped structure. Once completed, Smith Center stood 340 feet by 380 feet and contained 1,800 tons of structural steel.

Despite its great size, Smith Center is a gentle giant nestled comfortably among thousands of trees and plants. The center's tan color allows it to blend with the natural landscape, thus preserving the beauty of the wooded area.

Smith Center's interior matches, or perhaps exceeds, its majestic exterior. On the center's second level, wooden parquet floors lead to the athletic administration, basketball, sports information and ticket offices. Across from the ticket office, 12-foot-high glass doors lead to the University's Memorabilia Room, a mini-museum that contains artifacts and highlight tapes of some of the greatest moments in Carolina's rich athletic history.

The first level contains the finest in locker room and training facilities. Along with a basketball team locker room and lounge, there are six recreational locker rooms and two swimming team locker rooms. The first level also houses a state-of-the-art training room and a weight room complete with Nautilus, Universal and free weights.

A hallway connects the first level with Koury Natatorium, home to a 50-meter, eight-lane Olympic-sized swimming pool. Site of United States Olympic Festival-'87 swimming and water polo competition and the 1989 men's and women's Atlantic Coast Conference championships and the 1989 U.S. Swimming Short Course National Championships, this world-class facility also houses the Educational Foundation offices and the Skipper Bowles Room, a 7,000-square-foot room used for pre-game and post-game receptions and other functions.

But, the main attraction of the Smith Center complex is the arena itself. A 1,200-foot-long, 22-foot-wide concourse, naturally lighted through tinted glass, winds around the arena to provide easy access to both upper and lower seating areas.

Besides the 9,000 seats in the lower level, there are approximately 12,500 upper level seats, all of which are chair seats that face midcourt and are located no more than 150 feet from the arena floor.

The basketball floor is just one of the many technological advancements found inside Smith Center. This Spring-Aire floor, one of only two in the nation, is a permanent maple floor installed on hundreds of arched metal springs. The springs are placed every 16 inches in one direction and every three feet in the other. Layers of wood—a 4×4 wooden beam, a one-inch layer of plywood and then maple planks—are placed on top of the springs.

This intricate network of springs and wood gives the floor a resilience that helps reduce ankle and knee injuries. When sufficient weight is exerted on the playing surface, the floor gives up to one-eighth of an inch, thus reducing stress on the ankles and knees.

Other technologically advanced features include four scoreboards, a state-of-the-art sound system and computer-controlled lighting. Smith Center also features two 29-foot-long electronic message centers that flash words and pictures in various colors. Another space-age feature, the center's 350,000-watt sound system, has one main cluster, 14 satellite clusters and 146 small speakers mounted beneath the lip of the upper deck to eliminate any dead spots that may occur where the upper and lower levels overlap. This personal speaker system enhances sound at basketball games and the many Smith Center concerts.

Without question, Smith Center is one of the nation's finest sports arenas. Site of the first and second rounds of the 1988 NCAA East Regionals, Smith Center has also hosted USOF-'87 basketball and gymnastics competition. The record for the largest crowd to see any Smith Center event was set July 22, 1987, when 23,713 people attended the USOF-'87 gold medal men's basketball game.

Ralph Routon, executive sports editor of the Colorado Springs Gazette Telegraph, was one of the many present during that historic gold medal game. After reflecting on the competition and his visit to Smith Center, Routon wrote, "Being in this business takes one to all kinds of special places in sport: Notre Dame, West Point, Annapolis, stadiums and arenas charmed by history or tradition, halls of fame and great golf courses.

"Most of those meccas induce major goose bumps and even watery eyes on occasion. But, none of the hallowed ground fully prepared this enthusiast to cope with what he has seen for the first time at the 1987 Olympic Festival.

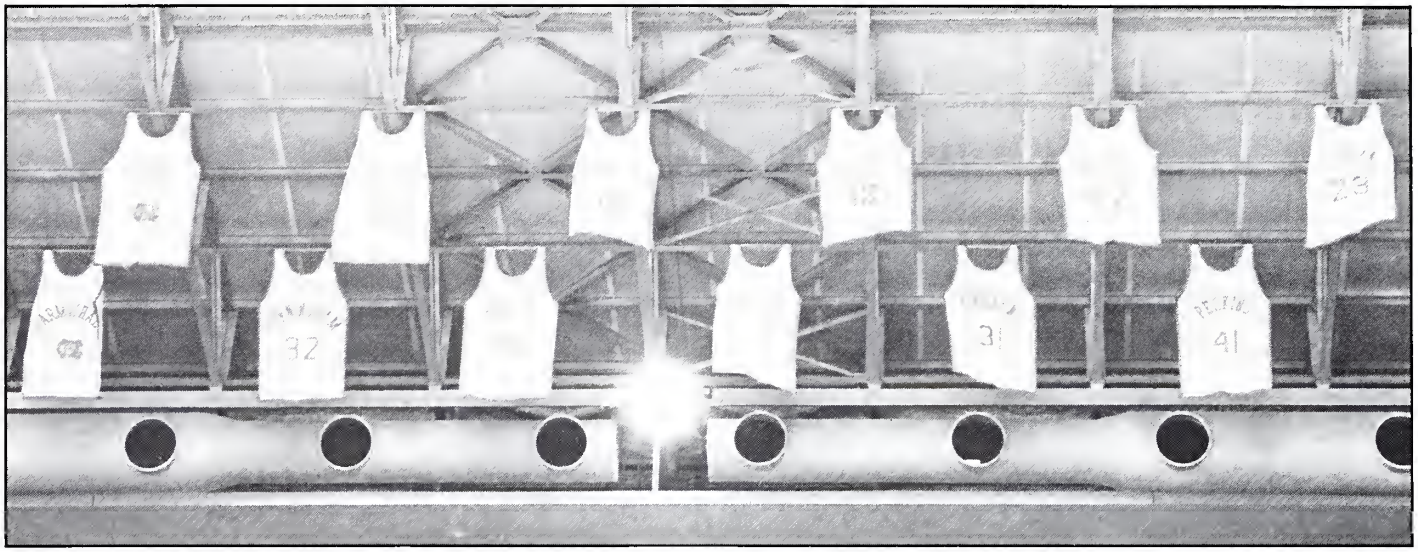
"I'm talking about the Dean Smith Center at the University of North Carolina.

"People here call it the Dean Dome. That's not reverent enough for the combined Taj Mahal, Buckingham Palace and Vatican of college basketball, all under the same huge roof with the white fiberglass crown.

"The place is unbelievable. Massive. Overwhelming. Opulent.

"Simply stated, it's the ultimate."

The Smith Center Jersies

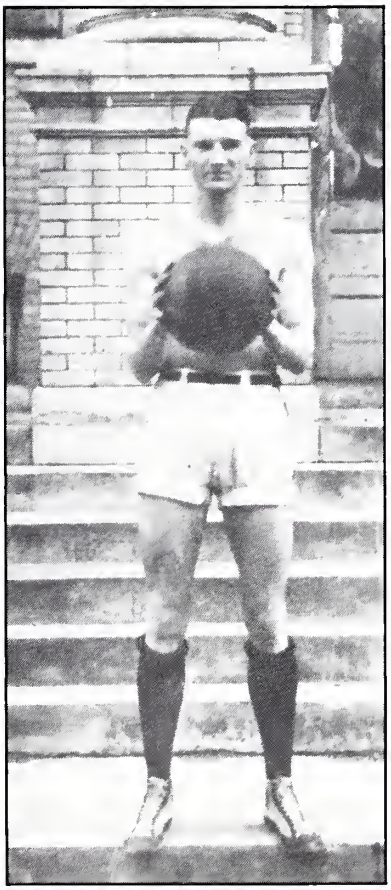


When the Dean E. Smith Center was opened, it was decided the new building needed a proper salute to those who helped make Carolina basketball what it is today. To that end, on dedication day in September 1986, 12 jersies were hung in the rafters of the Smith Center.

The six jersies in the front row belong to men who have earned National Player-of-the-Year honors, and these numbers have been retired. The six in the back row belong to men who were named first team All-America twice or more, and they hang in their honor.

The retired jersies belong to Jack Cobb (a numeral), George Glamack (#20)*, Lennie Rosenbluth (#10), Phil Ford (#12), James Worthy (#52) and Michael Jordan (#23). The honored jersies include those of Cartwright Carmichael (a numeral), Billy Cunningham (#32), Larry Miller (#44), Charlie Scott (#33), Mike O'Koren (#31) and Sam Perkins (#41).

*Because the jersies were not hung until after Steve Bucknall came to Carolina, he will be allowed to wear number 20 for the rest of his career. At the end of this season, Glamack's #20 will be retired for the remainder of Carolina's basketball history.

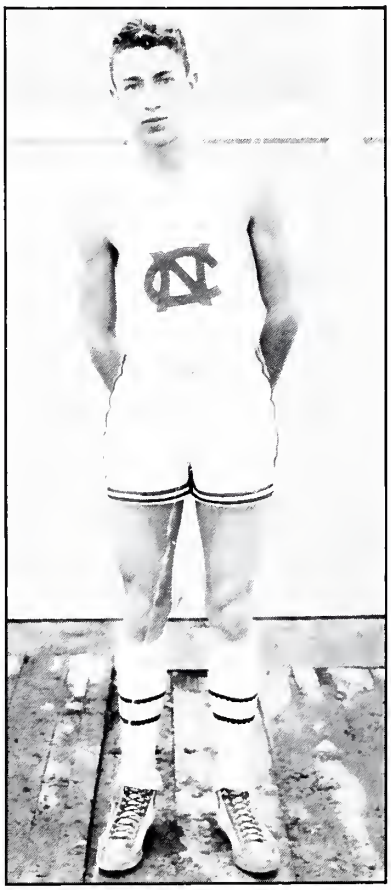


Cartwright Carmichael

Won first team basketball All-America honors in 1923, becoming Carolina's first All-America in any sport... Repeated the honor in 1924... An excellent shooter in his day... Three times selected All-Southern Conference, 1922-24..Led teams to two Southern Conference championships and an undefeated season in 1924 as team was voted national champion by the Helms Foundation... The team's record in his three varsity years was 55-7... Captained 1922 team as a sophomore... Also lettered as an outfielder in baseball .

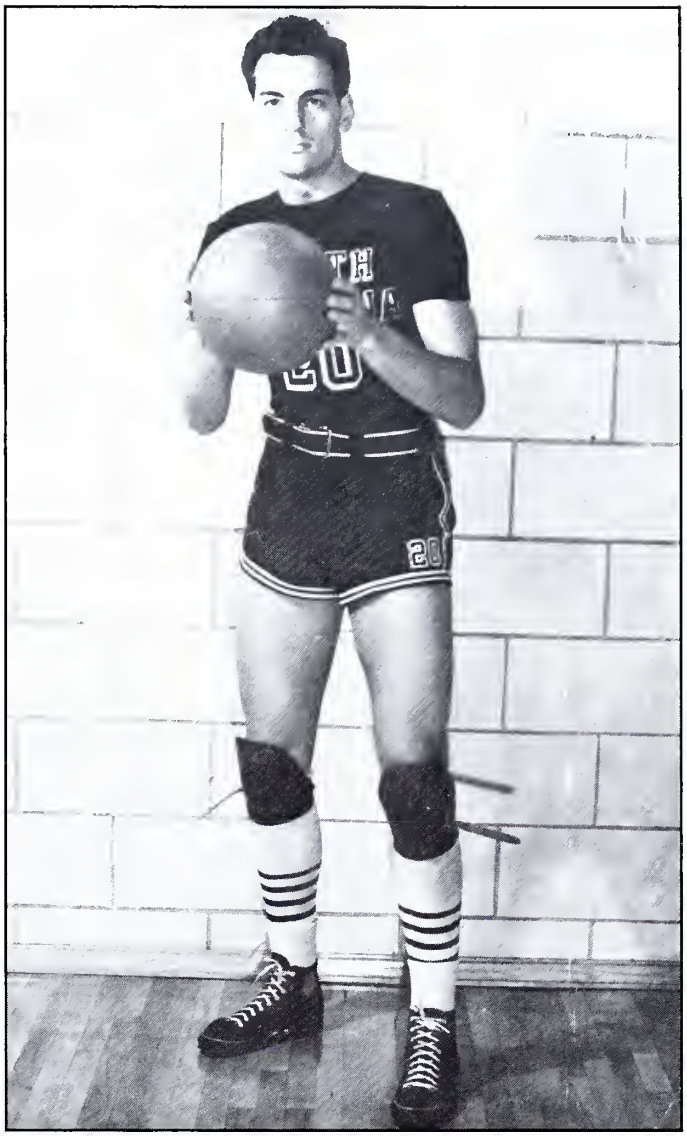
Jack Cobb

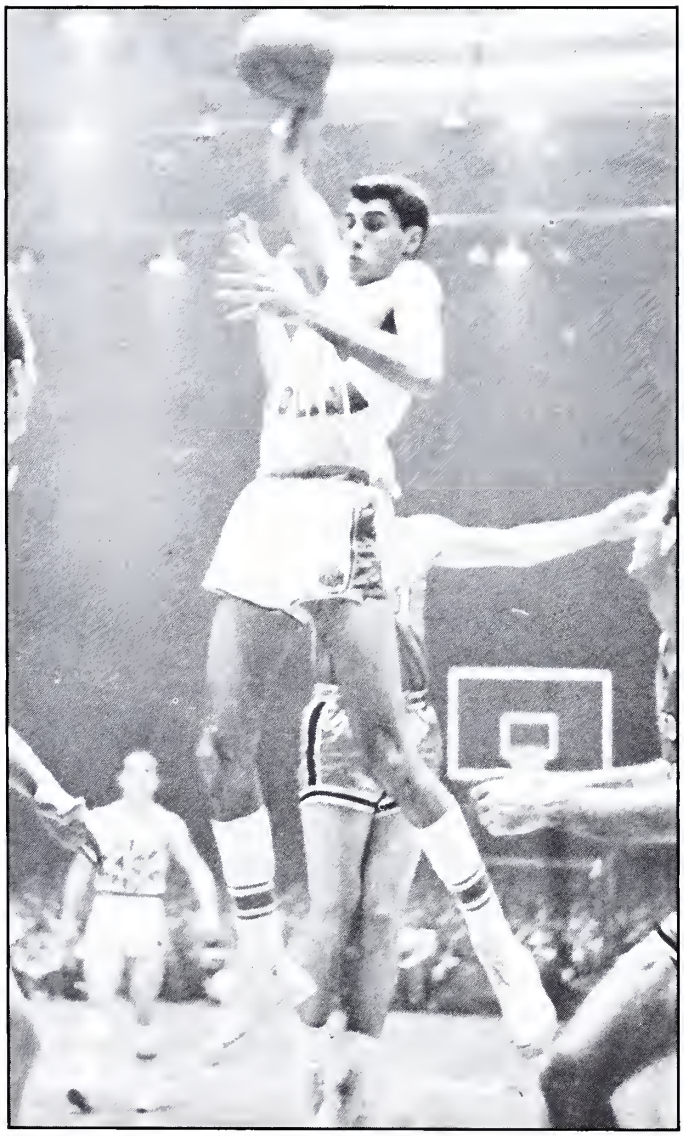
A teammate of Carmichael's on the national championship squad in 1924, Cobb was the school's first three-time All-America... Earned National Player-of-the-Year honors in 1926... Team captain as a junior in 1925... Averaged 15 points per game in his three varsity seasons while the entire Tar Heel team averaged only 35.0 points per game... Member of the Helms Hall of Fame and the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame.



George Glamack, #20

Nicknamed "The Blind Bomber" for his poor eyesight, Glamack was excellent at getting inside position for an easy shot... Also had a deadly hook shot with either hand... Was twice named All-Southern Conference, All-America and National Player-of-the-Year, in 1940 and 1941... Led Carolina's Southern Conference championship team in 1940... Captained 1941 squad... Averaged 20.6 points per game, an amazing figure for the 1940's.



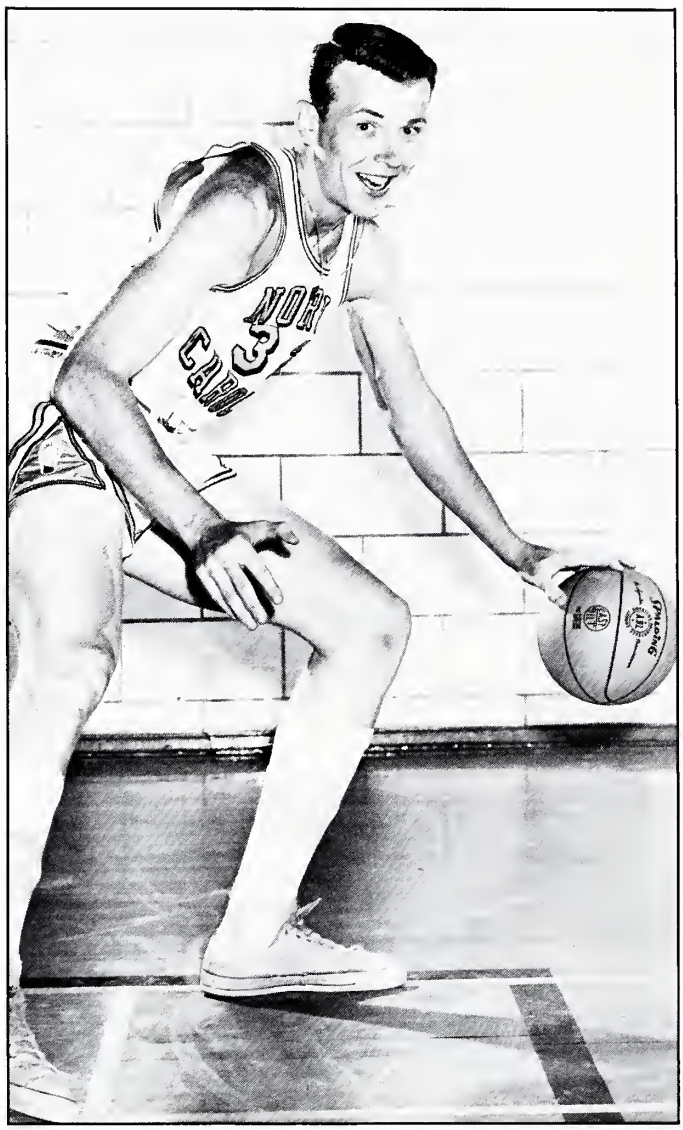


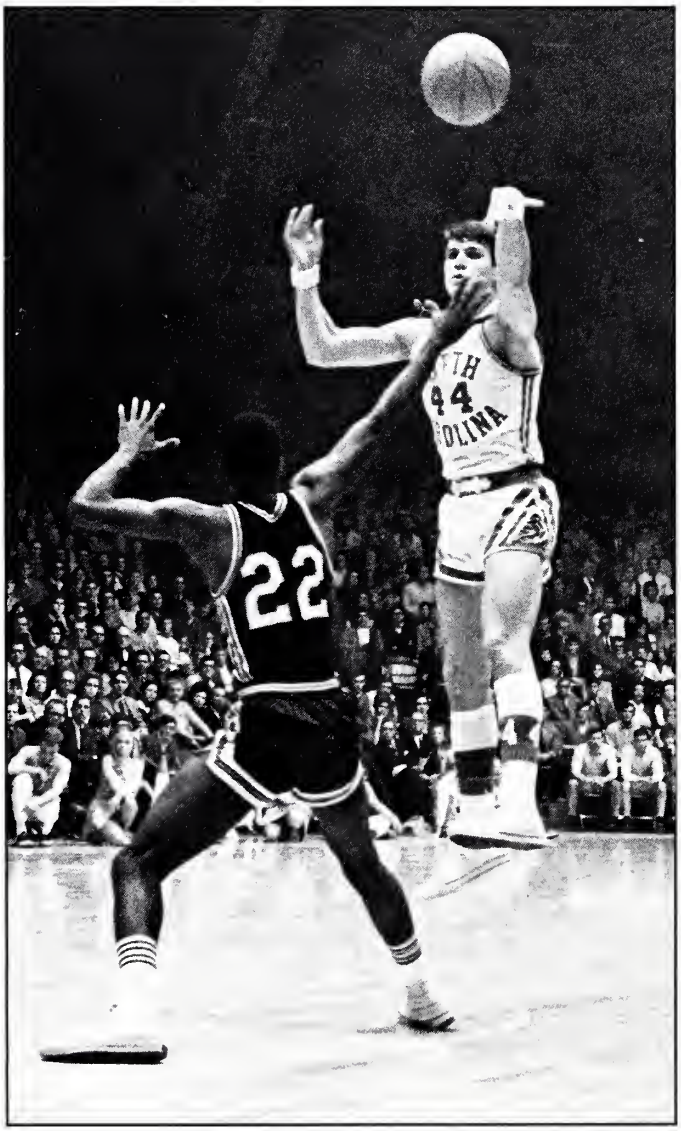
Lennie Rosenbluth, #10

Led the Tar Heels to a perfect 32-0 season in 1957, winning the national championship game in triple overtime over Kansas and Wilt Chamberlain... Was also 1957's National Player-of-the-Year... Set UNC records for scoring average in a season and a career, with 28.0 and 26.9 respectively, both of which still stand... All told, still holds 10 school records... His 2,045 career points scored was a school record for 21 years and is still third in UNC history... Was three-time All-ACC selection... ACC Player- and Athlete-of-the-Year in 1957.

Billy Cunningham, #32

Nicknamed "The Kangaroo Kid" for his exceptional leaping ability, the 6-5½ Cunningham gained notoriety for leading the ACC in rebounding three years in a row... Still holds six of eight UNC rebounding records, and is second leading rebounder in UNC history... ACC Player-of-the-Year in 1965, All-ACC three times and first team All-America twice... Also led ACC in scoring two years in a row, with 26.0 points per game in 1964 and 25.4 in 1965... Carolina's MVP three straight years... Twice named to All-ACC Tournament team despite not playing in finals either year... Named to CoSIDA Academic All-America team in 1965.



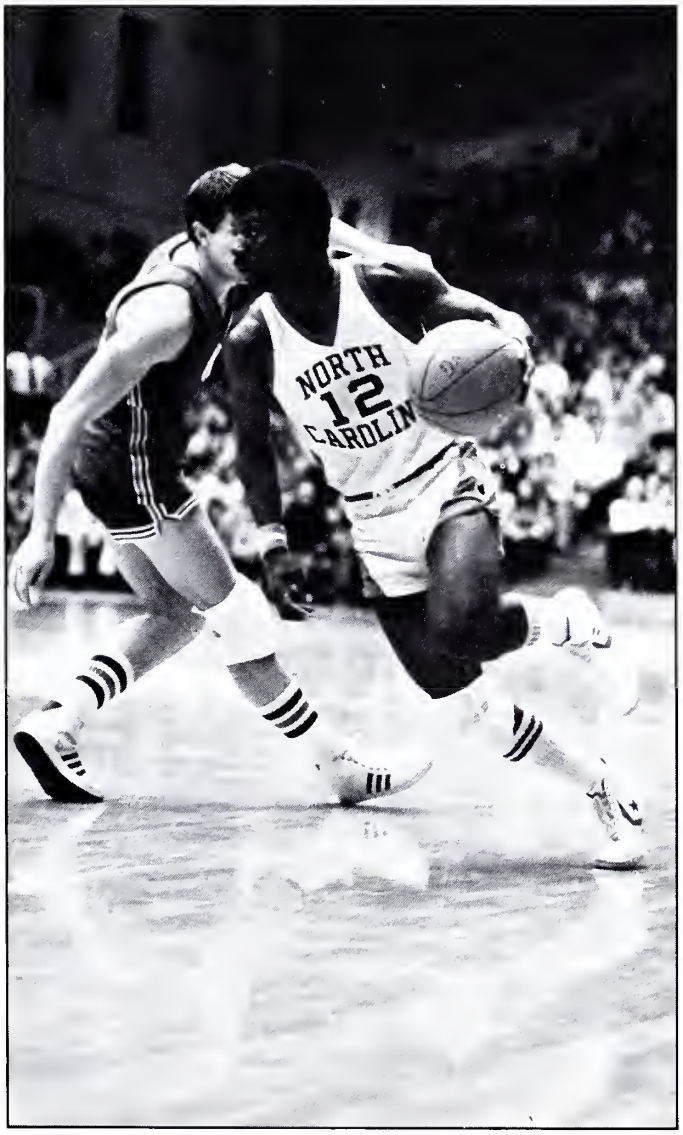


Larry Miller, #44

Miller led UNC to ACC titles and the NCAA Final Four in 1967 and 1968... Was All-America and ACC Player-of-the-Year both of those years, and added ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1968... One of only two players ever to be MVP of ACC Tournament on two occasions... Once scored in double figures in 64 consecutive games, still a school record... Is still UNC's sixth-leading career scorer and seventh-leading rebounder... Named to NCAA all-regional teams in both 1967 and 1968, and was on all-tournament team at Final Four in 1968... Played one of the greatest games in ACC Tournament history in the 1967 finals, hitting 13 of 14 field goals and scoring 32 points in an 82-73 victory over Duke.

Charlie Scott, #33

An excellent all-around athlete, Scott led UNC to its third straight Final Four in 1969, in the days when a conference sent only one team to the tournament... Was a first team All-America in 1969 and 1970, and a three-time All-ACC selection... Led ACC in scoring in 1970 with 27.1 points per game... Scott is UNC's fifth-leading career scorer, 16th-leading rebounder and is 10th in assists... Scored 40 points in ACC Tournament finals against Duke in 1969, bringing UNC from nine-point halftime deficit to an 11-point win... Played on gold medal-winning 1968 Olympic Team... A leader off the court also, being named to 1970 CoSIDA Academic All-America Team.

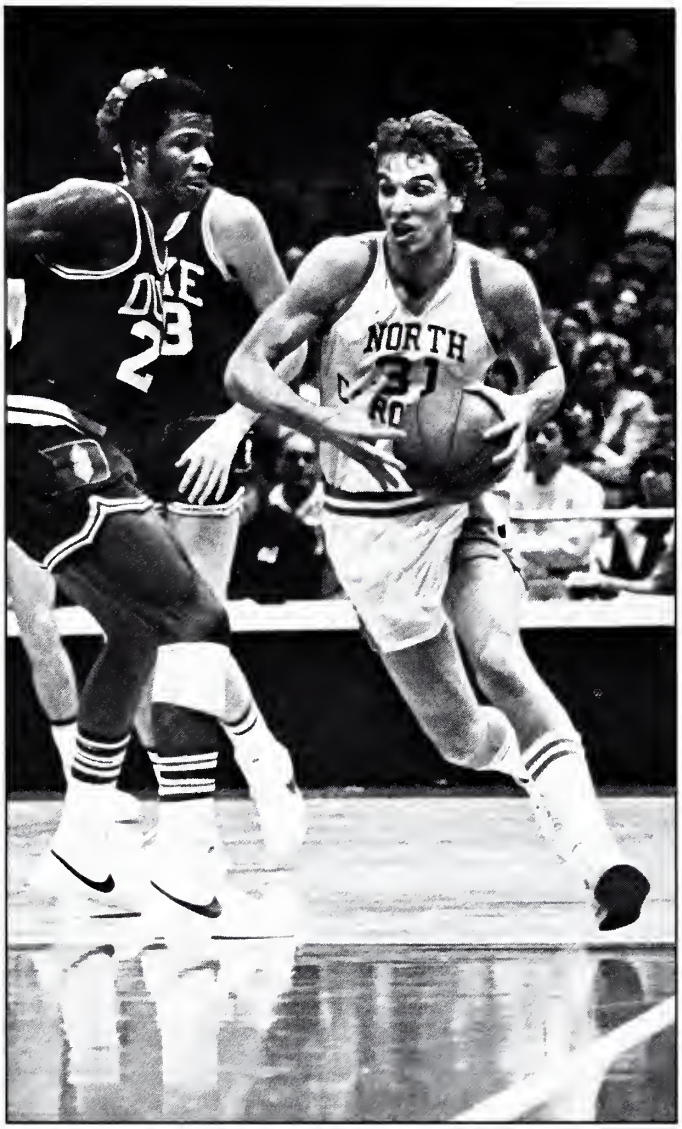


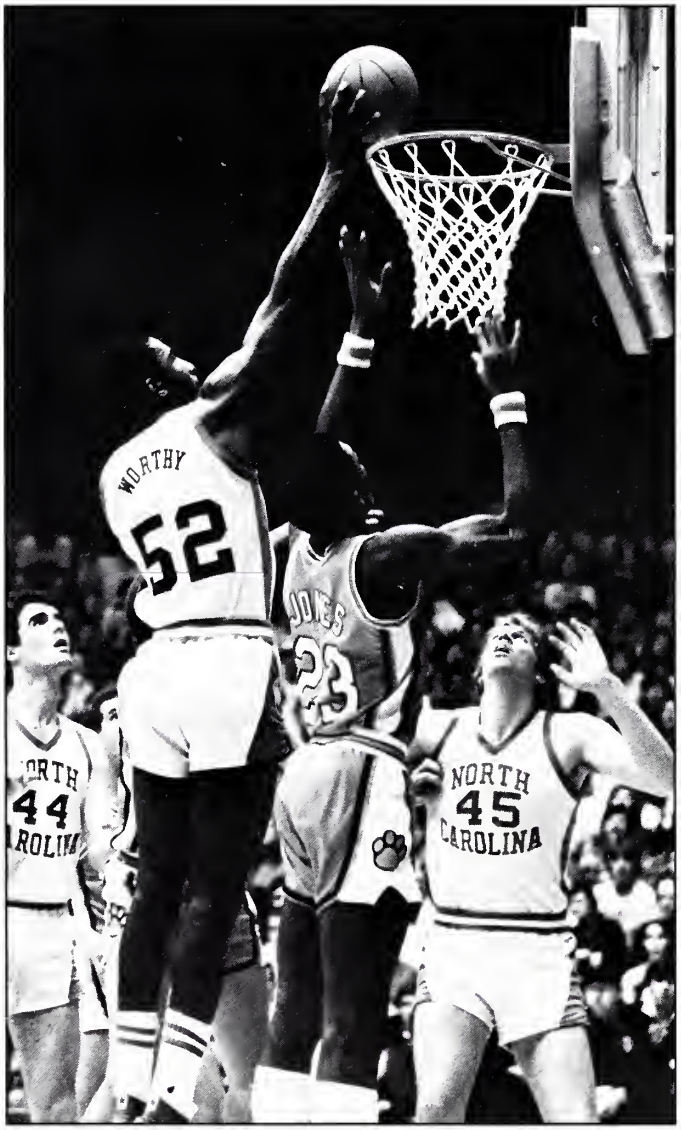
Phil Ford, #12

One of college basketball's all-time best guards, Ford ran Dean Smith's famed "Four Corners" offense better than anyone... UNC's all-time leading scorer (2,290 points) and second in assists (753)... Three-time All-America in 1976, 1977 and 1978... National Player-of-the-Year in 1978... Led Carolina to three straight first-place ACC finishes and ACC Tournament titles in 1975 and 1977... Scored career-high 34 points in 1978 victory over Duke in last game of season to give UNC the regular-season ACC title... ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1977 and 1978... One of only eight players under Dean Smith to start first game of freshman year... Played on 1976 gold medal-winning U.S. Olympic Team.

Mike O'Koren, #31

Won first team All-America honors in 1979 and 1980... Solid all-around player who ranks among school leaders in scoring (11th), rebounding (ninth) and assists (10th)... Led the Atlantic Coast Conference in field goal percentage as a sophomore (64.3) and ranked second nationally... A four-year starter who was outstanding down the stretch of his freshman season... Scored 21 points in the 1977 ACC Tournament finals against Virginia, leading a Carolina victory... Then had a career-high 31 points in the NCAA semifinals against Nevada-Las Vegas... All-ACC Tournament selection in 1977 and 1979... Had a sensational game against Duke as a junior with 17 points, 20 rebounds, seven assists and four steals... Also held Blue Devil star Gene Banks scoreless in the second half of that game... Co-captain of the 1979 U.S. Pan American Games Team which captured gold medal.



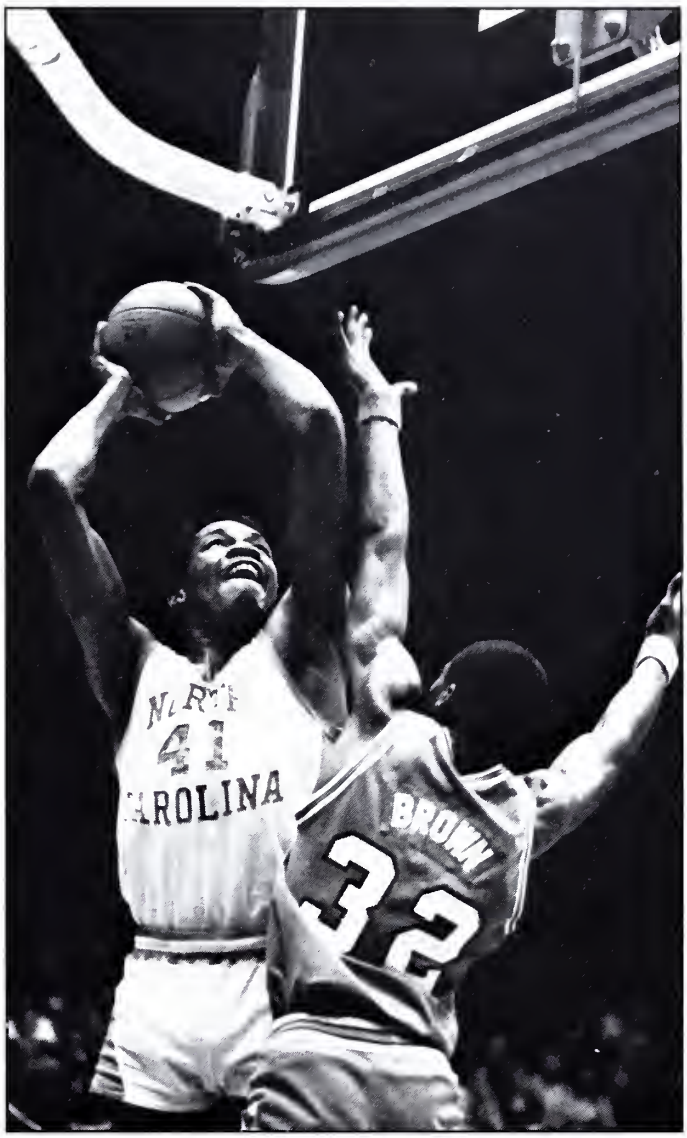


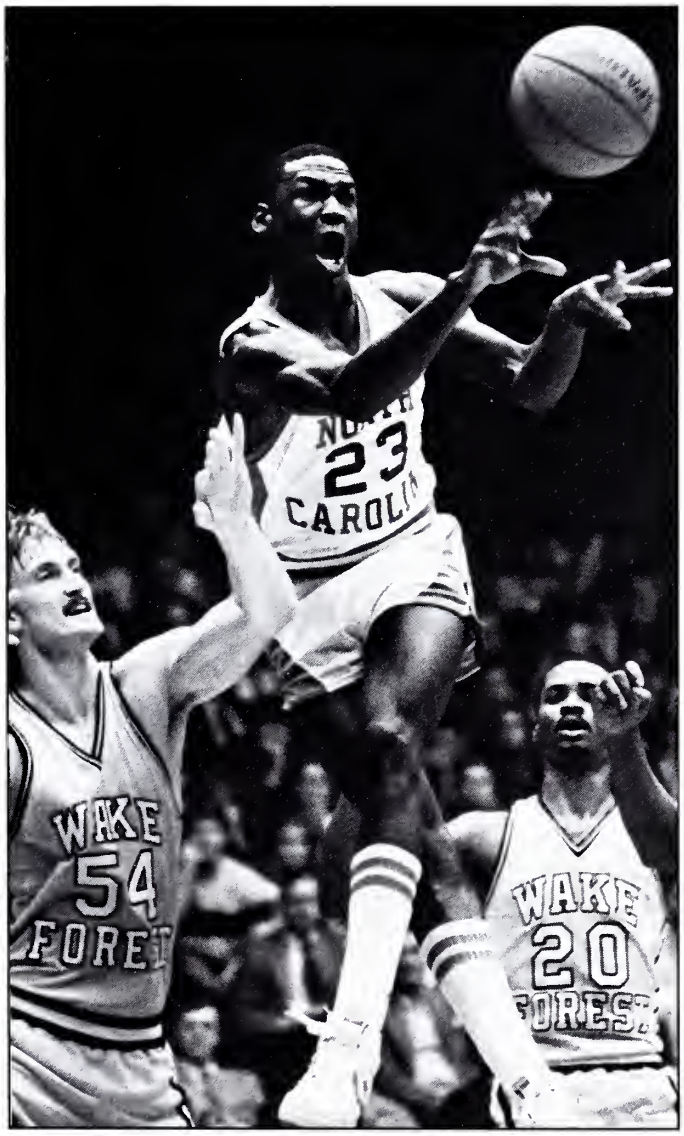
James Worthy, #52

Led Carolina to its third national championship in 1982, with a career-high 28 points against Georgetown in finals... MVP of ACC Tournament and East Regionals that year... First team All-America and co-National Player-of-the-Year... Missed most of freshman year with broken ankle, but came back to average 14.2 points per game and finish third in ACC in rebounding as sophomore... Helped Carolina reach championship game in 1981 with his outstanding play in ACC Tournament and NCAA West Regional... After consulting with Coach Smith, Worthy passed up his final year of eligibility to become first selection in NBA draft by the Los Angeles Lakers.

Sam Perkins, #41

UNC's all-time leading rebounder and second-leading scorer, Perkins was a 6-9 center with long arms and an uncanny jumper... One of only three Carolina players to be first team All-America three times, the others being Phil Ford and Jack Cobb... Also three-time All-ACC in those same years... ACC Rookie-of-the-Year in 1981, and MVP of ACC tournament that year... Went to Final Four in 1981 and 1982, being named to All-Regional teams both years, and to All-Final Four team in 1982 as UNC won national championship... Member of 1983 Pan Am Games Team and 1984 Olympic Team, both of which won gold medals.





Michael Jordan, #23

One of the most electrifying Carolina players ever, Jordan hit a jumper with 15 seconds left to give UNC its third national championship in 1982... Was ACC Rookie-of-the-Year, scoring 13.5 points per game, and being one of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to start the first game of the season... Led ACC in scoring in 1984 with 19.4 points per game, being named ACC Player- and Athlete-of-the-Year that season... Named National Player-of-the-Year in 1983 and 1984... Against Virginia in 1983, Jordan won the game with a last-minute steal and dunk, and sent the game into overtime against Tulane early that season with a steal and a 35-foot jumper as UNC won in double overtime... Was leading scorer on both the 1984 Olympic Team and 1983 Pan American Games team, both of which won gold medals... After consulting with Coach Smith, Jordan passed up the final year of his eligibility to enter the NBA draft where he was chosen third by the Chicago Bulls.

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation, Inc.

It is the Educational Foundation which raises funds for athletic scholarships at Carolina.

These scholarships, either partial or full, will be awarded to nearly 400 student-athletes for the 1988-89 academic year, with an additional 100 awarded for summer school. The scholarship budget, which has more than doubled in the last seven years, will total $2.25 million this year, with $800,000 allocated to women's scholarships.

"Since its founding in 1938, the Educational Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, to over 5000 student-athletes," says Moyer Smith, the Foundation's Executive Vice-President.

The purpose of the Foundation is to offer financial aid to worthy young men and women seeking an education at the University and to support University programs by providing services and funds for the construction of facilities or purchase of equipment.

The following are categories of annual giving:

Super Ram ($1,200) - Entitles a member to purchase up to eight season football tickets (selected location) and receive an assigned parking space. Football seating and parking will be in a preferred area.

Big Ram ($500) - Entitles a member to purchase four season football tickets (selected location) and receive an assigned parking space. Football seating and parking will be in a preferred area.

Ram ($300) - Entitles a member to purchase two season football tickets (selected location). Additional tickets may be purchased, but location of tickets is subject to the point system.

Little Ram ($150) - Entitles a member to purchase four season football tickets. However, location of tickets is subject to the point system each year.

Educational Foundation Member ($50) - Those who give less than $150 receive periodic bulletins and the option to purchase tickets. The minimum Foundation membership is $50 per year. However, contributions of any amount are welcome.

Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program was started in 1968 and consists of $50,000 endowed scholarships set up through insurance, life memberships, wills and bequests and a pooled income program.

The Foundation operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"We couldn't have the type program we do without the Educational Foundation," says Athletic Director John Swofford. "We've enlarged our staff in the last several years and I think the staff additions we have made will enable us to do a better job for our members."

The Foundation offices are located at the Smith Center in the North end of the Koury Natatorium. This new office complex has helped tremendously in allowing the Foundation staff to better serve the membership.

Big Apple-NIT Tournament Overview

The National Invitation Tournament, long known for its annual post-season extravaganza, began its pre-season version in 1985, and the tourney has proved to be not only a resounding success, but in some regards quite prophetic. Three teams from the 1985 Big Apple-NIT Final Four—Louisville, Kansas and Duke—made their way to the NCAA Final Four in Dallas, as did 1986 NIT champ UNLV the following year. 1987 semifinalists Florida, Iowa State and Seton Hall each earned a bid to the NCAA Tournament last season to continue the trend.

All in all, what started as little more than an experimental concept, has blossomed into an exciting reality, providing 16 teams from across the nation the opportunity to compete for berths in the tourney's Final Four staged in Madison Square Garden. The field is selected by the NIT Committee, which uses an intricate set of criteria to determine its field. The Committee is careful to include schools from a variety of conferences, as evidenced by the 16 conferences represented this year, and it never chooses more than one league team per tournament.

The 1988 Big Apple-NIT Tournament features what is perhaps the strongest field in the event's brief history. Carolina joins perennial powers Indiana, Syracuse, Louisville and Missouri as the NIT's marquee names, but several other quality teams loom as major obstacles and promise to make things difficult for these traditional kingpins. Stanford, led by All-America Todd Lichti, will be stiff competition, as will Hugh Durham's scrappy Georgia Bulldog squad, and Arkansas State returns all five starters off last year's 21-14 team. La Salle, SMU, Southwest Missouri State, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Wyoming and Xavier all participated in the 1988 NCAA Tournament and will no doubt have a say in who goes to Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving weekend.

The Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions Pairings

Charlotte Coliseum, Charlotte, N.C.

The Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions Overview

The Tar Heels host this season's inaugural Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions on December 2nd and 3rd in the new 24,000-seat Charlotte Coliseum. Sponsored by Diet Pepsi, it is designed to pair three national powers from different geographic regions along with North Carolina or N.C. State, who will alternate as designated home teams through 1991.

The annual event was created under the same premise of the old Dixie Classic, formerly held in Raleigh's Reynolds Coliseum during the 1950's and 60's, and will attempt to offer a comparable transition from football to basketball season.

This year's field includes three visiting teams of outstanding reputation, each having competed in the 1988 NCAA Tournament. Temple, ranked first in the nation throughout most of last season, racked up 32 wins and advanced to the East Regional finals before bowing to Duke. The Owls will square off with Norm Stewart's always-tough Missouri Tigers in a 7 p.m. first round game December 2.

Carolina's opening round opponent is Arizona, the team that eliminated the Tar Heels from the NCAA Tournament last season in the West Regional finals, 70-52, to earn a berth in the Final Four. The Wildcats feature 6-7 Sean Elliot, a legitimate All-America candidate whose silky smooth moves often lead the way to victory for coach Lute Olsen's squad.

Moccasin Outlook

Coach Mack McCarthy's Moccasins were plagued by inconsistency in 1987-88, only to put things together and slip past regular-season champion Marshall in the semifinals of the Southern Conference Tournament for an automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament. Two key players are gone from last year's late-blooming Mocs, however, including shooting guard Morris Lyons and center Lance Fulse, the team's co-captains. Benny Green will again direct the UTC offense at point guard, where he averaged a gaudy 17.2 points a game in '87-'88. The Moccasins also return their two forwards, 6-6 junior Daren Chandler and 6-5 junior Shendi Moon, and will be counting on them for more offensive production while McCarthy settles on a center.

Wildcat Outlook

Lute Olson's 1987-88 Arizona team completed its most successful season in school history as the Wildcats registered 35 wins and embarked on a first-ever journey to the Final Four in Kansas City. Three vital cogs in the UA machine are missing heading into the upcoming season, though. Point guard and three-point gunner Steve Kerr averaged 12.6 points a game last season, and center Tom Tolbert and guard Craig McMillan were also lost to graduation, leaving Olson with some critical holes to fill. One spot Olson doesn't need to worry about is at forward, where senior Sean Elliot returns to the delight of Wildcat fans and the dismay of Arizona's opponents. The 6-8 All-America led the squad in scoring with a 19.6 average and also pulled down 5.8 rebounds per game. All Pac-Ten forward Anthony Cook returns as well to work with Elliot in the frontcourt. Jud Buechler is a 6-6 junior who may find himself playing at the two-guard position, while the point guard opening left by Kerr still looms as a problem remaining to be solved.

Tiger Outlook

Cliff Ellis' Tigers are poised for a fifth straight post-season tournament appearance, which would make Ellis the first coach in Atlantic Coast Conference history to take a team into post-season action in each of his first five seasons. An outstanding front line that includes U.S. Olympic Select Team member Elden Campbell, Jerry Pryor and Dale Davis returns in hopes of building upon last season's field goal percentage of 59.6, the third highest mark for a starting front line in ACC history. Junior Sean Tyson also figures heavily in the Tigers' frontcourt plans. All-time ACC career assist leader Grayson Marshall will be the most noticeable absentee from the 1987-1988 squad with returning lettermen Tim Kincaid and Donnell Bruce trying to fill the point guard's big shoes. Junior college transfer Marion Cash and freshman David Young will help bolster the backcourt by adding perimeter threats.

Blue Demon Outlook

If DePaul is to revel in the glory of a third consecutive 20-win season, the Blue Demons' highly-touted recruiting class must produce quality performances early. Coach Joey Meyer's squad returns only two starters from last season's 22-8 group, with forwards Stanley Brundy and Kevin Holland lending their experience and leadership to a bevy of talented youngsters. Three-year veteran swingman Terence Green should see action again this year, although Meyer will likely move him to a guard slot, along with sophomore Brad Niemann. The Blue Demons started a small lineup in '87-'88 due to a lack of a dominant center, but Meyer aims to change that situation by inserting any one of several big men, including 7-1 James Hamby and 6-10 juniors Curtis Jackson and Charles Sowell.

Blue Devil Outlook

For the folks in Durham this season, the dream of a national championship supersedes all other goals following two unsuccessful Final Four appearances over the past three years. Mike Krzyzewski's loaded ballclub will try to live up to the highest of expectations as Duke returns 10 of 12 players off last season's 28-7 squad. Leading the Blue Devils' march to Seattle will be 6-10 All-America Danny Ferry, who led the ACC in scoring during 1987-88 with a 19.1 average. Ferry will be aided in the frontcourt by 6-10 junior Alaa Abdelnaby, 7-0 George Burgin and 6-10 Clay Buckley. A pair of 6-10 freshmen, Christian Laettner and Crawford Palmer, gives Krzyzewski perhaps the tallest bench in the nation. In the backcourt, Quin Snyder and Phil Henderson will direct the Blue Devil attack, while forwards John Smith and Robert Brickey look to provide an outside shooting touch.

Yellow Jacket Outlook

At first glance, Bobby Cremins' 1988-89 version of the Yellow Jackets might look unsettled in the wake of losing star forward Duane Ferrell and wily point guard Craig Neal to graduation. But all is not lost for the Rambling Wreck, as ACC Rookie-of-the-Year Dennis Scott, junior guard Brian Oliver and 6-9 forward Tom Hammonds return from last season's NCAA Tournament team. Scott is deadly from the perimeter, as evidenced by his last-second, 30-foot jumper that propelled the Jackets past DePaul in the "Thrillerdome" last year. Oliver has proved quite capable at the second guard position, and Hammonds pumped in 18.9 points per game during the 1987-88 season. Coach Cremins raided the JUCO ranks during the off-season and signed big men Maurice Brittian and Johnny McNeil along with 6-1 point guard Karl Brown, all of whom Tech is counting upon heavily.

Hawkeye Outlook

A serious lack of depth and experience has Iowa coach Tom Davis concerned about his Hawkeyes this season. But of the three returning starters off the 1987-88 team, Davis isn't hurting for fire power. B.J. Armstrong, a senior point guard who averaged 17.4 points per game last year, and guard Roy Marble will provide a potent scoring punch, while senior center Ed Horton will anchor the middle. The remainder of the Hawkeye lineup is uncertain, although a pair of transfers may be ready to make more immediate contributions than the four red-shirt freshmen and five true freshmen. Matt Bullard, a 6-10 forward, left the Colorado fold and joins 6-8 Missouri transfer Michael Ingram in the Hawkeyes' fast-breaking, pressure defense system.

Terrapin Outlook

The 1988-89 Maryland team may have some difficulty achieving the same success it did last season due to the departure of standout center Brian Williams, who transferred to Arizona, and swingman Steve Hood, who left the Terrapin program to rejoin Lefty Driesell at James Madison University. Also missing from the 18-13 squad of a year ago are guards Rudy Archer and Teyon McCoy and stars Derrick Lewis and Keith Gatlin. Coach Bob Wade will turn to junior forward Tony Massenburg and senior Dave Dickerson for leadership. The two players averaged 10.1 and 4.5 points a game, respectively, and along with sophomore Cedric Lewis, the frontcourt will be depended upon for offensive production. Senior guards John Johnson and Greg Nared are likely to be given backcourt assignments while freshman Jesse Martin continues his development. Another freshman, 6-10 Jerrod Mustaf, was highly-recruited and will work at center.

Wolf Pack Outlook

Nevada-Reno's 1988-89 roster is dotted with the names of nine players unassociated with last season's 15-13 mark. Coach Len Stevens will work with four true freshmen, three transfers and a pair of red-shirt sophomores in an effort to blend the new talent with returning starters Darryl Owens, Gabriel Parizzia and Matt Williams. Owens, a 6-0 senior guard, averaged 18.5 points a game in '87-'88 and will direct the Wolf Pack's fast-paced, high-pressure attack on both ends of the court. Junior college transfer Jon Baer hopes to carry over his nationally 10th-ranked scoring average to the Division I ranks as he works at one of the post positions, and the 6-7 senior Parizzia will tackle double duty at both forward and center.

Wolfpack Outlook

Despite losing team leader Vinny Del Negro and center Charles Shackleford to the NBA draft, N.C. State figures to be a major factor in the Atlantic Coast Conference race. Returning for coach Jim Valvano will be 6-8 forward Chucky Brown, who averaged 16.6 points and six boards a game last season, and impressive junior Brian Howard at the other forward slot. Sophomore Chris Corchiani's 7.3 assists per game in 1987-88 established an ACC record for assists by a freshman, and Valvano will be looking for the 6-1 guard to assert himself as a leader in the absence of Del Negro. Joining Corchiani in the backcourt will be Rodney Monroe, a 6-3 sophomore. Avie Lester appears to have the edge in the battle to replace Shackleford in the middle, although Brian D'Amico and JUCO transfer David Lee will also see action at center.

Monarch Outlook

The Monarchs wrapped up the 1987-88 season with a loss to eventual finalist Ohio State in the National Invitation Tournament, and the return of ODU's top three scorers makes post-season aspirations a distinct possibility for the second straight year. Coach Tom Young is blessed with a couple of outstanding forwards in junior Anthony Carver and senior Garrick Davis, who averaged 15 and 12.6 points a game, respectively, last season. Senior Bernard Royster brings his 11.0 scoring average into the '88-'89 season as well, giving Young a dependable reserve to spell his two starting forwards. Point guard Darrin McDonald hit two game-winning shots last year to earn him "Mr. Clutch" honors, and the 6-3 junior will be back to try and recreate some magic moments for the Monarchs. Of the four newcomers to the Old Dominion program, University of Pittsburgh transfer Chris Gatling should make the most immediate impact as he anchors the middle for Young's ballclub.

Wave Outlook

Rookie head coach Tom Asbury inherits a talented, experienced Pepperdine squad that qualified for the National Invitation Tournament last season. Headlining the veteran crew is junior forward Tom Lewis, a legitimate All-America candidate who poured in 22.9 points per game in '87-'88, and wing Craig Davis, a 6-3 junior and deadly from the perimeter. Senior Lamar Wilson will direct the Wave attack at the point guard slot, and 6-11 senior Casey Crawford returns as the starting center. Dexter Howard is a 6-7 forward who averaged nearly 10 points a game last season and will help give Asbury the depth necessary for his team to successfully run its pressure defense.

Spider Outlook

The 1987-88 Richmond Spiders stood up to the major college basketball world and proved they belonged, knocking off powers Indiana and Georgia Tech in the NCAA Tournament before succumbing to top-seeded Temple in the third round. This season, however, Coach Dick Tarrant won't have the luxury of forward Peter Woolfolk, an honorable mention All-America who averaged 18.3 points a game as a senior last season. Forwards Scott Stapleton and Mike Winiecki will try to take up the slack, and junior point guard Ken Atkinson is primed to dish out assists as he coordinates the Richmond offense. Eric English, a 6-3 senior shooting guard, is a highly-regarded defensive player and will look to energize the Spider fast break by creating turnovers.

Aztec Outlook

Head coach Jim Brandenburg is in his second year of a major rebuilding task at San Diego State, and if last season's results are an accurate indication, he is well on his way to restoring the Aztec program. San Diego State registered more than twice as many wins last season as it did in 1986-87, and four starters are back from the improved ballclub. Senior Bryan Williams was second in the Western Athletic Conference in assists per game with 5.3, and he and junior Tony Ross will give Brandenburg a veteran backcourt. Senior center Mitch McMullen also returns for the Aztecs and will use his 6-10, 240-pound frame to fill up the lane and provide some inside scoring punch. Forward Sam Johnson will start again for SDSU and will likely be joined by transfer Shawn Bell in the frontcourt. Former Clemson guard Michael Best, who scored 20 points in his first start against North Carolina three years ago, is another transfer who could add some offensive spark.

Cardinal Outlook

In a league historically dominated by its California counterpart, UCLA, the Cardinal is primed to show the Bruins, Arizona and the rest of the Pac Ten gang that its program has reached a new plateau. Fresh off a 21-12 season which culminated in a National Invitation Tournament appearance, Stanford has the good fortune of returning four starters and four reserves for what promises to be a successful 1988-89 season. Senior Todd Lichti is unquestionably the greatest player in the school's history and will contend for All-America honors. The 6-4 shooting guard has earned a spot on the All Pac-10 team for three years in a row, and last season he set or tied eight school records and averaged 20.1 points a game. Lichti's counterpart at point guard is senior Terry Taylor, a scrappy defensive player and outstanding ball handler. Howard Wright, a 6-8 senior, averaged 15.7 points and 7.7 rebounds per game in '87-'88 from the forward slot, and he will be joined in the frontcourt by senior Bryan McSweeney.

Tiger Outlook

Towson State returns eight players from last season's team which finished second to Lehigh in the East Coast Conference Tournament, but only two starters are back for coach Terry Truax. The Tigers should be solid at the two forward positions, where seniors John Bays and Stephen Dorsey will see action. Bays was the third-leading scorer on the '87-'88 squad with 8.9 points a game, and he showed his toughness in the paint by pulling down nearly five rebounds per outing. Questions abound at the center and guard spots, however, as the Tigers lost starters at each position. Sophomore Lewis Waller will have a chance to prove himself at point guard, while Everett Cooper and Western Kentucky transfer Kurk Lee battle it out for the nod at shooting guard. Marc Boyle, a 6-8 senior, and 6-9 senior Mike Colclough will share time at the center slot.

Bruin Outlook

The 1987-88 season began with extremely high expectations for the UCLA program, but the Bruins ended up posting a bitterly disappointing 16-14 record and fell short of a post-season tourney bid once thought of as a virtual lock. Now the highly-successful Pepperdine coach, Jim Harrick, has taken over the helm in Los Angeles and has his sights set on returning some of the glory to Pauley Pavilion that the legendary John Wooden created in the 60's and 70's. All-America candidate "Pooh" Richardson's talents will be invaluable this season as he tries to establish a new UCLA single-season assist record for the third consecutive time. Richardson will be paired in the backcourt with sophomore Gerald Madkins, a 6-3 defensive gem who was named to the Pac-10 All Freshman team. Junior forward Trevor Wilson is out to prove he is King of the Boards in the conference again, having averaged 9.4 rebounds a game in '87-'88 as well as 15.4 points per game. Dead-eye shooter Charles Rochelin, a 6-8 senior, and 6-10 junior Kevin Walker are two more frontcourt returnees Harrick will be depending on.

Commodore Outlook

The Vanderbilt Commodores enjoyed one of the finest seasons in school history last year, reaching the Sweet Sixteen of the NCAA Tournament before being eliminated by eventual champion Kansas. If C.M. Newton's club can overcome the devastating loss of 1987-88 SEC Player-of-the-Year Will Perdue, then a first-ever repeat trip to the Big Dance seems within reason for this veteran squad. A total of nine lettermen return for the Commodores in '88-'89, and four of them were starters a year ago. The backcourt looks especially strong for Vandy. Seniors Barry Booker, who averaged 10.9 points a game, and Barry Goheen, whose 12.4 average made him the second-leading scorer behind Perdue last season, give Newton a talented guard tandem. The competition for playing time at the two forward positions will be extremely intense, with last year's starters Frank Kornet and Eric Reid feeling the heat from several reserves and newcomers. JUCO transfer Alberto Ballestro and sophomore Fred Benjamin will share the dubious task of replacing Perdue in the middle.

Cavalier Outlook

Virginia returns three starters from last year's 13-18 squad, but it must replace Mel Kennedy and John Johnson, the Cavaliers' top two scorers. John Crotty, a 6-1 sophomore, will direct the attack for Terry Holland and will be joined in the backcourt by 6-3 senior Richard Morgan, who averaged 10.1 points a game in the 1987-88 season. Bill Batts, who chipped in 7.9 points and snagged 6.4 rebounds a game last year, will be back in the Wahoos' frontcourt along with sophomore Kenny Turner. Brent Bair, a 6-10 senior, will get some playing time at center, but look for first-team junior college All-America Brent Dabbs to contribute as well to the hard-nosed, rugged Cavalier style. Another first-team JUCO All-America, 6-7 forward Curtis Williams, averged 20.6 points and 12.1 rebounds a game at Alleghany Community College last season and will also get the call from Holland.

Demon Deacon Outlook

After three seasons of carefully crafting the Wake Forest basketball program, coach Bob Staak enters the 1988-89 campaign with what looks like a very competitive, dangerous Deacon team. As opposed to past seasons in which inexperience reigned supreme in Winston-Salem, Wake Forest returns all five starters from '87-'88 plus five more reserves. Junior forward Sam Ivy is All-ACC material, having averaged 18.6 points and 7.6 boards per game last year. David Carlyle also proved to be quite potent at forward last season as he pumped in 13.6 points a game, giving Wake Forest a dynamic pair of scorers in the frontcourt. Junior Ralph Kitley showed great improvement in the latter half of last season and will be back at center for coach Staak's crew. In the backcourt, senior Cal Boyd took over at point guard in 1987-88 upon the injury of Robert Siler, who was lost for the season after nine games due to a knee ailment. Both will be back for the Deacs as will shooting guard Tony Black.
